

John Adams Library.

IN THE CUSTODY OF THE BOSTON PUBLIC LIBRARY.

SHELF N^o

4715
4233

Characterifticks.

VOLUME III.

MISCELLANEOUS REFLECTIONS on the preceding Treatifes, and other Critical Subjects.

A Notion of the Tablature, or Judgment of HERCULES.

Printed in the Year M.DCC.LXXIII.

*
* Adamu

141. 2

Vol. 3

TREATISE VI.

V I Z.

Miscellaneous Reflections, &c.

Scilicet uni æquus Virtuti, atque ejus Amicis.

Horat. Sat. 1. Lib. 2.

Printed first in the Year M.DCC.XIV.

Miscellaneous Reflections.

MISCELLANY I.

CHAP. I.

Of the Nature, Rise, and Establishment of MISCELLANYS.—The Subject of these which follow.—Intention of the Writer.

PEACE be with the Soul of that charitable and courteous Author, who for the common Benefit of his Fellow-Authors, introduc'd the ingenious way of MISCELLA-

VOL. III.

A

NEOUS

NEOUS Writing!—It must be own'd that since this happy Method was establish'd, the Harvest of Wit has been more plentiful, and the Labourers more in number than heretofore. 'Tis well known to the able Practitioners in the writing Art; "That as easy as it is to conceive Wit, 'tis the hardest thing imaginable to be deliver'd of It, upon certain Terms." Nothing cou'd be more severe or rigid than the Conditions formerly prescrib'd to Writers; when CRITICISM took place, and Regularity and Order were thought essential in a Treatise. The Notion of a genuine Work, a legitimate and just Piece, has certainly been the Occasion of great Timidity and Backwardness among the Adventurers in Wit: And the Imposition of such strict Laws and Rules of Composition, has set heavy on the free Spirits and forward Genius's of Mankind. 'Twas a Yoke, it seems, which our Forefathers bore; but which, for our parts, we have generously thrown off. In effect, the invidious Distinctions of Bastardy and Legitimacy being at length remov'd; the natural and lawful Issue of the Brain comes with like advantage into the World: And Wit (mere WIT) is well receiv'd; without examination of the Kind, or censure of the Form.

THIS the MISCELLANEOUS Manner of Writing, it must be own'd, has happily effected.

fected. It has render'd almost every Soil productive. It has disclos'd those various Seeds of Wit, which lay suppress'd in many a Bosom; and has rear'd numberless Conceits and curious Fancys, which the natural Rudeness and Asperity of their native Soil wou'd have withheld, or at least not have permitted to rise above the ground. From every Field, from every Hedge or Hillock, we now gather as delicious Fruits and fragrant Flowers, as of old from the richest and best-cultivated Gardens. Miserable were those antient Planters, who understanding not how to conform themselves to the rude Taste of unpolish'd Mankind, made it so difficult a Task to serve the World with intellectual Entertainments, and furnish out the Repasts of Literature and Science.

THERE was certainly a time when the Name of AUTHOR stood for something considerable in the World. To succeed happily in such a Labour as that of writing a Treatise or a Poem, was taken as a sure mark of Understanding and good Sense. The Task was painful: But, it seems, 'twas honourable. How the Case happen'd in process of time, to be so much revers'd, is hard to say. The primitive Authors perhaps being few in number, and highly respected for their Art, fell under the weight of Envy. Being sensible of their Misfortune fortune in this respect, and being excited, as 'tis probable, by the Example of some popular Genius; they quitted their regular Schemes and accurate Forms of Workmanship, in favour of those Wits who cou'd not possibly be receiv'd as AUTHORS upon such difficult Terms. 'Twas necessary, it seems, that the Bottom of Wit shou'd be enlarg'd. 'Twas advisable that more Hands shou'd be taken into the Work. And nothing cou'd better serve this popular purpose, than the way of MISCELLANY, or common ESSAY; in which the most confus'd Head, if fraught with a little Invention, and provided with Common-place-Book Learning, might exert it-self to as much advantage, as the most orderly and well-settled Judgment.

To explain the better how this Revolution in Letters has been effected, it may not perhaps be indecent, shou'd we offer to compare our Writing-Artists, to the Manufacturers in Stuff or Silk. For among These 'tis esteem'd a principal piece of Skill, to frame a Pattern, or Plan of Workmanship, in which the several Colours are agreeably dispos'd; with such proportionable Adjustment of the various Figures and Devices, as may, in the whole, create a kind of Harmony to the Eye. According to this Method, each Piece must be, in reality, an Original. For to copy what has gone before, can be of no use. The Fraud wou'd easily be perceiv'd. On the other side, to work originally, and in a manner create each time a-new, must be a matter of pressing weight, and fitted to the Strength and Capacity of none besides the choicest Workmen.

A MANNER therefore is invented to confound this Simplicity and Conformity of Design. Patch-work is substituted. Cuttings and Shreds of Learning, with various Fragments, and Points of Wit, are drawn together, and tack'd in any fantastick form. If they chance to cast a Luster, and spread a sort of sprightly Glare; the MISCELLANY is approv'd, and the complex Form and Texture of the Work admir'd. The EYE, which before was to be won by Regularity, and had kept true to Measure and strict Proportion, is by this means pleasingly drawn aside, to commit a kind of Debauch, and amuse it-self in gaudy Colours, and disfigur'd Shapes of things. Custom, in the mean while, has not only tolerated this Licentiousness, but render'd it even commendable, and brought it into the highest repute. The Wild and Whimsical, under the name of the Odd and Pretty, succeed in the room of the Graceful and the Beautiful. Justness and Accuracy of Thought are set aside, as too constraining, and of too painful an aspect to be endur'd in the agreeable and more easy Commerce of Gallantry, and modern Wit.

6 MISCELLANEOUS

Now since it has been thought convenient, in these latter Ages, to distinguish the Provinces of WIT and WISDOM, and set apart the agreeable from the useful; 'tis evident there cou'd be nothing devis'd more suitable to the distinct and separate Interest of the former of these Provinces, than this complex manner of Performance which we call MISCELLANY. For whatever is capricious and odd, is sure to create Diversion, to those who look no further. And where there is nothing like Nature, there is no room for the troublesome part of Thought or Contemplation. 'Tis the Perfection of certain Grotesque-Painters, to keep as far from Nature as possible. To find a Likeness in their Works, is to find the greatest Fault imaginable. A natural Connexion is a Slur. A Coherence, a Design, a Meaning, is against their purpose, and destroys the very Spirit and Genius of their Workmanship.

I REMEMBER formerly when I was a Spectator in the French Theater, I found it the Custom, at the end of every grave and solemn Tragedy, to introduce a comick Farce, or MISCELLANY, which they call'd the little Piece. We have indeed a Method still more extraordinary upon our own Stage. For we think it agreeable and just, to mix the Little Piece or Farce with the main Plot or Fable, thro' every Act. This perhaps may be the rather chosen, because our Tragedy is so much deeper and bloodier than that of the French, and therefore needs more immediate Refreshment from the elegant way of Drollery, and Burlesque-wit; which being thus closely interwoven with its opposite, makes that most accomplish'd kind of theatrical MISCELLANY, call'd by our Poets a Tragi-comedy.
have

I COU'D go further perhaps, and demonstrate from the Writings of many of our grave Divines, the Speeches of our Senators, and other principal Models of our national Erudition, "That the MISCELLANEOUS Manner is at present in the highest esteem." But since my chief Intention in the following Sheets is to descant cursorily upon some late Pieces of a British Author; I will presume, That what I have said already on this Head is sufficient; and That it will not be judg'd improper or absurd in me, as I proceed, to take advantage of this miscellaneous Taste which now evidently prevails. According to this Method, whilst I serve as Critick or Interpreter to this new Writer, I may the better correct his Flegm, and give him more of the fashionable Air and Manner of the World; especially in what relates to the Subject and Manner of his two last Pieces, which are contain'd in his second Volume. For these being of the more regular and formal kind, may easily be oppressive to the airy Reader; and may therefore with the same assurance as Tragedy claim the necessary Relief of the little Piece or Farce above-mention'd.

8 MISCELLANEOUS

NOR ought the Title of a MISCELLANEOUS Writer to be deny'd me, on the account that I have grounded my Miscellanys upon a certain Set of Treatises already publish'd. Grounds and Foundations are of no moment in a kind of Work, which, according to modern Establishment, has properly neither Top nor Bottom, Beginning nor End. Besides, that I shall no-way confine myself to the precise Contents of these Treatises; but, like my Fellow-Miscellanarians, shall take occasion to vary often from my propos'd Subject, and make what Deviations or Excursions I shall think fit, as I proceed in my random ESSAYS.

C H A P. II.

Of Controversial Writings: Answers: Replies.---Polemick Divinity; or the Writing Church-Militant.---Philosophers, and Bear-Garden.---Authors pair'd and match'd.---The Match-makers.---Football.---A Dialogue between our Author and his Bookseller.

AMONG the many Improvements daily made in the Art of Writing, there is none perhaps which can be said to have attain'd a greater Height than that of Controversy, or the Method of Answer and Refutation. 'Tis true indeed, that antiently the Wits of Men were for the most part taken up in other Employment. If Authors writ ill, they were despis'd: If well, they were by some Party or other espous'd. For Partys there wou'd necessarily be, and Secls of every kind, in Learning and Philosophy. Every one sided with whom he lik'd; and having the liberty of hearing each side speak for it-self, stood in no need of exprefs Warning-Pieces against pretended Sophistry, or dangerous Reasoning. Particular Answers to single Treatises, tifes, were thought to be of little use. And it was esteem'd no Compliment to a Reader, to help him so carefully in the Judgment of every Piece which came abroad. Whatever Scēls there were in those days, the Zeal of Party-causes ran not so high as to give the Reader a Taste of those personal Reproaches, which might pass in a Debate between the different Party-men.

THUS Matters stood of old; when as yet the Method of writing Controversy was not rais'd into an Art, nor the Feuds of contending Authors become the chief Amusement of the learned World. But we have at present so high a Relish of this kind, that the Writings of the Learned are never truly gustful till they are come to what we may properly enough call their due Ripeness, and have begot a Fray. When the Answer and Reply is once form'd, our Curiosity is excited: We begin then, for the first time, to whet our Attention, and apply our Ear.

FOR example: Let a zealous Divine and flaming Champion of our Faith, when inclin'd to shew himself in Print, make choice of some tremendous Mystery of Religion, oppos'd heretofore by some damnable Herefiarch; whom having vehemently refuted, he turns himself towards

wards the orthodox Opinion, and supports the true Belief, with the highest Eloquence and profoundest Erudition; he shall, notwithstanding this, remain perhaps in deep Obscurity, to the great affliction of his Bookseller, and the regret of all who bear a just Veneration for Church-history, and the antient Purity of the Christian Faith. But let it so happen that in this Prosecution of his deceas'd Adversary, our Doct̄or raises up some living Antagonist; who, on the same foot of Orthodoxy with himself, pretends to arraign his Expositions, and refute the Refuter upon every Article he has advanc'd; from this moment the Writing gathers Life, the Publick listens, the Bookseller takes heart; and when Issue is well join'd, the Repartees grown smart, and the Contention vigorous between the learned Partys, a Ring is made, and Readers gather in abundance. Every one takes party, and encourages his own Side. "This shall be " my Champion!—This Man for my Money!
" —Well hit, on our side!—Again, a good " Stroke!—There he was even with him!—
" Have at him the next Bout!"——Excellent Sport! And when the Combatants are for a-while drawn off, and each retir'd with his own Companions; What Praises, and Congratulations? What Applauses of the suppos'd Victor! And how honourably is he saluted by his Favourers, and complimented even to the disturbance of his Modesty! “Nay, but Gentlemen!—Good Gentlemen! Do you really think thus?—Are you sincere with me?—Have I treated my Adversary as he deserves? Never was Man so maul’d. Why you have kill’d him downright. O, Sirs! you flatter me. He can never rise more. Think ye so indeed? Or if he shou’d; ’twou’d be a Pleasure to see how you wou’d handle him.”

THESE are the Triumphs. This is what sets sharp: This gives the Author his Edge, and excites the Reader’s Attention; when the Trumpets are thus sounded to the Croud, and a kind of Amphitheatrical Entertainment exhibited to the Multitude, by these Gladiatorian Pen-men.

THE Author of the preceding Treatises being by profession a nice Inspector into the Ridicule of Things, must in all probability have rais’d to himself some such Views as these, which hinder’d him from engaging in the way of Controversy. For when, by accident, the * First of these Treatises (a private Letter, and in the Writer’s Esteem, little worthy of the Publick’s notice) came to be read abroad in Copys, and afterwards in Print; the smartest Answers which came out against it, cou'd not, it seems, move our Author to form any Reply. All he was heard to say in return, was, " That he thought " whoever had taken upon him to publish a " Book in answer to that casual Piece, had " certainly made either a very high Compli- " ment to the Author, or a very ill one to " the Publick."

* Viz. The Letter concerning ENTHUSIASM.

IT must be own'd, that when a Writer of any kind is so considerable as to deserve the Labour and Pains of some shrewd Heads to refute him in publick, he may, in the quality of an Author, be justly congratulated on that occasion. 'Tis suppos'd necessarily that he must have writ with some kind of Ability or Wit. But if his original Performance be in truth no better than ordinary; his Answerer's Task must certainly be very mean. He must be very indifferently employ'd, who wou'd take upon him to answer Nonsense in form, ridicule what is of it-self a Jest, and put it upon the World to read a second Book for the sake of the Impertinencys of a former.

TAKING it, however, for granted, " That " a sorry Treatise may be the foundation of a " considerable Answer;" a Reply still must certainly tainly be ridiculous, which-ever way we take it. For either the Author, in his original Piece, has been truly refuted, or not. If refuted; why does he defend? If not refuted; why trouble himself? What has the Publick to do with his private Quarrels, or his Adversary's Impertinence? Or supposing the World out of curiosity may delight to see a Pedant expos'd by a Man of better Wit, and a Controversy thus unequally carry'd on between two such opposite Partys; How long is this Diversion likely to hold good; And what will become of these polemick Writings a few Years hence? What is already become of those mighty Controversys, with which some of the most eminent Authors amus'd the World within the memory of the youngest Scholar? An original Work or two may perhaps remain: But for the subsequent Defences, the Answers, Rejoinders, and Replications; they have been long since paying their attendance to the Pastry-cooks. Mankind perhaps were heated at that time, when first those Matters were debated; But they are now cool again. They laugh'd: They carry'd on the Humour: they blew the Coals: They teaz'd, and set on, maliciously, and to create themselves diversion. But the Jest is now over. No-one so much as inquires Where the Wit was; or Where possibly the Sting shou'd lie of those notable Reflections and satirical tirical Hints, which were once found so pungent, and gave the Readers such high Delight. —Notable Philosophers and Divines, who can be contented to make sport, and write in learned Billingsgate, to divert the Coffee-house, and entertain the Assemblies at Bookfellers Shops, or the more airy Stalls of inferior Book-retailers!

IT must be allow'd, That in this respect, controversial Writing is not so wholly unprofitable: and that for Book-merchants, of whatever Kind or Degree, they undoubtedly receive no small Advantage from a right Improvement of a learned Scuffle. Nothing revives 'em more, or makes a quicker Trade, than a Pair of substantial Divines or grave Philosophers, well match'd, and soundly back'd; till by long worrying one another, they are grown out of breath, and have almost lost their Force of Biting—" So have I known a crafty Glazier,
 " in time of Frost, procure a Foot-ball, to draw
 " into the Street the emulous Chiefs of the ro" bust Youth. The tumid Bladder bounds
 " at every Kick, bursts the withstanding Casements, the Chaffys, Lanterns, and all the brittle vitrious Ware. The Noise of Blows and " Out-crys fills the whole Neighbourhood;
 " and Ruins of Glafs cover the stony Pavements; till the bloated battering Engine, sub-
 " du'd

“ du’d by force of Foot and Fist, and yielding “ up its Breath at many a fatal Cranny, be“ comes lank and harmless, sinks in its Flight,
 “ and can no longer uphold the Spirit of the “ contending Partys.”

THIS our Author supposes to have been the occasion of his being so often and zealously complimented by his Amanuensis (for so he calls * his Bookeller or Printer) on the Fame of his first Piece. The obliging Crafts-man has at times presented him with many a handsome Book, set off with Titles of Remarks, Reflections, and the like, which as he assur’d him, were ANSWERS to his small Treatise. “ Here
 “ Sir! (says he) you have a considerable Hand
 “ has undertaken you!———This Sir, is a “ Reverend—This a Right Reverend———This
 “ a noted Author———Will you not reply, Sir?
 “ ———O, my word, Sir, the World is in “ expectation. Pity they shou’d be “ disappointed! A dozen Sheets, Sir, “ wou’d be sufficient.———You might dispatch
 “ it presently. Think you so? I have “ my Paper ready———And a good Letter.—
 “ Take my word for it—You ihall see, Sir!
 “ Enough. But hark ye (Mr. A, a, a, a) “ my worthy Engineer, and Manager of the

* VOL. I. pag. 305.

“ War of Letters! Ere you prepare your Ar“ tillery, or engage me in acts of Hostility,
 “ let me hear, I intreat you, Whether or no
 “ my Adverfary be taken notice of.—Wait
 “ for his Second Edition. And if by next “ Year, or a Year or two after, it be known
 “ in good Company that there is fuch a Book
 “ in being, I fhall then perhaps think it time
 “ to confider of a Reply.”

C H A P. III.

Of the Letter concerning Enthufiafm.—
Foreign Criticks.—Of Letters in general; and of the Epiftolary Style.—Addreffes to great Men.—Authors and Horfemanfhip.—The modern Amble.—Further Explanation of the MISCELLANEOUS Manner.

AS refolute as our Author may have fhewn himfelf in refufing to take notice of the finart Writings publifh’d againft him by certain Zealots of his own Country, he cou’d not, it feems, but out of curiofity obferve what the foreign and more impartial Criticks might object
 to

to his small Treatise, which he was surpriz'd to hear had been translated into foreign Languages, soon after it had been publish'd here at home. The first Censure of this kind which came to our Author's sight, was that of the PARIS * Journal des Savans. Considering how little favourable the Author of the Letter had shewn himself towards the Romish Church, and Policy of FRANCE, it must be own'd those Journalists have treated him with sufficient Candor: tho they fail'd not to take what Advantages they well cou'd against the Writing, and particularly arraign'd it for the want † of Order and Method.

THE Protestant Writers, such as live in a free Country, and can deliver their Sentiments without Constraint, have certainly ‡ done our Author more Honour than he ever presum'd to think he cou'd deserve. His Translator indeed, who had done him the previous Honour of introducing him to the Ac-

* Du 25 Mars, 1709.

† Ses pensees ne semblent occuper dans son Ouvrage, que la place que le hazard leur a donnee. Ibid. pag. 151.

‡ (1.) Bibliothèque Choisie, année 1709. Tome XIX. pag. 427.

(2.) Histoire des Ouvrages des Savans, Mois d'Octobre, Novembre & Decembre, 1708. pag. 514.

(3.) Nouvelles de la Republique des Lettres, Mois de Mars, 1710.

quaintance of the foreign World, represents particularly, by the Turn given to the latter end of the Letter, that the Writer of it was, as to his Condition and Rank, little better than an inferior Dependent on the noble Lord to whom he had address'd himself. And in reality the Original has so much of that air; that I wonder not, if what the Author left ambiguous, the Translator has determin'd to the side of Clientship and Dependency.

BUT whatever may have been the Circumstance or Character of our Author himself: that of his great Friend ought in justice to have been consider'd by those former Criticks above-mention'd. So much, at least, shou'd have been taken notice of, that there was a real GREAT MAN characteriz'd, and suitable Measures of Address and Style preserv'd. But they who wou'd neither observe this, nor apprehend the Letter it-self to be real, were insufficient Criticks, and unqualify'd to judge of the Turn or Humour of a Piece, which they had never consider'd in a proper light.

'TIS become indeed so common a Practice among Authors, to feign a Correspondency, and give the Title of a private Letter to a Piece address'd solely to the Publick, that it wou'd not be strange to see other Journalists and Criticks, ticks, as well as the Gentlemen of PARIS, pass over such Particularitys, as things of Form. This Prejudice however cou'd not misguide a chief Critick of the Protestant side; when * mentioning this Letter concerning Enthusiasm, he speaks of it as a real Letter (such as in truth it was) not a precise and formal † TREATISE, design'd for Publick View.

IT will be own'd surely, by those who have learnt to judge of Elegancy and Wit by the help merely of modern Languages, That we cou'd have little relish of the best Letters of a BALSAC or VOITURE, were we wholly ignorant of the Characters of the principal Persons to whom those Letters were actually written. But much less cou'd we find pleasure in this reading, shou'd we take it into our heads, that both the Personages and Correspondency it-self were merely fictitious. Let the best of TULLY'S Epistles be read in such a narrow View as this, and they will certainly

* Ceux qui l'ont lue ont pu voir en general, que l'Auteur ne s'y est pas propose un certain plan, pour traiter sa matiere methodiquement; parceque c'est une Lettre, & non un Traite. Bibliotheque Choisie. Ibid. pag. 428.

† If in this joint Edition, with other Works, the Letter be made to pass under that general Name of Treatise; 'tis the Bookseller must account for it. For the Author's part, he considers it as no other than what it originally was.

prove very insipid. If a real BRUTUS, a real ATTICUS be not suppos'd, there will be no real CICERO. The elegant Writer will disappear; as will the vast Labour and Art with which this eloquent Roman writ those Letters to his illustrious Friends. There was no kind of Composition in which this great Author prided or pleas'd himself more than in this; where he endeavour'd to throw off the Mein of the Philosopher and Orator, whilst in effect he employ'd both his Rhetorick and Philosophy with the greatest Force. They who can read an Epistle or Satir of HORACE in somewhat better than a mere scholastick Relish, will comprehend that the Concealment of Order and Method, in this manner of Writing, makes the chief Beauty of the Work. They will own, that unless a Reader be in some measure surpris'd of the Characters of an AUGUSTUS, a MAECENAS, a FLORUS, or a TREBATIUS, there will be little Relish in those Satirs or Epistles address'd in particular to the Courtiers, Ministers, and Great Men of the Times. Even the SATIRICK, or MISCELLANEOUS Manner of the polite Antients, requir'd as much Order as the most regular Pieces. But the Art was to destroy every such Token or Appearance, give an extemporary Air to what was writ, and make the Effect of Art be felt, without discovering the Artifice. There needs no further Explanation on this Head. Our Author himself has said enough in his * Advice to an Author, particularly where he treats of the simple Style, in contra-distinction to the learned, the formal, or methodick.

'TIS a different Case indeed, when the Title of Epistle is improperly given to such Works as were never writ in any other view than that of being made publick, or to serve as Exercises or Specimens of the Wit of their Composer. Such were those infinite Numbers of Greek and Latin Epistles, writ by the anti-ent Sophists, Grammarians, or Rhetoricians; where we find the real Character of the Epistle, the genuine Style and Manners of the corresponding Partys sometimes imitated; but at other times not so much as aim'd at, nor any Measures of historical Truth preserv'd. Such perhaps we may esteem even the Letters of a † SENECA to his Friend LUCILIUS. Or supposing

* VOL. I. pag. 233, 257, 258.

† 'Tis not the Person, Character or Genius, but the Style and Manner of this great Man, which we presume to censure. We acknowledge his noble Sentiments and worthy Actions. We own the Patriot, and good Minister: But we reject the Writer. He was the first of any Note or Worth who gave credit to that false Style and Manner here spoken of. He might, on this account, be call'd in reality The Corrupter of ROMAN Eloquence.

posing that philosophical Courtier had really such a Correspondency; and, at several times, had sent so many fair Epistles, honestly sign'd and seal'd, to his Country-friend, at a distance; it

Eloquence. This indeed cou'd not but naturally, and of it-self, become relax and dissolute, after such a Relaxation and Dissolution of Manners, consequent to the Change of Government, and to the horrid Luxury and Effeminacy of the Roman Court, even before the time of a CLAUDIUS, or a NERO. There was no more possibility of making a Stand for Language, than for Liberty. As the World now stood, the highest Glory which cou'd be attain'd by mortal Man, was to be Mitigator or Moderator of that universal Tyranny already establish'd. To this I must add, That in every City, Principality, or smaller Nation, where single WILL prevails, and Court-power, instead of Laws or Constitutions, guides the State; 'tis of the highest difficulty for the best Minister to procure a just, or even a tolerable Administration. Where such a Minister is found, who can but moderately influence the petty Tyranny, he deserves considerable Applause and Honour. But in the Case we have mention'd, where a universal Monarchy was actually establish'd, and the Interest of a whole World concern'd; He surely must have been esteem'd a Guardian-Angel, who, as a prime Minister, cou'd, for several Years, turn the very worst of Courts, and worst-condition'd of all Princes, to the fatherly Care and just Government of Mankind. Such a Minister was SENECA under an AGRIPPINA and a NERO. And such he was acknowledg'd by the antient and never-sparing Satirists, who cou'd not forbear to celebrate, withal, his Generosity and Friendship in a private Life:

*Nemo petit modicis quæ mittebantur amicis
A SENECA; quæ PISO bonus, quæ COTTA solebat
Largiri: namque et titulis, et facibus olim Major habebatur donandi Gloria.*

Juvenal. Sat. V.

*Quis tam
Perditus, ut dubitet SENECAM præferre NERONI?*

Id. Sat. VIII.

it appears however by the Epistles themselves, in their proper Order (if they may be said to have any) that after a few Attempts at the beginning, the Author by degrees loses sight of his Correspondent, and takes the World in general for his Reader or Disciple. He falls into the random way of Miscellaneous Writing; says every-where great and noble Things, in and out of the way, accidentally as Words led him (for with these he plays perpetually;) with infinite Wit, but with little or no Coherence; without a Shape or Body to his Work; with-

This remark is what I have been tempted to make by the way, on the Character of this Roman Author, more mistaken (if I am not very much so my-self) than any other so generally study'd. As for the philosophick Character or Function imputed to him, 'twas foreign, and no-way proper or peculiar to one who never assum'd so much as that of Sophist, or Pensionary Teacher of Philosophy. He was far wide of any such Order, or Profession. There is great difference between a Courtier who takes a Fancy for Philosophy, and a Philosopher who shou'd take a Fancy for a Court. Now SENECA was born a Courtier; being Son of a Court-Rhetor: himself bred in the same manner, and taken into favour for his Wit and Genius, his admir'd Style and Eloquence; not for his Learning in the Books of Philosophy and the Antients. For this indeed was not very profound in him. In short, he was a Man of wonderful Wit, Fluency of Thought and Language, an able Minister, and honest Courtier. And what has been deliver'd down to his prejudice, is by the common Envy of all the free and generous ROMANS, that apish shallow Historian, and Court-Flatterer, DION CASSIUS, of a low Age, when Barbarism (as may be easily seen in his own Work) came on apace, and the very Traces and Features of Virtue, Science and Knowledge, were wearing out of the World.

out

out a real * Beginning, a Middle, or an End. Of a hundred and twenty four Epistles, you may, if you please, make five Hundred, or half a Score. A great-one, for instance, you may divide into five or six. A little-one you may tack to another; and that to another; and so on. The Unity of the Writing will be the same; The Life and Spirit full as well preserv'd. 'Tis not only whole Letters or Pages you may change and manage thus at pleasure: Every Period, every Sentence almost, is independent; and may be taken afunder, transpos'd, post-pon'd, anticipated, or set in any new Order, as you fancy.

THIS is the Manner of Writing so much admir'd and imitated in our Age, that we have scarce the Idea of any other Model. We know little, indeed, of the Difference between one Model or Charaëter of writing and another. All runs to the same Tune, and beats exactly one and the same Measure. Nothing, one wou'd think, cou'd be more tedious than this uniform Pace. The common Amble or Canterbury is not, I am perswaded, more tiresom to a good Rider, than this see-saw of ESSAY-Writers is to an able Reader. The just Composer of

* Infra, p. 259, 260. In the Note on the next Page, the same is said of the a legitimate Piece is like an able Traveller, who exactly measures his Journey, considers his Ground, premeditates his Stages, and Intervals of Relaxation and Intention, to the very Conclusion of his Undertaking, that he happily arrives where he first propos'd when he set out. He is not presently upon the Spur, or in his full Career; but walks his Steed leisurely out of his Stable, settles himself in his Stirrups, and when fair Road and Season offer, puts on perhaps to a round Trot; thence into a Gallop, and after a while takes up. As Down, or Meadow, or shady Lane present themselves, he accordingly sutes his Pace, favours his Palfry; and is sure not to bring him puffing and in a heat, into his last Inn. But the Post-way is become highly fashionable with modern Authors. The very same stroke sets you out, and brings you in. Nothing stays, or interrupts. Hill or Valley; rough or smooth; thick or thin: No Difference; no Variation. When an Author sits down to write, he knows no other Business he has, than to be witty, and take care that his Periods be well turn'd, or (as they commonly say) run smooth. In this manner, he doubts not to gain the Character of bright. When he has writ as many Pages as he likes, or as his Run of Fancy wou'd permit; he then perhaps considers what Name he he had best to give to his new Writing: whether he shou'd call it Letter, Essay, Miscellany, or ought else. The Bookseller perhaps is to determine this at last, when all, besides the Preface, Epistle Dedicatory, and Title-page, is dispatch'd.

———Incertus Scamnum, faceretne Priapum.

—————Deus inde Ego!

Horat. Sat. 8. Lib. 1.

MISCELLANY II.

C H A P. I.

Review of ENTHUSIASM.——Its Defence, Praise:——Use in Business as well as Pleasure:——Operation by Fear, Love.——Modifications of Enthusiasm: Magnanimity; Heroick Virtue; Honour; Publick Zeal; Religion; Superstition; Persecution; Martyrdom.——Energy of the extatick Devotion in the Tender Sex.——Account of antient Priesthood.——Religious War.——Reference to a succeeding Chapter.

WHETHER in fact there be any real Enchantment, any Influence of Stars, any Power of Dæmons or of foreign Natures over our own Minds, is thought questionable by many. Some there are who assert the Negative, gative, and endeavour to solve the Appearances of this kind by the natural Operations of our Passions, and the common Course of outward Things. For my own part, I cannot but at this present apprehend a kind of Enchantment or Magick in that which we call ENTHUSIASM; since I find, that having touch'd slightly on this Subject, I cannot so easily part with it at pleasure.

AFTER having made some cursory Reflections on our Author's * Letter, I thought I might have sufficiently acquitted my-self on this head; till passing to his next Treatise, I found my-self still further engag'd. I perceiv'd plainly that I had as yet scarce enter'd into our Author's Humour, or felt any thing of that Passion, which, as he informs us, is so easily communicable and naturally engaging. But what I had pass'd over in my first Reflections, I found naturally rising in me, upon second thoughts. So that by experience I prov'd it true, what our Author says †, "That we all " of us know something of this Principle." And now that I find I have in reality so much of it imparted to me, I may with better reason be pardon'd, if, after our Author's example, I am led to write on such Subjects as these, with Caution, at different Reprifes? and not singly, in one Breath.

* Viz. Letter concerning ENTHUSIASM, above. VOL. I. Treatise I.

† VOL. I. pag. 54.

I HAVE heard indeed that the very reading of Treatises and Accounts of Melancholy, has been apt to generate that Passion in the over-diligent and attentive Reader. And this perhaps may have been the reason, why our Author himself (as he seems to intimate towards the Conclusion of his first * Letter) car'd not in reality to grapple closely with his Subject, or give us, at once, the precise Definition of ENTHUSIASM. This however we may, with our Author, presume to infer, from the coolest of all Studys, even from Criticisim it-self (of which we have been lately treating) † “ That there “ is a Power in Numbers, Harmony, Propor“ tion, and Beauty of every kind, which na“ turally captivates the Heart, and raises the “ Imagination to an Opinion or Conceit of “ something magestick and divine.”

WHATEVER this Subject may be in it-self; we cannot help being transported with the thought of it. It inspires us with something more than ordinary, and raises us above ourselves. Without this Imagination or Conceit, the World wou'd be but a dull Circumstance, and Life a sorry Pass-time. Scarce cou'd we be said to live. The animal Functions might in their course be carry'd on; but nothing further fought for, or regarded. The gallant Sentiments, the elegant Fancys, the Belle-passions, which have, all of them, this BEAUTY in view, wou'd be set aside, and leave us probably no other Employment than that of satisfying our coarsest Appetites at the cheapest rate; in order to the attainment of a supine State of Indolence and Inactivity.

* Viz. Treatise I. (Letter of ENTHUSIASM) VOL. I. pag. 55. lin. 7.
 † VOL. II. p. 75, 105, 400, &c.

SLENDER wou'd be the Enjoyments of the Lover, the ambitious Man, the Warrior, or the Virtuoso, (as our Author has * elsewhere intimated) if in the Beautys which they admire, and passionately pursue, there were no reference or regard to any higher Majesty or Grandure, than what simply results from the particular Objects of their pursuit. I know not, in reality, what we shou'd do to find a seasoning to most of our Pleasures in Life, were it not for the Taste or Relish, which is owing to this particular Passion, and the Conceit or Imagination which supports it. Without this, we cou'd not so much as admire a Poem, or a Picture; a Garden, or a Palace; a charming Shape, or a fair Face. LOVE it-felf wou'd appear the loweft thing in Nature, when thus anticipated, and treated according to the Anti-enthusiaftick Poet's method:

* VOL. II. pag. 400.

* Et jacere Humorem collectum in corpora quæque.

How Heroifm or Magnanimity must ftand in this Hypothefis, is eafy to imagine. The MUSES themfelves must make a very indifferent figure in this philofophical Draught. Even the Prince of † Poets wou'd prove a moft infipid Writer, if he were thus reduc'd. Nor cou'd there, according to this Scheme, be yet a place of Honour left even for our ‡ Latin Poet, the great Difciple of this un-polite Philofophy, who dares with fo little Equity employ the MUSES Art in favour of fuch a System. But in fpite of his Philofophy, he every-where gives way to Admiration, and rapturous Views of NATURE. He is transported with the feveral Beautys of the WORLD, even whilft he arraigns the Order of it, and deftroys the Principle of Beauty, from

* Lucret. lib. 4.

† 'Ουδὲν μέγος Ὀμήρω ἄθρον, εἰδὲ δυνάστω ἀπορον, εἰδὲ ἀρχῆς ἔρημον, ἀλλὰ πάντα μετὰ θεῶν ἰομάτων καὶ θεῶν λόγων, καὶ θείας τέχνης. Maximus Tyr. Dijfert. 16.

‡ Viz. LUCRETIUS. As above, VOL. I. p. 52.

whence

whence in antient Languages the * WORLD it-felf was nam'd.

THIS is what our Author advances; when in behalf of ENTHUSIASM he quotes its formal Enemys, and shews That they are as capable of it as its greatest Confessors and Assertors. So far is he from degrading Enthusiasm, or disclaiming it in himself; that he looks on this Passion, simply consider'd as the most natural, and its Object as the justest in the World. Even VIRTUE it-felf he takes to be no other than a noble Enthusiasm justly directed, and regulated by that high Standard which he supposes in the Nature of Things.

HE seems to assert, † “ That there are certain moral Species or Appearances so striking, and of such force over our Natures, that when they present themselves, they bear down all contrary Opinion or Conceit, all opposite Passion, Sensation, or mere bodily Affection”. Of this kind he makes VIRTUE it-felf to be the chief: since of all Views or Contemplations, this, in his account, is the most naturally and

* Κόσμος, Mundus. From whence that Expostulation, 'Εν σοι μίε τις Κόσμος ὑφίσταται δόξαι, ἐν δὲ τῷ παντί ἀκοσμία; Μ. Αἰ. β' β' δ'. And that other Allusion to the same word, Κόσμον δ' ἐτύμως τὸ Σύμπαν ἀλλ' ἐκ' Ἀκοσμίαν ὀνομάσαι; ἄν. Below, pag. 264. in the Notes.

† VOL. I. pag. 138, 139, &c. VOL. II. pag. 100, 104, 5, 6.

strongly

strongly affecting. The exalted part of Love is only borrow'd hence. That of pure Friendship is its immediate Self. He who yields his Life a Sacrifice to his Prince or Country; the Lover who for his Paramour performs as much; the heroick, the amorous, the religious Martyrs, who draw their Views, whether visionary or real, from this Pattern and Exemplar of DIVINITY: all these, according to our Author's Sentiment, are alike actuated by this Passion, and prove themselves in effect so many different Enthusiasts.

NOR is thorow Honesty, in his Hypothesis, any other than this Zeal, or Passion, moving strongly upon the Species or View of the DECORUM, and SUBLIME of Actions. Others may pursue * different Forms, and fix their Eye on different Species (as all Men do on one or other:) The real honest Man, however plain or simple he appears, has that highest Species, † Honesty it-self, in view; and instead of outward Forms or Symmetrys, is struck with that of inward Character, the Harmony and Numbers of the Heart, and Beauty of the Affections, which form the Manners and Conduct of a truly social Life.

* VOL. II. pag. 429, 430.

† The Honestum, Pulchrum, τὸ Καλὸν, Πρέπον Infra, pag. 182, &c.

'TIS indeed peculiar to the Genius' of that cool Philosophy * above describ'd; that as it denies the Order or Harmony of Things in general, so by a just Consequence and Truth of Reasoning, it rejects the Habit of admiring or being charmed with whatever is call'd Beautiful in particular. According to the Regimen prescrib'd by this Philosophy, it must be acknowledg'd that the Evils of Love, Ambition, Vanity, Luxury, with other Disturbances deriv'd from the florid, high, and elegant Ideas of Things, must in appearance be set in a fair way of being radically cur'd.

IT need not be thought surprizing, that Religion it-self shou'd in the account of these Philosophers be reckon'd among those Vices and Disturbances, which it concerns us after this manner to extirpate. If the Idea of Majesty and Beauty in other inferior Subjects be in reality distracting; it must chiefly prove so, in that principal Subject, the Basis and Foundation of this Conceit. Now if the Subject it-self be not in Nature, neither the Idea nor the Passion grounded on it can be properly esteem'd natural: And thus all Admiration ceases; and ENTHUSIASM is at an end. But if there be naturally such a Passion; 'tis evident that RELIGION it-self is of the kind, and must be therefore natural to Man.

* Supra, pag. 32. And VOL. I. pag. 48, 49, 117, &c.

turally

WE can admire nothing profoundly, without a certain religious Veneration. And because this borders so much on Fear, and raises a certain Tremor or Horror of like appearance; 'tis easy to give that Turn to the Affection, and represent all ENTHUSIASM and religious Extasy as the Product or mere effect of FEAR:

Primus in orbe Deos fecit Timor.

But the original Passion, as appears plainly, is of another kind, and in effect is so confess'd by those who are the greatest Opposers of Religion, and who, as our Author observes, have shewn themselves sufficiently convinc'd,

“ *That altho these Ideas of Divinity and Beauty were vain; they were yet in a manner innate, or such as Men were really born to, and cou'd hardly by any means avoid.”

Now as all Affections have their Excess, and require Judgment and Discretion to moderate and govern them; so this high and noble Affection, which raises Man to Action, and is his Guide in Business as well as Pleasure, requires a steady Rein and strict Hand over it. All Moralists, worthy of any Name, have recogniz'd the Passion; tho' among these the wisest have prescrib'd Restraint, pres'd Moderation, and to all TYRO'S in Philosophy forbid the forward Use of Admiration, Rapture, or Extasy, even in the Subjects they esteem'd the highest, and most divine. They knew very well that the first Motion, Appetite, and Ardour of the Youth in general towards * Philosophy and Knowledge, depended chiefly on this Turn of Temper: Yet were they well appriz'd withal, That in the Progress of this Study, as well as in the affairs of Life, the florid Ideas and exalted Fancy of this kind became the Fuel of many incendiary Passions; and that in religious Concerns particularly, the Habit of Admiration and contemplative Delight, wou'd by over-Indulgence, too easily mount into high Fanaticism, or degenerate into abject Superstition.

* Letter of ENTHUSIASM, VOL. 1. pag. 49.

UPON the whole therefore, according to our Author, ENTHUSIASM is, in it-self, a very natural honest Passion; and has properly nothing for its Object but what is * Good and Honest. 'Tis apt indeed, he confesses, to run astray. And by modern example we know, perhaps yet better than by any antient, that, in Religion, the ENTHUSIASM which works by Love, is subject to many strange Irregularitys; and that which works by Fear, to many monstrous and horrible Superstitions. Mysticks and Fanaticks, are known to abound as well in our Reform'd as in the Romish Churches. The pretended Floods of Grace pour'd into the Bosoms of the Quietists, Pietists, and those who favour the extatick way of Devotion, raise such Transports as by their own Profelytes are confess'd to have something strangely agreeable, and in common with what ordinary Lovers are us'd to feel. And it has been remark'd by many, That the Female Saints have been the greatest Improvers of this soft part of Religion. What truth there may be in the related Operations of this pretended Grace and amorous Zeal, or in the Accounts of what has usually pass'd between the Saints of each Sex, in these devout Extasys, I shall leave the Reader to examine: supposing he will find credible Accounts, sufficient to convince him of the dangerous progress of ENTHUSIASM in this amorous Lineage.

* So The Stagirite: Δια γὰρ τὸ θαυμάζειν οἱ ἀθηναῖοι καὶ οἱ ἄλλοι τὸ πρῶτον ἤρξαντο φιλοσοφεῖν. Metaph. Lib. 1. Chap. 2. See below, pag. 202, 203. in the Notes.

* Τὸ καλὸν καὶ ἀγαθόν.

THERE are many Branches indeed more vulgar, as that of FEAR, MELANCHOLY, CONSTERNATION, SUSPICION, DESPAIR. And when the Passion turns more towards the astonishing and frightful than the amiable and delightful side, it creates rather what we call SUPERSTITION than ENTHUSIASM. I must confess withal, that what we commonly style Zeal in matters of Religion, is seldom without a mixture of both these Extravagancys. The extatick Motions of Love and Admiration, are seldom un-accompany'd with the Horrors and Consternations of a lower sort of Devotion. These Paroxysms of zeal are in reality as the hot and cold Fits of an Ague, and depend on the different and occasional Views or Aspects of the DIVINITY; according as the Worshipper is * guided from without, or affected from within, by his particular Constitution. Seldom are those Aspects so determinate and fix'd, as to excite constantly one and the same Spirit of Devotion. In Religions therefore, which hold most of Love, there is generally room left for Terrors of the deepest kind. Nor is there any Religion so diabolical, as, in its representation of DIVINITY, to leave no room for Admiration and Esteem. Whatever Personage or

* Infra, pag. 130.

Specker of DIVINITY is worship'd: a certain Esteem and Love is generally affected by his Worshippers. Or if, in the Devotion paid him, there be in truth no real or absolute Esteem; there is however a certain astonishing Delight or Ravishment excited.

THIS Passion is experienc'd, in common, by every Worshipper of the Zealot-kind. The Motion when un-guided, and left wholly to it-self, is in its nature turbulent and incentive. It disjoins the natural Frame, and relaxes the ordinary Tone or Tenor of the Mind. In this Disposition the Reins are let loose to all Passion which arises: And the Mind, as far as it is able to act or think in such a State, approves the Riot, and justifies the wild Effects, by the suppos'd Sacredness of the Cause, Every Dream and Frenzy is made INSPIRATION; every Affection, ZEAL. And in this Persuasion the Zealots, no longer self-govern'd, but set adrift to the wide Sea of Passion, can in one and the same Spirit of Devotion, exert the opposite Passions of Love and Hatred; unite affectionately, and abhor furiously; curse, bless, sing, mourn, exult, tremble, carefs, assassinate, inflict and suffer * MARTYRDOM, with a thouthousand other the most vehement Efforts of variable and contrary Affection.

* A Passage of History comes to my mind, as it is cited by an eminent Divine of our own Church, with regard to that Spirit of MARTYRDOM

THE common Heathen Religion, especially in its latter Age, when adorn'd with the most beautiful Temples, and render'd more illustrious by the Munificence of the R O M A N Senate and succeeding Emperors, ran wholly into Pomp, and was supported chiefly by that sort of ENTHUSIASM, which is rais'd from the * external Objects of Grandure, Majesty, and what we call August. On the other side, the EGYPTIAN or SYRIAN Religions, which lay more in Mystery and conceal'd Rites; having less Dependence on the Magistrate, and less of that Decorum of Art, Politeness, and Mag-

DOM which furnishes, it seems, such solid Matter for the Opinion and Faith of many Zealots. The Story in the words of our Divine, and with his own Reflections on it, is as follows: "Two Franciscans offer'd themselves to the Fire to prove Savanorola to be a Heretick. But a certain Jacobine offer'd himself to the Fire to prove that Savanorola had true Revelations, and was no Heretick. In the mean time Savanorola preach'd; but made no such confident Offer, nor durst he venture at that new kind of Fire-Ordeal. And put Cafe, all four had pass'd thro' the Fire, and died in the Flames; What wou'd that have prov'd? Had he been a Heretick, or no Heretick, the more, or the less, for the Confidence of these zealot Idiots? If we mark it, a great many Arguments whereon many Sells rely, are no better Probation than this comes to." Bishop Taylor in his dedicatory Discourse, before his Liberty of Prophecy. See Letter of Enthusiasm, VOL. I. pag. 26, &c.

* Infra, p. 90, 91.

nificence, ran into a more pusillanimous, frivolous, and mean kind of SUPERSTITION; The “ Observation of Days, the Forbearance of “ Meats, and the Contention about Traditions, “ Seniority of Laws, and * Priority of God-“ ships.”

—————Summus utrinque
Inde furor Vulgo, quod Numina Vicinorum
Odit uterque locus, quum solos credat habendos
Esse Deos, quos ipse colit.————

HISTORY, withal, informs us of a certain Establishment in EGYPT which was very extraordinary, and must needs have had a very uncommon effect; no way advantageous to that Nation in particular, or to the general Society of Mankind. We know very well that nothing is more injurious to the Police, or municipal Constitution of any City or Colony, than the forcing of a particular Trade. Nothing more dangerous than the over-peopling any Manufacture, or multiplying the Traders, or Dealers, of whatever Vocation, beyond their natural Proportion, and the publick Demand. Now it happen'd of old, in this

* Juvenal. Sat. 15. ver. 35. See VOL. II. p. 387, 388.

Mother-Land of Superstition, that * the Sons of certain Artists were by Law oblig'd always to follow the same Calling with their Fathers. Thus the Son of a Priest was always a Priest by Birth, as was the whole Lineage after him, without interruption. Nor was it a Custom with this Nation, as with others, to have only † one single Priest or Priestess to a Temple: but as the Number of Gods and Temples was infinite; so was that of the Priests. The Re-

* "Ἐς δὲ Ἀιγυπτίων ἑπτὰ γένηα. Καὶ τέτων, οἱ μὲν, ἱερεῖς, οἱ δὲ, Μάχημοι κεκλήσθαι. — Οὐδὲ τέτοισι ἕξες: τέχνην ἐπασκῆσαι ὑδερμένην, ἀλλὰ τὰ ἐς πόλεμον ἐπασκῆσαι μῆνα, παῖς παρὰ πατέρω; ἐκδεκόμενοι. Herodot. l. 2. Sect. 164.

† Ἱεῖται δὲ ἕκ εἰς ἑκάστη τῶν θεῶν, ἀλλὰ πολλοὶ — ἐπειὴν δὲ τις ἀποθάνῃ, τέτρα ὁ παῖς ἀντικατίσθαι. Ibid. Sect. 37.

† Ἡς δὲ χώρας ἀπάσης εἰς τρία μέρη διηρημένης, &c. Cum tota Regio in tres partes divisa sit, primam sibi portionem vendicat ordo Sacerdotum, magna apud indigenas auctoritate pollens, tum ob pietatem in Deos, tum quod nullam ex evaditione Scientiam ejusmodi homines afferunt. Ex redditibus autem suis cuncta per Ægyptum sacrificia procurant, ministros alunt; et propriis commoditatibus ancillantur, τὰς ἰδίας χρεῖαις χρησηθῶσιν. Non enim Ægyptii existimant fas esse Deorum honores mutari, sed semper ab eisdem eodem ritu feragi, neque eos necessariorum copia destituti qui in commune omnibus consulunt. In universum namque de maximis rebus consulentes, indefinenter Regi præsto sunt, in nonnulli tanquam participes imperii, in aliis Reges, Duces et Magistrum (συνεργοί, εἰσηγηταί, διδασκαλοὶ) excellentes. Ex Astrologia quoque et Sacrorum inspectione, futura prædicunt, atque e sacrorum Librorum scriptis res gestas cum utilitate conjuncta, prælegunt. Non enim, ut apud Græcos, unus tantummodo vir, aut femina una, Sacerdotio fungitur; sed complures Sacrificia et Honores Deum obeuntes, Liberis suis eandem vite rationem quasi per manus tradunt. Hi autem cunctis oneribus sunt immunes, et primos post Regem honoris et potestatis gradus obtinent. Diol. Sic. lib. 1. pag. 66.

(VOL. III.)

ligious Foundations were without Restriction: and to one single Worship or Temple, as many of the Holy Order might be retainers, as cou'd raise a Maintenance from the Office.

WHATEVER happen'd to other Races or Possessions, that of the Priest, in all likelihood, must, by this Regulation, have propagated the most of any. 'Tis a tempting Circumstance, to have so easy a Mastery over the World; to subdue by Wit instead of Force; to practise on the Passions, and triumph over the Judgment of Mankind; to influence private Familys, and publick Councils; conquer Conquerors; controul the Magistrate himself, and govern without the Envy which attends all other Government or Superiority. No wonder if such a Profession was apt to multiply; especially when we consider the easy Living and Security of the Professors, their Exemption from all Labour, and Hazard; the suppos'd Sacredness of their Character; and their free Possession of Wealth, Grandure, Estates, and Women.

THERE was no need to invest such a Body as this, with rich Lands and ample Territories, as it happen'd in EGYPT. The Generation or Tribe being once set apart as sacred, wou'd, without further encouragement, be able, no doubt, doubt, in process of time, to establish themselves a plentiful and growing Fund, or religious Land-Bank. 'Twas a sufficient Donative, to have had only that single Privilege from the * Law; " That they might retain what they

 " cou'd get; and that it might be lawful for " their Order to receive such Estates by volun" tary Contribution, as cou'd never afterwards
 " be converted to other Uses."

Now if besides the Method of Propagation by Descent, other Methods of Increase were allow'd in this Order of Men; if Volunteers were also admitted at pleasure, without any Stint or Confinement to a certain Number; 'tis not difficult to imagine how enormous the Growth wou'd be of such a Science or Profession, thus recogniz'd by the Magistrate, thus invested with Lands and Power, and thus intitled to whatever extent of Riches or Possession cou'd be acquir'd by Practice and Influence over the superstitious part of Mankind.

THERE were, besides, in EGYPT some natural Causes of Superstition, beyond those which were common to other Regions. This Nation might well abound in Prodigys, when even their Country and Soil it-self was a kind of Prodigy in Nature. Their solitary idle Life, ibid., p. 79,

whilst shut up in their Houses by the regular Inundation of the NILE; the unwholesom Vapours arising from the new Mud, and slimy Relicks of their River, expos'd to the hot Suns; their various Meteors and Phenomena; with the long Vacancy they had to observe and comment on them; the necessity, withal, which on the account of their Navigation, and the Measure of their yearly drowned Lands, compel'd them to promote the Study of Astronomy and other Sciences, of which their Priesthood cou'd make good advantages: All these may be reckon'd perhaps, as additional Causes of the immense Growth of Superstition, and the enormous increase of the Priesthood in this fertile Land.

'Twill however, as I conceive, be found unquestionably true, according to political Arithmetick, in every Nation whatsoever; "That the Quantity of SUPERSTITION (if I " may so speak) will, in proportion, nearly " answer the Number of Priests, Diviners, Sooth- " sayers, Prophets, or such who gain their " Livelihood, or receive Advantages by offi- " ciating in religious Affairs." For if these Dealers are numerous, they will force a Trade. And as the liberal Hand of the Magistrate can easily raise Swarms of this kind where they are already but in a moderate proportion; so where, thro' any other cause, the Number of these increasing still, by degrees, is suffer'd to grow beyond a certain measure, they will soon raise such a Ferment in Mens Minds, as will at least compel the Magistrate, however sensible of the Grievance, to be cautious in proceeding to a Reform.
 where,

WE may observe in other necessary Professions, rais'd on the Infirmitys and Defects of Mankind, (as for instance, in Law and Physick) "That with the least help from the Bounty or "Beneficence of the Magistrate, the Number "of the Professors, and the Subject-matter of "the Profession, is found over and above increasing." New Difficultys are started: New Subjects of Contention: Deeds and Instruments of Law grow more numerous and prolix: Hypotheses, Methods, Regimens, more various; and the Materia Medica more extensive and abundant. What, in process of time, must therefore naturally have happen'd in the case of Religion, among the EGYPTIANS, may easily be gather'd.

NOR is it strange that we shou'd find the * Property and Power of the Egyptian Priesthood, in antient

* Which was one Third. Βελομένην δὲ τὸν ἸΣΙΝ, &c. Sed cum Isis lucyō etiam Sacerdotes invitare vellet ad cultus istos (nempe OSIRIDIS, mariti fatō

antient days, arriv'd to such a height, as in a manner to have swallow'd up the State and Monarchy. A worse Accident befel the Persian Crown, of which the Hierarchy having got absolute possession, had once a fair Chance for Universal Empire. Now that the Persian or Babylonian Hierarchy was much after the Model of the Egyptian, tho different perhaps in Rites and Ceremonys, we may well judge; not only from the History of the * MAGI, but from what is recorded of antient Colonys sent long before by the Egyptians into † Chaldea and the adjacent Countrys. And whether the Ethiopian Model was from that of EGYPT, or the Egyptian from that of ETHIOPIA, (for ‡ each Nation had its pretence) we know by remarkable  Effects, that the Ethiopian Empire was once in the same Condition:

fato funtli) tertiam eis terre partem eis προσόδους, ad Deorum ministeria & sacra munia, fruendum donavit. Diod. Sic. lib. 1. A remarkable Effect of Female Superstition! See also the Passage of the same Historian, cited above, pag. 43. in the Notes.

* See Treatise II. viz. Sensus Communis, (VOL. I.) pag. 85, &c. Herodotus gives us the History at length in his third Book.

† Diod. Sic. lib. 1. p. 17, & 73.

‡ Herodot. Euterpe; & Diod. Sic. lib. 3.

 Κατὰ τὴν Μερόην οἱ πρὸς τὰς τῶν Θεῶν θεραπείας τῆς ἡγεμονίας διαλέγοντες ἱερεῖς, &c. Qui in mense (Urbe, & Insula primaria Athiopum) Deorum cultus & honores administrant Sacerdotes,) Ordo autem hic maxima pollet auctoritate) quamcumque ipsis in mentem venerit, misso ad Regem nuncio, vita se illum abdicare jubent. Oraclis enim Deorum hoc edici: nec fas esse ab ullo mortali-lium,

Condition: the State having been wholly swallow'd in the exorbitant Power of their landed Hierarchy. So true it is, "That Dominion " must naturally follow Property." Nor is it possible, as I conceive, for any State or Monarchy to withstand the Encroachments of a growing Hierarchy, founded on the Model of these Egyptian and Asiatick Priesthoods. No SUPERSTITION will ever be wanting among the Ignorant and Vulgar, whilst the Able and Crafty have a power to gain Inheritances and Possessions by working on this human Weakness. This is a Fund which, by these Allowances, will prove inexhaustible. New Modes of Worship, new Miracles, new Heroes, Saints, Divinities (which serve as new Occasions for sacred DONATIVES) will be easily supply'd on the part of the religious lium, quod Dii immortales jufferint, contemni.—So much for their Kings. For as to Subjects, the Manner was related a little before. Unus ex liistoribus ad Regem mittitur, signum mortis præferens: quo ille viso, domum abiens sibi Mortem consciscit. This, the People of our days wou'd call Passive-Obedience and Priestcraft, with a witness. But our Historian proceeds—Et per superiores quidem atates, non armis aut vi coacti, sed mere Superstitionis ἰσὶ αὐτῆς τῆς θεοσιδαιμονίας; fascino, mente capti Reges, Sacerdotibus morem gesferunt: donec ERGAMENTES, Æthiopum rex, (PTOLOMAEO secundo rege rege potiente) Græcorum Discipline & Philosophiæ particeps, mandata illa primis aspiciari ausus fuit. Nam hic animo, qui Regem deceret, sumto, cum militum manu in locum inaccessum, ubi aureum fuit Templum Æthiopum, profectus; omnes illos Sacrificos jugulavit, & abolito more pristino, sacra pro arbitrio suo instauravit. Diod. Sic. lib. 3.

Orders;

Orders; whilst the Civil Magistrate authorizes the accumulative DONATION, and neither restrains the Number or Possessions of the Sacred Body.

WE find, withal, that in the early days of this antient Priestly Nation of whom we have been speaking, 'twas thought expedient also, for the increase of Devotion, to enlarge their System of DEITY; and either by mystical Genealogy, Consecration, or Canonization, to multiply their reveal'd Objects of Worship, and raise new Personages of DIVINITY in their Religion. They proceeded, it seems, in process of time, to increase the Number* of their Gods, so far that, at last, they became in a manner numberless. What odd Shapes, Species, and Forms of Deity were in latter times exhibited, is well known. Scarce an Animal or Plant but was adopted into some share of Divinity.

† *Osanctas Gentes, quibus hæc nascuntur in hortis
Numina!*——

No wonder if by a Nation so abounding in religious Orders, spiritual Conquests were sought

* 'Ως δὲ αὐτοὶ λέγουσι, ἔτι εἰσὶ ἐπικρισχίλια καὶ μῦθια ἐς Ἀμασιν βασιλευσάντα, ἐπὶ τε ῥ' αὖ τῶν ὑκτῶ θεῶν οἱ δωδέκα θεοὶ ἐγένοντο, Herodot. lib. 2. sect. 43.

† Juvenal. Sat. 15. ver. 10.

in foreign Countrys, * Colonys led abroad, and Missionarys detach'd, on Expeditions, in this prosperous Service. 'Twas thus a Zealot-People, influenc'd of old by their very Region and Climate, and who thro' a long Tract of Time, under a peculiar Policy, had been rais'd both by Art and Nature to an immense Growth in religious Science and Mystery; came by degrees to spread their variety of Rites and Ceremonys, their distinguishing Marks of separate Worshippings and secrete Communitys, thro' the distant World; but chiefly thro' their neighbouring and dependent Countrys.

WE understand from History, that even when the EGYPTIAN State was least powerful in Arms, it was still respected for its Religion and Mysterys. It drew Strangers from all Parts to behold its Wonders. And the Fertility of its Soil forc'd the adjacent People, and wandring Nations who liv'd dispers'd in single Tribes, to visit them, court their Alliance, and solicit a Trade and Commerce with them, on whatsoever Terms. The Strangers, no doubt, might well receive religious Rites and Doctrines from those, to whom they ow'd their Maintenance and Bread.

'Οι δὲ ἐν Ἀργύριος. &c. Ægyptii plurimas colonias ex Ægypto in Orbem terrarum disseminatas fuisse dicunt. In Babylonem colonos deduxit Belus, qui Neptuni & Libye filius habetur: & posita ad Euphratem sede, instituit Sacerdotes ad morem Ægyptiorum exemptos impensis & oneribus publicis, quos Babylonii vocant Chaldaeos, qui, exemplo Sacerdotum & Physicorum, Astrologorumque in Ægypto, observant stellas. Diod. Sic. lib. 1. p. 17. Ibid. p. 72.

BEFORE the time that ISRAEL was constrain'd to go down to EGYPT, and sue for Maintenance to these powerful Dynastys or Low-Land States, the Holy Patriarch * ABRAHAM himself had been necessitated to this Compliance on the same account. He apply'd in the same manner to the EGYPTIAN Court. He was at first well receiv'd, and handsomly presented; but afterwards ill used, and out of favour with the Prince, yet suffer'd to depart the Kingdom, and retire with his Effects; without any attempt of recalling him again by force, as it happen'd in the case of his Posterity. 'Tis certain that if this holy Patriarch, who first instituted the sacred Rite of Circumcision within his own Family or Tribe, had no regard to any Policy or Religion of the EGYPTIANS; yet he had formerly been a Guest and Inhabitant in EGYPT (where † Historians mention this to have been

a

* Gen. cap. xii. ver. 10. &c.

† Abramus, quando Ægyptum ingressus est, nondum circumcisus erat, neque per annos amplius viginti post reditum.——Illius posteri circumcisi sunt & ante introitum, & dum in Ægypto commorati sunt: post exitum vero non sunt circumcisi, quandiu vixit Moses.——Fecit itaque Josue cultros lapideos, et circumcidit filios Israel in Colle Præputiorum. Factum Deus ratum habuit, dixitque, Hodie ἀφείλον τὴν ὀνειδισμὸν Ἀγύπτου ἀφ' ὑμῶν, abstuli opprobrium Ægypti a vobis. Josue cap. 5. ver. 3. Tam Ægyptiis quam

a national Rite;) long * ere he had receiv'd any divine Notice or Revelation, concerning this Affair. Nor was it in Religion merely that this reverend Guest was said to have deriv'd Knowledge and Learning from the EGYPTIANS. 'Twas from this Parent-Country of occult Sciences, that he was presum'd, together with other Wisdom, to have learnt that of † judicial Astrology; as his Successors did afterwards other prophetic and miraculous Arts, proper to the MAGI, or Priesthood of this Land.

ONE cannot indeed but observe, in after times, the strange Adherence and servile Dependency of the whole HEBREW Race on the EGYPTIAN Nation. It appears that tho they were of old abus'd in the Person of their grand Patriarch; tho afterwards held in bondage, and treated as the most abject Slaves; tho twice expel'd, or necessitated to save themselves by flight, out of this oppressive Region; yet in the very instant of their last Retreat, whilst quam Judæis opprobrio erant in circumcisi.———Apud Ægyptios circumcisi denique ritus : et ussissimus fuit, et ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ab ipso initio institutus. Illi nullorum aliorum hominum institutis uti volunt. Herodot. lib. 2. cap. 91. Τὰ αἰδοῖα ἢ ἄλλοι μὲν ἕως ἡμερῶν ἐγένοντο, πλὴν ὅσοι ἀπὸ τέτων ἔμαθον Ἀιγύπτῳ δὲ περιτάμονται. Herod. lib. 2. cap. 36. Marsham's Chronicon Canon, p. 72.

* Gen. cap. xvii.

† Julius Firmicus, apud Marshamum, p. 452, 453.

they were yet on their March, conducted by visible Divinity, supply'd and fed from Heaven, and supported by continual Miracles; they notwithstanding inclin'd so strongly to the Manners, the Religion, Rites, Diet, Customs, Laws, and Constitutions of their tyrannical Masters, that it was with the utmost difficulty they cou'd be with-held from * returning again into the same Subjection. Nor cou'd their great Captains and Legislators prevent their † relapsing

* It can scarce be said in reality, from what appears in Holy Writ, that their retreat was voluntary. And for the Historians of other Nations, they have presum'd to assert that this People was actually expell'd EGYPT on account of their Leprosy; to which the Jewish Laws appear to have so great a Reference. Thus TACITUS: Plurimi auctores consentiunt, orta per Ægyptum tale, quæ corpora sedaret, regem Ochorim, adito Hammonis oraculo, remedium petentem, purgare regnum, et id genus hominum ut invisum Deis, alias in terras avehere iussim. Sic conquestum collectumque Vulgus, ——— Mosén unum monuisse, &c. Hist. lib. 5. c. 3. Ægypti, quom scabiem & vitiliginem paterentur, responso moniti eum (Mosén) cum ægris, ne pestis ad plures serperet, terminis Ægypti pellunt. Dux igitur exulion factus, sacra Ægyptiorum furto abstulit: quæ repetentes armis Ægyptii, domum redire tempestatibus compulsi sunt. Justin. lib. 36. c. 2. And in Marsham we find this remarkable Citation from Manetho: Amenophin regem affeclasse θεῶν γενέθαι θεατῆρ, ὡσπερ Ωρ εἰς τῶν πορὸ αὐτῶ βασιλευκῶτων, Deorum esse contemptorem, sicut Orum quendam Regum priorum. Cui responsum est, ὅτι δυνήσεται θεὸς ἰδεῖν, quod possit vedere Deos, si Regionem a leprosis & immundis hominibus purgaret. Chronicus Canon, p. 52.

† See what is cited above (p. 52. in the Notes from Marsham) of the Jews returning to Circumcision under JOSHUA, after a Generation's Intermission: this being approv'd by God, for the reason given, “That it was taking from them the Reproach of the Egyptians, or what render'd them

lapping perpetually into the same Worship to which they had been so long accustom'd.

How far the divine Providence might have indulg'd the stubborn Habit and stupid Humour of this People, by giving them Laws (as the * Prophet says) which he himself approv'd not,

“ them odious and impious in the Eyes of that People.” Compare with this the Passage concerning MOSES himself, Exod. iv. 18, 25, 26. (together with Acts vii. 30, 34.) where in regard to the Egyptians, to whom he was now returning when fourscore years of Age, he appears to have Circumcised his Children, and taken off this National Reproach: ZIPPORAH his Wife, nevertheless, reproaching him with the Bloodiness of the Deed; to which she appears to have been a Party only thro' Necessity, and in fear rather of her Husband than of GOD.

* Ezek. xx. 25. Acts xv. 10. Of these Egyptian Institutions receiv'd amongst the Jews, see our SPENCER. Cum morum quorundam antiquorum toleratio vi magna polleret, ad Hebræorum animos Dei Legi & cultui conciliandos, & a Reformatione Mosaica invidiam omnem amoliretur; maxime conveniebat, ut Deus ritus aliquos antiquitus usitatos in sacrorum sanctorum numerum assumeret, & Lex a Mose data speciem aliquam cultus olim recepti ferret.——Ita nempe nati scilicet erant Israelitæ, ex Egypto recessu egressi, quod Deos pene necesse esset (humanitus loqui fas sit) rituum aliquorum veterum usum iis indulgere, & illius instituta ad eorum morem & modulum accommodare. Nam populus erat a teneris Egypti moribus assuetus, & in iis multorum annorum usu confirmatus.——Hebræi, non tantum Egypti moribus assueti, sed etiam refractarii fuerunt.——Quemadmodum cujusque regionis et terræ populo sua sunt ingenia, moresque proprii, ita Natura gentem Hebræorum, præter ceteros Orbis Incolas, ingenio moroso, difficili, & ad insaniam usque pertinaci, finxit.——Cum itaque veteres Hebræi moribus essent asperis & asperatis adeo, populi conditio postulavit, ut Deos ritus aliquos usu veteri firmatos iis concederet, & ἡμιμὴν λατρείαν τῇ ἑαυτῶν ἀθηνεία συμπόνησαν (uti loquitur Theodoretus) cultum legalem not, I have no Intention to examine. This only I pretend to infer from what has been advanc'd; " That the Manners, Opinions, " Rites, and Customs of the EGYPTIANS, " had, in the earliest times, and from Gene- " ration to Generation, strongly influenc'd " the HEBREW People (their Guests, and " Subjects) and had undoubtedly gain'd " a powerful Ascendency over their Na- " tures."

How extravagant soever the multitude of the EGYPTIAN Superstitions may appear, 'tis certain that their Doctrine and Wisdom were in high repute, since it is taken notice of in Holy Scripture, as no small Advantage even to eorum infirmitati accommodatum instituerit.——Hebræi superstitioso gens erant & omni pene literatura destituti. Quam alte Gentium Superstitionibus immergebantur, e legibus intelligere licet, que populo tanquam remedia superstitionis imponebantur. Contumax autem bellua superstitioni, si præsertim ab ignorantia tenebris novam ferociam & contumaciam hausserit. Facile vero credi potest, Israelitas, nuper e servorum domo liberatos, artium humaniorum rudes fuisse, & sic quàmquam supra lateres atque allium Egypti sapuisse. Quando itaque Dei jam negotium esset, cum Populo tam barbaro, & superstitioni tam impense dedito; pene necessè fuit, ut aliquid eorum infirmitati daret, eosque dolo quodam (non argumentis) ad seipsum alliceret. Nullum Animal superstizioso, rudi præcipue, inrosus est, aut majori arte tractandum. SPENCERUS de Leg. Hebr. pag. 627, 628, 629.

MOSES himself, “ * That he had imbib'd the “ Wisdom of this Nation;” which, as is well known, lay chiefly among their Priests and MAGI.

BEFORE the Time that the great Hebrew Legislator receiv'd his Education among these Sages a † Hebrew Slave, who came a Youth into the Egyptian Court, had already grown so powerful in this kind of Wisdom, as to out-do the chief Diviners, Prognosticators and Interpreters of EGYPT. He rais'd himself to be chief Minister to a Prince, who, following his Advice, obtain'd in a Manner the whole Property, and consequently the absolute Dominion of that Land. But to what height of Power the establish'd Priesthood was arriv'd even at that time, may be conjectur'd hence; “ That the “ Crown (to speak in a modern Style) “ offer'd “ not to meddle with the Church-Lands;” and that in this great Revolution nothing was at-

* (1.) Καὶ παιδείθη Μωσῆς ΠΑΣΗΣ ΣΟΦΙΑΣ Αἰγυπτίαι· ἦ δὲ δυνατὸς ἐν λόγοις καὶ ἐν ἔργοις. Act. Apost. cap. vii. v. 22.

(2.) Exod. cap. vii. ver. 11, & 22.

(3.) Ibid. cap. viii. ver. 7.

(4.) Juslin. lib. 36. cap. 2.

† Gen. cap. xxxix, &c. Minimus etate inter fratres Joseph fuit, cuius excellens ingenium veriti fratres clam interceptum peregrinis Mercatoribus vendiderunt. A quibus deportatus in Ægyptum, cum magicas ibi artes scelerati ingenio percipisset brevi ipse Regi percarus fuit. Juslin. lib. 36. c. 2.

tempted, so much as by way of Purchase or Exchange*, in prejudice of this Landed Clergy: The prime Minister himself having join'd his Interest with theirs, and enter'd † by Marriage into their Alliance. And in this he was follow'd by the great Founder of the Hebrew-State. For he also ‡ match'd himself with the Priesthood of some of the neighbouring Nations, and Traders  into EGYPT, long ere his Establishment of the HEBREW Religion and Commonwealth. Nor had he perfected his Model, till he consulted the foreign Priest his †† Father-in-law, to whose Advice he paid such remarkable Deference.

BUT TO resume the Subject of our Speculation, concerning the wide Diffusion of the Priestly Science or Function; it appears from what has been said, that notwithstanding the EGYPTIAN Priesthood was, by antient Establishment, hereditary; the Skill of Divining, Soothsaying, and Magick was communicated to others besides their national sacred Body: and that the Wisdom of the MAGICIANS, their

* Gen. xlvii. ver. 22, 26.

† Gen. xli. ver. 45.

‡ Exod. chap. iii. ver. 1. and chap. xviii. ver. 1, &c.

 Such were the Midianites, Gen. xxxvii. ver. 28, 36.

†† Exod. xviii. ver. 17—24.

Power of Miracles, their Interpretation of Dreams and Visions, and their Art of adminiftrating in Divine Affairs, were entrusted even to Foreigners who refided amongst them.

IT appears, withal, from thefe Confiderations, how apt the religious Profefſion was to ſpread it-ſelf widely in this Region of the World; and what Efforts wou'd naturally be made by the more neceſſitous of theſe unlimited Profefſors, towards a Fortune, or Maintenance, for themſelves and their Succeſſors.

COMMON Arithmetick will, in this Caſe, demonſtrate to us, “ That as the Proportion “ of ſo many Lay-men to each Prieſt grew every “ day leſs and leſs, ſo the Wants and Neceſſi-“ tys of each Prieſt muſt grow more and more.”
The Magiſtrate too, who according to this EGYPTIAN Regulation had reſign'd his Title or ſhare of Right in ſacred Things, cou'd no longer govern, as he pleas'd, in theſe Affairs, or check the growing Number of theſe Profefſors. The ſpiritual Generations were left to prey on others, and (like Fiſh of Prey) even on themſelves, when deſtitute of other Capture, and confin'd within too narrow Limits. What Method, therefore, was there left to heighten the ZEAL of Worſhippers, and augment their Liberality, but “ to foment their Emulation, pre“ fer Worship to Worship, Faith to Faith; and “ turn the Spirit of ENTHUSIASM to the side “ of sacred Horror, religious Antipathy, and “ mutual Discord between Worshippers?

THUS Provinces and Nations were divided by the most contrary Rites and Customs which cou'd be devis'd, in order to create the strongest Aversion possible between Creatures of like Species. For when all other Animositys are allay'd, and Anger of the fiercest kind appeas'd, the religious Hatred, we find, continues still as it began, without Provocation or voluntary Offence. The presum'd Misbeliever and Blasphemer, as one rejected and abhor'd of GOD, is thro' a pious Imitation abhor'd by the adverse Worshipper, whose Enmity must naturally increase as his religious Zeal increases.

FROM hence the Opposition rose of Temple against Temple, Profelyte against Profelyte. The most zealous Worship of one GOD, was best express'd (as they conceiv'd) by the open defiance of another. SIR-Names and Titles of DIVINITY pass'd as Watch-words. He who had not the SYMBOL, nor cou'd give the Word. receiv'd the Knock.

Down with him! Kill him! Merit Heaven thereby;

As our * Poet has it in his AMERICAN Tragedy.

NOR did † PHILOSOPHY, when introduc'd into Religion, extinguish, but rather inflame this Zeal: as we may shew perhaps in our following Chapter more particularly; if we return again, as is likely, to this Subject. For this, we perceive, is of a kind apt enough to grow upon our hands. We shall here, therefore, observe only what is obvious to every Student in sacred Antiquity, That from the contentious Learning and Sophistry of the ancient Schools (when true Science, Philosophy, and Arts were already deep in their ‡ Decline) religious Problems of a like contentious Form sprang up; and certain Doctrinal TESTS were fram'd, by which religious Partys were engag'd and list'd against one another, with more Animosity than in any other Cause or Quarrel had been ever known. Thus religious Massacres began, and were carry'd on; Temples were demo-

* * Dryden, Indian Emperor, Act 5. Scene 2.

† Infra, pag. 81.

‡ VOL. I. pag. 221, 222, & 350. in the Notes. And Infra, pag. 79, 80, 1, 2, &c.

list'd;

lish'd; holy Utenfils destroy'd; the facred
 Pomp trodden under-foot, insulted; and the Insulters in their turn expos'd to the same Treatment, in their Perfons as well as in their Worship. Thus Madnefs and Confufion were brought upon the World, like that CHAOS, which the Poet miraculoufly describes in the mouth of his mad Hero: When even in Celeftial Places, Diforder and Blindnefs reign'd:
 ——“ No Dawn of Light;

——* “ No Glimpfe or Starry Spark,
 “ But Gods met Gods, and juffled in the Dark.

* OEDIPUS of Dryden and Lee.

C H A P. II.

Judgment of Divines and grave Authors concerning Enthufiasm.——Reflections upon Scepticifm.——A Sceptick-Christian.——Judgment of the Inspir'd concerning their own Inspirations.——Knowledge and Belief.——History of Religion refum'd.——ZEAL Offensive and Defensive.——A Church in Danger.——Perfecution.——Policy of the Church of ROME.

WHAT I had to remark, of my own concerning ENTHUSIASM, I have thus difpatch'd: What Others have remark'd on the fame Subject, I may, as an Apologift to another Author, be allow'd to cite; efppecially if I take notice only of what has been dropt very naturally by fome of our moft approv'd Authors, and ableft Divines.

IT has been thought an odd kind of Temerity, in our Author, to assert, * “ That even “ ATHEISM it-felf was not wholly exempt from

* Viz. In his Letter concerning Enthufiasm, VOL. I.

“ Enthufiasm

“ Enthufiasm ; That there have been in reality “ Enthufiaftical Atheifts ; and That even the “ Spirit of Martyrdom cou’d, upon occafion, ex“ ert it-felf as well in this Caufe, as in any other .”
 Now, befides what has been intimated in the preceding Chapter, and what in fact may be demonftrated from the Examples of VANINUS and other Martyrs of a like Principle, we may hear an * excellent and learned Divine, of higheft Authority at home, and Fame abroad ; who after having defcrib’d an Enthufiaftical Atheift and one atheiftically inspir’d, fays of this very fort of Men, “ That they are Fanaticks too ; however “ that word feems to have a more peculiar re“ fpect to something of a DEITY : All Atheifts be“ ing that blind Goddeffs-NATURE’S Fanaticks .”

AND again : “ All Atheifts (fays he) are pof-“ fefs’d with a certain kind of Madnefs, that “ may be call’d † Pneumatophobia, that makes “ them have an irrational but desperate Ab“ horrence

* Dr. CUDWORMH’S Intellectual System, pag. 134.

† The good Doctor makes ufe, here, of a Stroke of Raillery againft the over-frighted anti-fuperftitious Gentlemen, with whom our Author reafons at large in his fecond Treatife (viz. VOL. I. pag. 85, 86, &c. and 88, 89, &c.) ’Tis indeed the Nature of Fear, as of all other Paflions, when exceffive, to defeat its own End, and prevent us in the execution of what we naturally propofe to our-felves as our Advantage. SUPERSTITION

“ horrence from Spirits or incorporeal Sub“ stances; they being acted also, at the same “ time, with an Hylomania, whereby they mad“ ly dote upon Matter, and devoutly worship
 “ it, as the only NUMEN.”

WHAT the Power of EXTASY is, whether thro’ Melancholy, Wine, Love, or other natural Causes, another learned * Divine of our Church, in a Discourse upon Enthusiasm, sets forth: bringing an Example from ARISTOTLE, “ of “ a Syracusean Poet, who never versify’d so well,
 “ as when he was in his distracted Fits.” But as to Poets in general, compar’d with the religious STITION it-self is but a certain kind of Fear, which possessing us strongly with the apprehended Wrath or Displeasure of Divine Powers, hinders us from judging what those Powers are in themselves, or what Conduct of ours may, with best reason, be thought suitable to such highly rational and superior Natures. Now if from the Experience of many gross Delusions of a superstitious kind, the Course of this Fear begins to turn: ’tis natural for it to run, with equal violence, a contrary way. The extreme Passion for religious Objects passes into an Aversion. And a certain Horror and Dread of Imposition causes as great a Disturbance as even Imposition it-self had done before. In such a Situation as this, the Mind may easily be blinded; as well in one respect, as in the other. ’Tis plain, both these Disorders carry something with them which discover us to be in some manner beside our Reason, and out of the right use of Judgment and Understanding. For how can we be said to intrust or use our Reason, if in any case we fear to be convinc’d? How are we Masters of our-selves, when we have acquir’d the Habit of bringing Horror, Aversion, Favour, Fondness, or any other Temper than that of mere Indifference and Impartiality, into the Judgment of Opinions, and Search of Truth?

* DR. MORE. Sect. II, 19, 20. and so on.

Enthusiasts,

Enthusiasts, he says: There is this Difference; “ That a Poet is an Enthusiast in jest: and an “ Enthusiast is a Poet in good earnest.”

“ ’Tis a strong Temptation * (says the Doctor) with a Melancholist, when he feels a Storm of Devotion and Zeal come upon him like a “ mighty Wind; his Heart being full of Affection, his Head pregnant with clear and sensible Representations, and his Mouth flowing and streaming with fit and powerful Expressions, such as would astonish an ordinary † Auditory; ’tis, I say, a shrewd Temptation to him, to think it the very Spirit of God that then moves supernaturally in him; whereas all that Excess of Zeal and Affection, and Fluency of Words, is most palpably to be resolv’d into the power of Melancholy, which is a kind of natural Inebriation.”

THE learned Doctor, with much pains afterwards, and by help of the Peripatetick Phi-

* Sect. 16.

† It appears from hence, that in the Notion which this learned Divine gives us of ENTHUSIASM, he comprehends the social or popular Genius of the Passion; agreeably with what our Author in his Letter concerning Enthusiasm (p. 15, 16, 44, 45.) has said of the Influence and Power of the Assembly and Auditory it-self, and of the communicative Force and rapid Progress of this extatick Fervor, once kindled, and set in Action.

lofophy, explains this Enthufialtick Inebriation, and fhews in particular*, “ How the Vapours “ and Fumes of Melancholy partake of the nature of Wine.”

ONE might conjecture from hence, that the malicious Oppofers of early Chriftianity were not un-ver’d in this Philofophy; when they fophiftically objected againft the apparent Force of the Divine Spirit fpeaking in divers Languages, and attributed it “ To the Power of new Wine.”

BUT our devout and zealous Doctor feems to go yet further. For befides what he fays of the † Enthufialtick Power of Fancy in Atheifts, he calls Melancholy  a pertinacious and religious Complexion; and afferts, “ That there is not any “ true fpiritual Grace from God, but this mere “ natural Conftitution, according to the feveral Tempers and Workings of it, will not “ only refemble, but fometimes feem to outrifrip.” And after fpeaking of †† Prophetical ENTHUSIASM, and eftablifhing (as our Author †† does) a Legitimate and a Ballard-fort, he afferts and juftifies the (a) Devotional ENTHUSIASM (as he

* Sect. 20, 21, 23, 26.

† Acts ii 13.

‡ Sect. 1.

 Sect. 15.

†† Sect. 30, & 57.

‡‡ VOL. I. p. 53.

(a) Sect. 63.

calls it) of holy and sincere Souls, and ascribes this also to MELANCHOLY.

HE allows, “ That the Soul may sink so far “ into Phantasms, as not to recover the use of “ her free Facultys; and that this enormous “ Strength of Imagination does not only beget
 “ the Belief of mad internal Apprehensions,
 “ but is able to assure us of the Presence of “ external Objects which are not.” He adds,
 “ That what Custom and Education do by de“ grees, distemper’d FANCY may do in a “ shorter time.” And speaking * of EXTASY and the Power of MELANCHOLY in Extatick
Fancies, he says, “ That what the Imagination
 “ then puts forth, of herself, is as clear as broad “ day; and the Perception of the Soul at least “ as strong and vigorous, as at any time in be“ holding things awake.”

FROM whence the Doctor infers, “ That “ the Strength of Perception is no sure Ground
 “ of Truth.”

HAD any other than a reverend Father of our Church express’d himself in this manner, he must have been contented perhaps to bear a sufficient Charge of Scepticism.

* Sect. 28.

'T WAS good fortune in my Lord BACON'S Case, that he shou'd have escap'd being call'd an ATHEIST, or a SCEPTICK, when speaking in a solemn manner of the Religious Passion, the Ground of SUPERSTITION or ENTHUSIASM, (which he also terms * a Panick) he derives it from an Imperfection in the Creation, Make, or natural Constitution of Man, How far the Author of the † Letter differs from this Author in his Opinion both of the End and Foundation of this Passion, may appear from what has been said above. And, in general, from what we read in the other succeed-

* NATURA RERUM omnibus Vicentibus indidit Metum & Formidinem, Vite atque Essentia sua conservatricem, ac Mala ingruentia vitantem & depolentem. Veritatem eadem Natura modum tenere nescia est, sed Timoribus fatalibus semper vanos & inanes admiscet: adeo ut omnia (si intus conspici darentur) Panicis Terroribus plenissima sint, praesertim humana; & maxime omnium apud Vulgum, qui Superstitione (quae vere nihil aliud quam Panicus Terror est) in immensum laborat & agitur; praecipue temporibus duris, & trepidis, & adversis. Franciscus Bacon de Augment. Scient. lib. 2. c. 13.

The Author of the Letter, I dare say, wou'd have expected no quarter from his Criticks, had he express'd himself as this celebrated Author here quoted: who, by his Natura Rerum, can mean nothing less than the Universal Dispensing Nature, erring blindly in the very first Design, Contrivance, or original Frame of Things; according to the Opinion of EPICURUS himself, whom this Author, immediately after, cites with Praise.

† Viz. The Letter concerning ENTHUSIASM, above, VOL. I.

ing Treatises of our Author, we may venture to say of him with Assurance, “ That he is as “ little a SCEPTICK (according to the vulgar “ Sense of that word) as he is Epicurean or “ Atheist.” This may be prov’d sufficiently from his Philosophy: And for any thing higher, ’tis what he no-where presumes to treat; having forbore in particular to mention any Holy Mysteries of our Religion, or sacred Article of our Belief.

As for what relates to * Revelation in general, if I mistake not our Author’s meaning, he professes to believe, as far as is possible for any one who himself had never experienc’d any Divine Communication, whether by Dream, Vision, Apparition, or other supernatural Operation; nor was ever present as Eye-witness of any Sign, Prodigy, or Miracle whatsoever. Many of these, † he observes, are at this day pretendedly exhibited in the World, with an Endeavour of giving them the perfect Air and exact Resemblance of those recorded in Holy Writ. He speaks indeed with Contempt of the Mockery of modern Miracles and Inspiration. And as to all Pretences to things of this kind in our present Age; he seems inclin'd to look upon 'em as no better than mere Impofsure or Delufion. But for what is recorded of Ages heretofore, he seems to resign his Judgment, with intire Condefcenfion, to his Superiors. He pretends not to frame any certain or positive Opinion of his own, notwithstanding his beft Searches into Antiquity, and the Nature of religious Record and Tradition: but on all occasions fubmits moft willingly, and with full Confidence and Truft, to the * Opinions by Law eftablifh'd. And if this be not fufficient to free him from the reproach of SCEPTICISM, he muft, for ought I fee, be content to undergo it.

* Infra, pag. 315.

† VOL. pag. 44, 45, &c. And VOL. II. pag. 322, 323, &c.

To fay truth, I have often wonder'd to find fuch a Difurbance rais'd about the fimple name of † SCEPTICK. 'Tis certain that, in its original and plain fignification, the word imports no more than barely, “ That State “ or Frame of Mind in which every one re- “ mains, on every Subject of which he is not certain.” He who is certain, or prefumes to fay, he knows, is in that particular, whether he be miftaken or in the right, a DOGMATIST. Between thefe two States or Situations of Mind, there can be no medium. For he who says, “That he believes for certain, or is assur'd of what he believes;” either speaks ridiculouſly, or ſays in effect, “That he believes ſtrongly, but is not ſure.” So that whoever is not conſcious of Revelation, nor has certain Knowledge of any Miracle or Sign, can be no more than SCEPTICK in the Caſe: And the beſt Chriſtian in the World, who being deſtitute of the means of Certainty, depends only on Hiſtory and Tradition for his Belief in theſe Particulars, is at beſt but a Sceptick-Chriſtian. He has no more than a nicely critical * Hiſtorical Faith, ſubject to various Speculations, and a thouſand different Criticisms of Languages and Literature.

* VOL. I. pag. 260, 1, 2, &c. And Infra, pag. 103, 231, 315, 316.

† VOL. II. pag. 205, 206, & 323, &c. And Infra, pag. 317, 318, &c.

THIS he will naturally find to be the Caſe, if he attempts to ſearch into Originals, in order to be his own Judge, and proceed on the bottom of his own Diſcernment, an Underſtanding. If, on the other hand, he is no Critick, nor competently learned in theſe ORIGINALS; 'tis plain he can have no original Judgment of his own; but muſt rely ſtill on the Opinion of thoſe who have opportunity to examine ſuch matters, and whom he takes to be the unbiaſ'd and difinterested Judges of thefe religious Narratives. His Faith is not in antient Facts or Persons, nor in the antient Writ, or Primitive Records; nor in the fucceffive Collators or Conſervators of thefe Records (for of thefe he is unable to take cognizance :) But his Confidence and Truſt muſt be in thoſe modern Men, or Societys of Men, to whom the Publick, or He himſelf, aſcribes the Judgment of theſe Records, and commits the Determination of ſacred Writ, and genuine Story.

* VOL. p. 146, 147. And Infra, p. 316, 317, 320, &c.

LET the Perſon ſeem ever ſo poſitive or dogmatical in theſe high Points of Learning; he is yet in reality no Dogmatist, nor can any way free himſelf from a certain kind of SCEPTICISM. He muſt know himſelf ſtill capable of Doubting: Or if, for fear of it, he ſtrives to baniſh every oppoſite Thought, and reſolves not ſo much as to deliberate on the Caſe; this ſtill will not acquit him. So far are we from being able to be ſure when we have a mind; that indeed we can never be thorowly ſure, but then only when we can't help it, and find of neceſſity we muſt be ſo, whether we will or not. Even the higheſt implicit Faith is in reality no more than a kind of paſſive SCEPTICISM; " A Reſolution to examine, recol-

“ to the prejudice of that Belief, which having “ once espous’d, we are ever afterwards afraid
 “ to lose.”

IF I might be allow’d to imitate our Author, in daring to touch now and then upon the Characters of our Divine Worthys, I shou’d, upon this Subject of BELIEF, observe how fair and generous the great Christian Convert and learned APOSTLE has shewn himself in his Sacred Writings. Notwithstanding he had himself an original Testimony and Revelation from Heaven, on which he grounded his Conversion; notwithstanding he had in his own Person the Experience of outward Miracles and inward Communications; he condescended still, on many occasions, to speak sceptically, and with some Hesitation and Reserve, as to the Certainty of these Divine Exhibitions. In his account of some Transactions of this kind, himself being the Witness, and speaking (as we may presume) of his own Person, and proper Vision, * he says only that “ He knew a Man: whether in the Body or out of it, he cannot tell. But such a one caught up to the third Heaven he knew formerly (he says) above fourteen years before his then Writing.” And when in another Capacity the same inspir’d Writer, giving Precepts to his Disciples, distinguishes what

* 2 Cor. xii. ver. 2, 3.

* he writes by Divine Commission from what he delivers as his own Judgment and private Opinion, he condescends nevertheless to speak as one no way positive, or Master of any absolute Criterion in the Case. And in several subsequent † Passages he expresses himself as under some kind of Doubt how to judge or determine certainly, “ Whether he writes by Inspiration “ or otherwise,” He only “ thinks he has the “ Spirit.” He “ is not sure,” nor wou’d have us to depend on him as positive or certain in a matter of so nice Discernment.

THE holy Founders and inspir’d Authors of our Religion requir’d not, it seems, so strict an Assent, or such implicit Faith in behalf of their original Writings and Revelations, as later un-inspir’d Doctors, without the help of Divine Testimony, or any Miracle on their side, have requir’d in behalf of their own Comments and Interpretations. The earliest and worst of Hereticks, ’tis said, were those call’d Gnosticks, who took their name from an audacious Pretence to certain Knowledge and Comprehension of the greatest Mysterys of Faith. If the most dangerous State of Opinion was this dogmatical and presumptuous sort; the safest,

* 1 Cor. vii. 10, 12.

† 1 Cor. vii. 40.

in all likelihood, must be the sceptical and modest.

THERE is nothing more evident than that our Holy RELIGION, in its original Constitution, was set so far apart from all Philosophy or refin'd Speculation, that it seem'd in a manner diametrically oppos'd to it. A Man might have been not only a Sceptick in all the controverted Points of the Academys, or Schools of Learning, but even a perfect Stranger to all this kind; and yet compleat in his Religion, Faith, and Worship.

AMONG the polite Heathens of the antient World, these different Provinces of Religion and Philosophy were upheld, we know, without the least interfering with each other. If in some barbarous Nations the Philosopher and Priest were join'd in one, 'tis observable that the Mysterys, whatever they were, which sprang from this extraordinary Conjunction, were kept secret, and undivulg'd. 'Twas Satisfaction enough to the Priest-Philosopher, if the initiated Party preserv'd his Respect and Veneration for the Tradition and Worship of the Temple, by complying in every respect with the requisite Performances and Rites of Worship. No Account was afterwards taken of the Philosophick Faith of the Profelyte, or Worshipper flipper. His opinions were left to himself, and he might philosophize according to what foreign School or Sect he fancy'd. Even amongst the Jews themselves, the SADDUCEE (a Materialist, and Denyer of the Soul's Immortality) was as well admitted as the PHARISEE; who from the Schools of PYTHAGORAS, PLATO, or other latter Philosophers of GREECE, had learnt to reason upon immaterial Substances, and the natural Immortality of Souls.

'TIS no astonishing Reflection to observe how fast the World declin'd in * Wit and Sense, in Manhood, Reason, Science, and in every Art, when once the ROMAN Empire had prevail'd, and spread an universal Tyranny and Oppression over Mankind, Even the Romans themselves, after the early Sweets of one peaceful and long Reign, began to groan under that Yoke, of which they had been themselves the Imposers. How much more must other Nations, and mighty Cities, at a far distance, have abhor'd this Tyranny, and detested their common Servitude under a People who were themselves no better than mere Slaves?

IT may be look'd upon, no doubt, as providential, that at this time, and in these Cir-

* VOL. I. pag. 220, &c. And in the preceding Chapter, pag. 61.
 cumstances

cumstances of the World, there shou'd arise so high an expectation of a divine Deliverer; and that from the Eastern Parts and Confines of JUDEA the Opinion shou'd spread it-self of such a Deliverer to come, with Strength from Heaven sufficient to break that Empire, which no earthly Power remaining cou'd be thought sufficient to encounter. Nothing cou'd have better dispos'd the generality of Mankind, to receive the Evangelical Advice; whilst they mistook the News, as many of the first Christians plainly did, and understood the Promises of a MESSIAS in this temporal Sense, with respect to his second Coming, and sudden Reign here upon Earth.

* SUPERSTITION, in the mean while, cou'd not but naturally prevail, as Misery and Ignorance increas'd. The ROMAN Emperors, as they grew more barbarous, grew so much the more superstitious. The Lands and Revenues, as well as the Numbers of the Heathen Priests grew daily. And when the season came, that by means of a Convert-Emperor, the Heathen † Church-Lands, with an Increase
of

* VOL. I. pag. 133. And below, pag. 90.

† How rich and vast these were, especially in the latter times of that Empire, may be judg'd from what belong'd to the single order of the Vestals, of Power, became transfer'd to the Christian Clergy, 'twas no wonder if by such Riches and Authority they were in no small measure influenc'd and corrupted; as may be gather'd even from the accounts given us of these matters by themselves.

WHEN, together with this, the Schools of the antient † Philosophers, which had been long in their Decline, came now to be dissolv'd, and their sophistick Teachers became Vestals, and what we read of the Revenues belonging to the Temples of the Sun (as in the time of the Monster HELIOGABALUS) and of other Donations by other Emperors. But what may give us yet a greater Idea of these Riches, is, That in the latter Heathen Times, which grew more and more superstitious, the restraining Laws (or Statutes of Mort-main) by which Men had formerly been with-held from giving away Estates by Will, or otherwise, to Religious Uses, were repeal'd; and the Heathen-Church left, in this manner, as a bottomless Gulph and devouring Receptacle of Land and Treasure. Senatus-consulto, et Constitutionibus Principum, Heredes instituere concessum est Apollinem Didymæum, Dianam Ephesiam, Matrem Deorum, &c. Ulpianus post Cod. Theodos. pag. 92. apud Marsh.

This answers not amiss to the modern Practice and Expression of Making our Soul our Heir: Giving to God what has been taken sometimes with freedom enough from Man; and conveying Estates in such a manner in this World, as to make good Interest of them in another. The Reproach of the antient Satirist is at present out of doors. 'Tis no affront to Religion now-a-days to compute its Profits. And a Man might well be accounted dull, who, in our present Age, shou'd ask the Question, Dicite, Pontifices, in sacro quid facit Aurum? Perf. Sat. 2. See below, pag. 90, and 125. in the Notes, and 88. ibid.

† As above, pag. 61.

Ecclesiastical Instructors; the unnatural Union of Religion and Philosophy was compleated, and the monstrous Product of this Match appear'd soon in the World. The odd exterior Shapes of Deitys, Temples, and holy Utensils, which by the * EGYPTIAN Sects had been formerly set in battle against each other, were now metamorphos'd into philosophical Forms and Phantoms; and, like Flags and Banners, display'd in hostile manner, and borne offensively, by one Party against another. In former times those barbarous Nations above mention'd were the sole Warriors in these religious Causes; but now the whole World became engag'd: when instead of Storks and Crocodiles, other Ensigns were erected; when sophistical Chimeras, crabbed Notions, bombastick Phrases, Solecisms, Absurditys and a thousand Monsters of a scholastick Brood, were set on foot, and made the Subject of vulgar Animosity and Dispute.

HERE first began that Spirit of Bigotry which broke out in a more raging manner than had been ever known before, and was less capable of Temper or Moderation than any Species, Form, or Mixture of Religion in the antient World. Mysterys, which were heretofore treated with profound respect, and lay unexpos'd to vulgar Eyes, became publick and prostitute; being enforc'd with Terrors, and urg'd with Compulsion and Violence, on the unfitted Capacities and Apprehensions of Mankind. The very Jewish Traditions, and Cabalistical Learning underwent this Fate. That which was naturally the Subject of profound Speculation and Inquiry, was made the necessary Subject of a strict and absolute Assent. The allegorical, mythological Account of Sacred Things, was wholly inverted: Liberty of Judgment and Exposition taken away: No Ground left for Inquiry, Search, or Meditation: No Refuge from the dogmatical Spirit let loose. Every Quarter was taken up; every Portion prepossess'd. All was reduc'd to * Article and Proposition.

* Supra, pag. 42, 46, 57, 60. And VOL. I. pag. 350. in the Notes.

THUS a sort of philosophical ENTHUSIASM overspread the World. And BIGOTRY (a † Species of Superstition hardly known before) took place in Mens Affections, and arm'd 'em with a new Jealousy against each other. Bar-

* Infra. pag. 332, 3, 4. in the Notes. Et supra, p. 61.

† Let any one who considers distinctly the Meaning and Force of the word BIGOTRY, endeavour to render it in either of the antient Languages, and he will find how peculiar a Passion it implies; and how different from the mere Affection of Enthusiasm or Superstition.

barous Terms and Idioms were every day introduc'd: Monstrous Definitions invented and impos'd: New Schemes of Faith erected from time to time; and Hostilitys, the fiercest imaginable, exercis'd on these occasions. So that the ENTHUSIASM or ZEAL, which was usually shewn by Mankind in behalf of their particular Worship, and which for the most part had been hitherto defensive only, grew now to be univerfally of the offensive kind.

IT MAY be expected of me perhaps, that being fallen thus from remote Antiquity to later Periods, I shou'd speak on this occasion with more than ordinary Exactness and Regularity. It may be urg'd against me, that I talk here, as at random, and without-book: neglecting to produce my Authoritys, or continue my Quotations, according to the profess'd Style and Manner in which I began this present Chapter. But as there are many greater Privileges by way of Variation, Interruption, and Digression, allow'd to us Writers of MISCELLANY; and especially to such as are Commentators upon other Authors; I shall be content to remain mysterious in this respect, and explain my-self no further than by a noted Story; which seems to fute our Author's Purpose, and the present Argument.

'TIS observable from Holy Writ, that the antient EPHESIAN Worshippers, however zealous or enthusiastick they appear'd, had only a defensive kind of Zeal in behalf of their * Temple; whenever they thought in earnest, it was brought in danger. In the † Tumult which happen'd in that City near the time of the holy Apostle's Retreat, we have a remarkable instance of what our Author calls a religious Panick. As little Bigots as the People were, and as far from any offensive Zeal, yet when their establish'd Church came to be call'd in question, we see in what a manner their Zeal began to operate. ‡ “ All with one voice, about the space of two hours, cried out, saying, Great

* The Magnificence and Beauty of that Temple is well known to all who have form'd any Idea of the antient Grecian Arts and Workmanship. It seems to me to be remarkable in our learned and elegant Apostle, that tho' an Enemy to this mechanical Spirit of Religion in the EPHESIANS: yet according to his known Character, he accommodates himself to their Humour, and the natural Turn to their ENTHUSIASM; by writing to his Converts in a kind of Architēct-Style, and almost with a perpetual Allusion to Building, and to that Majesty, Order, and Beauty, of which their Temple was a Matter-piece. Ἐποικοδομηθέντες ἐπὶ τῶ θεμελίῳ τῶν Ἀποστόλων καὶ Προφητῶν, ὡς θεοῦ ἀκρογωνιαίη λίθος αὐτῶ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ. Ἐν ᾧ πᾶσα ἡ οἰκοδομὴ συναρμολογημένη αὐξοῖ εἰς ναὸν ἅγιον ἐν Κυρίῳ. Ἐν ᾧ καὶ ὑμεῖς συνοικοδομεῖσθε εἰς κατοικητήριον τοῦ θεοῦ ἐν πνεύματι.—Eph. ch. ii. ver. 20, 21, 22. And so Ch. iii. ver. 17, 18, &c. And Ch. iv. ver. 16, 29.

† Act. Apost. chap. xix. ver. 23.

‡ Ibid. ver. 28, &c. 31.

“ is DIANA of the Ephesians.” At the same time this Assembly was so confus’d, that * the greater part knew not wherefore they were come together; and consequently cou’d not understand why their Church was in any Danger. But the ENTHUSIASM was got up, and a PANICK Fear for the Church had struck the Multitude. It ran into a popular Rage or epidemical Phrenzy, and was communicated (as our † Author expresses it) “ by Aspect, or, as it were, “ by Contact, or Sympathy.”

IT must be confess’d, that there was besides these Motives a secret Spring which forwarded this ENTHUSIASM. For certain Partys concern’d, Men of Craft, and strictly united in Interest, had been secretly call’d together, and told, “ Gentlemen! ‡ (or Sirs!) Ye know that “ by this Mystery, or Craft, we have our “ Wealth. Ye see withal and have heard that “ not only here at EPHESUS, but almost thro’- “ out all ASIA, this PAUL has persuad- “ and turn’d away many People, by telling “ them, They are no real Gods who are figur’d, or “ wrought with hands: so that not only this our

* Act. Apost. chap. xix. ver. 32.

† Letter of Enthusiasm, VOL. I. pag. 15.

‡ Act. Apost. chap. xix. ver. 25, &c.

“ Craft is in danger; but also the Temple itself.”

NOTHING cou'd be more moderate and wise, nothing more agreeable to that magisterial Science or Policy, which our Author * recommends, than the Behaviour of the Town-Clerk or Recorder of the City, as he is represented on this occasion, in Holy Writ. I must confess indeed, he went pretty far in the use of this moderating Art. He ventur'd to assure the People, “ That every one acquiesc'd in their antient Worship of the great Goddesses, and in their Tradition of the Image, which fell down from JUPITER: That these were Facts undeniable: and That the new Sect neither meant the pulling down of their Church, nor so much as offer'd to blaspheme or speak amiss of their Goddesses.”

THIS, no doubt, was stretching the point sufficiently; as may be understood by the Event, in after time. One might perhaps have suspected this Recorder to have been himself a Dissenter, or at least an Occasional Conformist, who cou'd answer so roundly for the new Sect, and warrant the Church in Being secure of Damage, and out of all Danger for the future.

* Letter of Enthusiasm, VOL. I. pag. 16, &c.

Mean while the Tumult was appeas'd: No harm befel the Temple for that time. The new Sect acquiesc'd in what had been spoken on their behalf. They allow'd the Apology of the Recorder. Accordingly the Zeal of the Heathen Church, which was only defensive, gave way: And the new Religionists were prosecuted no further.

HITHERTO, it seems, the Face of PERSECUTION had not openly shewn it-self in the wide World. 'Twas sufficient Security for every Man, that he gave no disturbance to what was publickly establish'd. But when offensive Zeal came to be discover'd in one Party, the rest became in a manner necessitated to be Aggressors in their turn. They who observ'd, or had once experienc'd this intolerating Spirit, cou'd no longer tolerate on their part*.- And they who had once exerted it over

* Thus the Controversy stood before the Time of the Emperor JULIAN, when Blood had been so freely drawn, and Crueltys so frequently exchange'd not only between Christian and Heathen, but between Christian and Christian; after the most barbarous Manner. What the Zeal was of many early Christians against the Idolatry or the old Heathen Church (at that time the establish'd one) may be comprehended by any Person who is ever so slenderly vers'd in the History of those Times. Nor can it be said indeed of us Moderns, that in the quality of good Christians (as that Character is generally understood) we are found either backward or scrupulous in assigning to Perdition such Wretches as we pronounce over others, cou'd expect no better Quarter for themselves. So that nothing less than mutual Exterpation became the Aim and almost open Profession of each religious Society.

I N

pronounce guilty of Idolatry. The name Idolater is sufficient excuse for almost any kind of Insult against the Person, and much more against the Worship of such a Mis-Believer. The very word Christian is in common Language us'd for Man, in opposition to Brute-Beast, without leaving so much as a middle place for the poor Heathen or Pagan: who, as the greater Beast of the two, is naturally doom'd to Massacre, and his Gods and Temples to Fracture and Demolishment. Nor are we masters of this Passion, even in our best humour. The French Poets (we see) can with great Success, and general Applause, exhibit this primitive Zeal even on the publick Stage: POLYEUCTE, Act II. Sc. 6.

*Ne perdons plus de temps, le Sacrifice est prêt.
Allons y du vray Dieu soutenir l'intérêt,
Allons foudre aux pieds ce Foudre ridicule
Dont arme un bois pourri ce Peuple trop credule;
Allons en éclairer l'aveuglement fatal,
Allons briser ces Dieux de Pierre & de Metal:
Abandonnons nos jours à cette ardeur celeste,
Faisons triompher Dieu; qu'il dispose du reste.*

I shou'd scarce have mention'd this, but that it came into my mind how ill a Construction some People have endeavour'd to make of what our Author, stating the Case of Heathen and Christian Persecution, in his Letter of Enthusiasm, has said concerning the Emperor JULIAN. It was no more indeed than had been said of that virtuous and gallant Emperor by his greatest Enemies; even by those who (to the shame of Christianity) boasted of his having been most insolently affronted on all occasions, and even treacherously assassinated by one of his Christian Soldiers. As for such Authors as these, shou'd I cite them in their proper investive Style and Saint-like Phrase, they wou'd make no very agreeable appearance, especially in Miscellanys of the kind we have here undertaken. But a Letter of that elegant and witty Emperor, may not be improperly plac'd amongst our Citations, as a Pattern of his Humour and Genius,

IN this extremity, it might well perhaps have been esteem'd the happiest Wish for Mankind, That one of these contending Partys of incompatible Religionists shou'd at last prevail over the rest; so as by an universal
and

as well as of his Principle and Sentiments, on this occasion. JULIAN'S Epistles, Numb. 52.

JULIAN TO THE BOSTRENS.

" I shou'd have thought, indeed, that the Galilæan Leaders wou'd have " esteem'd themselves more indebted to me, than to him who preceded me in the " Administration of the Empire. For in his time, many of them suffer'd Exile, " Persecution, and Imprisonment. Multitudes of those whom in their Religion
 " they term Hereticks, were put to the sword. Infomuch that in Samofata, " Cyzicum, Paphlagonia, Bithynia, Galatia, and many other Countrys, " whole Towns were level'd with the Earth. The just Reverse of this has been " observ'd in my time. The Exiles have been recall'd; and the Proscrib'd re" stor'd to the lawful Possession of their Estates. But to that height of Fury and " Distraction are this People arriv'd, that being no longer allow'd the Privilege " to tyrannize over one another, or persecute either their own Sectarys, or the " Religious of the lawful Church, they swell with rage, and leave no stone un-" turn'd, no opportunity unemploy'd, of raising Tumult and Sedition. So little " regard have they to true Piety; so little Obedience to our Laws and Constitutions;
 " however humane and tolerating. For still do we determine and steadily resolve,
 " never to suffer any one of them to be drawn involuntarily to our Altars. * * *
 " As for the mere People, indeed, they appear driven to these Riots and Seditions
 " by those amongst them whom they call CLERICKS: who are now enrag'd
 " to find themselves restrain'd in the use of their former Power and intemperate " Rule. * * * They can no longer act the Magistrate or Civil Judge, nor " assume Authority to make Peoples Wills, supplant Relations, possess themselves
 " of other Mens Patrimonys, and by specious Pretences transfer all into their own " possession. * * * For this reason I have thought fit, by this Publick EDICT,
 " to forewarn the People of this sort, that they raise no more Commotions, nor gather

and absolute Power to * determine Orthodoxy, and make that Opinion effectually Catholick, which in their particular Judgment had the best right to that Denomination. And thus by force of Massacre and Desolation, Peace in Worship, and Civil Unity by help of the Spi-

“gather in a riotous manner about their seditious CLERICKS, in defiance of the Magistrate, who has been insulted and in danger of being ston’d by these incited Rabboles. In their Congregations they may, notwithstanding, assemble as they please, and croud about their Leaders, performing Worship, receiving Doctrine, and praying, according as they are by them taught and conducted: But if with any Tendency to Sedition; let them beware how they hearken, or give assent; and remember, ’tis at their peril, if by these means they are secretly wrought up to Mutiny and Insurrection. * * * Live, therefore, in Peace and Quietness! neither spitefully opposing, or injuriously treating one another. You misguided People of the new way, Beware, on your side! And you of the antient and establish’d Church, injure not your Neighbours and Fellow-Citizens, who are enthusiastically led away, in Ignorance and Mistake, rather than with Design or Malice! ’Tis by DISCOURSE and REASON, not by Blows, Insults, or Violence, that Men are to be inform’d of Truth, and convinc’d of Error. Again therefore and again I enjoin and charge the zealous Followers of the true Religion, no way to injure, molest, or affront the Galilæan People.”

Thus the generous and mild Emperor; whom we may indeed call Heathen, but not to justly Apostate: since being, at different times of his Youth, transfer’d to different Schools or Universities, and bred under Tutors of each Religion, as well Heathen, as Christian; he happen’d, when of full age, to make his choice (tho’ very unfortunately) in the former kind, and adher’d to the antient Religion of his Country and Forefathers. See the same Emperor’s Letters to ARTABIUS, Numb. 7. and to HECEBOLUS, Numb. 43. and to the People of Alexandria, Numb. 10. See VOL. I. p. 25.

* Infra, p. 343.

ritual, might be presum'd in a fair way of being restor'd to Mankind:

I SHALL conclude with observing how ably the ROMAN-Christian, and once Catholick Church, by the assistance of their converted * Emperors, proceeded in the Establishment of their growing Hierarchy. They consider'd wisely the various Superstitions and Enthusiasms of Mankind; and prov'd the different Kinds and Force of each. All these seeming Contrarietys of human Passion they knew how to comprehend in their political Model and subservient System of Divinity. They knew how to make advantage both from the high Speculations of Philosophy, and the grossest Ideas of vulgar Ignorance. They saw there was nothing more different than that ENTHUSIASM which ran upon Spirituals, according to the † simpler Views of the divine Existence, and that which ran upon ‡ external Proportions, Magnificence of Structures, Ceremonys, Processions, Quires, and those other Harmonys which captivate the Eye and Ear. On this account they even added to this latter kind, and display'd Religion in a yet more gorgeous Habit of Temples, Statues, Paintings, Vestments, Copes,

*VOL. I. pag. 133. Supra, 78, 79.

†VOL. II. pag. 270, 271.

‡Supra, pag. 41.

Miters, Purple, and the Cathedral Pomp.
 With these Arms they cou'd subdue the victorious Goths, and secure themselves an AT-TILA *, when their CAESARS fail'd them.

THE truth is, 'tis but a vulgar Species of ENTHUSIASM, which is mov'd chiefly by Shew and Ceremony, and wrought upon by Chalices and Candles, Robes, and figur'd Dances. Yet this, we may believe, was look'd upon as no flight Ingredient of Devotion in those Days; since, at this hour, the Manner is found to be of considerable Efficacy with some of the Devout amongst our-selves, who pass the least for superstitions, and are reckon'd in the number of the polite World. 'This the wise Hierarchy duly preponderating; but being satisfy'd withal that there were other Tempers and Hearts which cou'd not so easily be captivated by this exterior Allurement, they assign'd another Part of Religion to Profelytes

* When this victorious Ravager was in full March to ROME, St.
 LEON (the then Pope) went out to meet him in solemn Pomp. The Goth was struck with the Appearance, obey'd the Priest, and retir'd instantly with his whole Army in a panick Fear: alledging that among the rest of the Pontifical Train, he had seen one of an extraordinary Form, who threaten'd him with Death, if he did not instantly retire. Of this important Encounter there are in St. PETER'S Church, in the Vatican, and elsewhere, at ROME, many fine Sculptures, Paintings, and Representations, deservingly made, in honour of the Miracle.

of another Charaēter and Complexion, who were allow'd to proceed on a quite different bottom; by the inward way of Contemplation, and Divine Love.

THEY are indeed so far from being jealous of mere ENTHUSIASM, or the extatick manner of Devotion, that they allow their Mysticks to write and preach in the most rapturous and seraphick Strains. They suffer them, in a manner, to supersede all external Worship, and triumph over outward Forms; till the refin'd Religionists proceed so far as either expressly or seemingly to dissuade the Practice of the vulgar and establish'd Ceremonial Dutys. And then, indeed *, they check the suppos'd ex-orbitant ENTHUSIASM, which wou'd prove dangerous to their Hicrarchal State.

IF modern Visions, Prophecys, and Dreams, Charms, Miracles, Exorcisms, and the rest of this kind, be comprehended in that which we call FANATICISM OR SUPERSTITION; to this Spirit they allow a full Career; whilst to ingenious Writers they afford the Liberty, on the other side, in a civil manner, to call in question these spiritual Feats perform'd in Monasterys, or up and down by their mendicant or itinerant Priests, and ghostly Missionarys.

* Witness the Case of MOLINOS, and of the pious, worthy and ingenious Abbe FFELON, now Archbishop of Cambray.

THIS is that antient Hierarchy, which in respect of its first Foundation, its Policy, and the Consistency of its whole Frame and Constitution, cannot but appear in some respect august and venerable, even in such as we do not usually esteem weak Eyes. These are the spiritual Conquerors, who, like the first CAESARS, from small Beginnings, establish'd the Foundations of an almost Universal Monarchy. No wonder if at this day the immediate View of this Hierarchal Residence, the City and Court of ROME, be found to have an extraordinary Effect on Foreigners of other later Churches. No wonder if the amaz'd Surveyors are for the future so apt either to conceive the horridest Aversion to all Priestly Government; or, on the contrary, to admire it, so far as even to wish a Coalescence or Reunion with this antient Mother-Church.

IN reality, the Exercise of Power, however arbitrary or despotick, seems less intolerable under such a spiritual Sovereignty, so extensive, antient, and of such a long Succession, than under the petty Tyrannys and mimical Politys

Polity of some new Pretenders. The former may even * persecute with a tolerable Grace: The latter, who wou'd willingly derive their Authority from the former, and graft on their successive Right, must necessarily make a very aukard Figure. And whilst they strive to give themselves the same Air of Independency on the Civil Magistrate; whilst they affect the same Authority in Government, the same Grandure, Magnificence, and Pomp in Worship, they raise the highest Ridicule, in the Eyes of those who have real Discernment, and can distinguish Originals from Copys:

† O Imitatores, servum pecus!

* Infra, pag. 110.

† Horat. Lib. 1. Ep. 19.

C H A P. III.

Of the Force of Humour in Religion.—
Support of our Author's Argument in his Essay on the Freedom of Wit and Raillery.
 —ZEAL discus'd. Spiritual Surgeons:
Executioners: Carvers.—Original of hu- man Sacrifice.—Exhilaration of Re- ligion.—Various Aspects, from outward Causes.

THE celebrated Wits of the MISCELLANARIAN Race, the Essay-Writers, casual Discourfers, Reflection-Coiners, Meditation-Founders, and others of the irregular kind of Writers, may plead it as their peculiar Advantage, “That they follow the Variety of NATURE.” And in such a Climate as ours, their Plea, no doubt, may be very just. We Islanders, fam'd for other Mutabilitys, are particularly noted for the Variableness and Inconstancy of our Weather. And if our Taste in Letters be found answerable to this Temperature of our Climate; 'tis certain a Writer must, in our Account, count, be the more valuable in his kind, as he can agreeably surprize his Reader, by sudden Changes, and Transports, from one Extreme to another.

WERE it not for the known Prevalency of this Relish, and the apparent Deference paid to those Genius's who are said to elevate and surprize; the Author of these MISCELLANYS might, in all probability, be afraid to entertain his Reader with this multifarious, complex, and desultory kind of Reading. 'Tis certain, that if we consider the Beginning and Process of our present Work, we shall find sufficient Variation in it. From a profess'd Levity, we are laps'd into a sort of Gravity unsuitable to our manner of setting out. We have steer'd an adventurous Course, and seem newly come out of a stormy and rough Sea, 'Tis time indeed we shou'd enjoy a Calm, and instead of expanding our Sails before the swelling Gusts, it befits us to retire under the Lee-shore, and ply our Oars in a smooth Water.

'TIS the Philosopher, the Orator, or the Poet, whom we may compare to some First Rate Vessel, which launches out into the wide Sea, and with a proud Motion insults the encountering Surges. We ESSAY-Writers are of the Small-

Small-Craft, or Galley-kind. We move chiefly by Starts and Bounds; according as our Motion is by frequent Intervals renew'd. We have no great Adventure in view; nor can tell certainly Whither we are bound. We undertake no mighty Voyage, by help of Stars or Com-pafs; but row from Creek to Creek, keep up a coasting Trade, and are fitted only for fair Weather and the Summer Season.

HAPPY therefore it is for us in particular, that having finish'd our Course of ENTHUSIASM, and pursu'd our Author into his * second Treatise, we are now, at last, oblig'd to turn toward pleasanter Reflections, and have such Subjects in view as must naturally reduce us to a more familiar Style. WIT and HUMOUR (the profess'd Subject of the Treatise now before us) will hardly bear to be examin'd in ponderous Sentences and pois'd Discourse. We might now perhaps do best, to lay aside the Gravity of strict Argument, and resume the way of Chat; which, thro' Aversion to a contrary formal manner, is generally relish'd with more than ordinary Satisfaction. For Excess of Physick (we know) has often made Men hate the name of wholesom. And an abundancy of forc'd Instruction, and solemn Counsel, may have made Men full as averse to any thing deliver'd with an Air of high Wisdom and Science; especially if it be so high as to be set above all human Art of Reasoning, and even above Reason it-self, in the account of its sublime Dispensers.

* Viz. Essay on the Freedom of Wit and Humour, V O L. I.

HOWEVER, since it may be objected to us by certain Formalists of this sort, "That we can prove nothing duly without proving it in form:" we may for once condescend to their Demand; state our Case formally; and divide our Subject into Parts, after the precise manner, and according to just Rule and Method.

OUR purpose, therefore, being to defend an Author who has been charg'd as too presumptuous for introducing the way of WIT and HUMOUR in religious Searches; we shall endeavour to make appear:

1st, THAT WIT and HUMOUR are corroborative of Religion, and promotive of true Faith.

2^{ly}, THAT they are us'd as proper Means of this kind by the holy Founders of Religion.

3^{ly}, THAT notwithstanding the dark Complexion and sour Humour of some religious Teachers

Teachers, we may be justly said to have in the main, A witty and good-humour'd Religion.

AMONG the earliest Acquaintance of my Youth, I remember, in particular, a Club of three or four merry Gentlemen, who had long kept Company with one another, and were seldom separate in any Party of Pleasure or Diversion. They happen'd once to be upon a travelling Adventure, and came to a Country, where they were told for certain, they should find the worst Entertainment, as well as the worst Roads imaginable. One of the Gentlemen, who seem'd the least concern'd for this Disaster, said slightly and without any seeming Design, "That the best Expedient for them in this Extremity wou'd be to keep themselves in high Humour, and endeavour to commend every thing which the Place afforded." The other Gentlemen immediately took the hint; but, as it happen'd, kept silence, pass'd the Subject over, and took no further notice of what had been propos'd.

BEING enter'd into the dismal Country, in which they proceeded without the least Complaint; 'twas remarkable, that if by great chance they came to any tolerable Bit of Road, or any ordinary Prospect, they fail'd not to say something or other in its praise, and wou'd light often on such pleasant Fancys and Representations, as made the Objects in reality agreeable.
to

WHEN the greatest part of the Day was thus spent, and our Gentlemen arriv'd where they intended to take their Quarters, the first of 'em who made trial of the Fare, or tasted either Glass or Dish, recommended it with such an air of Assurance, and in such lively Expressions of Approbation, that the others came instantly over to his Opinion, and confirm'd his Relish with many additional Encomiums of their own.

MANY ingenious Reasons were given for the several odd Tastes and Looks of Things, which were presented to 'em at Table. “Some “ Meats were wholesom: Others of a high Taste:
 “ Others according to the manner of eating
 “ in this or that foreign Country.” Every Dish “ had the flavour of some celebrated Receipt in “ Cookery; and the Wine, and other Liquors, “ had, in their turn, the Advantage of being “ treated in the same elegant strain. In short,
 our Gentlemen eat and drank heartily, and took up with their indifferent Fare so well, that 'twas apparent they had wrought upon themselves to believe they were tolerably well serv'd.

T H E R E

THEIR Servants in the mean time, having laid no fuch Plot as this againft themselves, kept to their Senfes, and stood it out, “ That “ their Mafters had certainly loft theirs. For “ how elfe cou’d they swallow fo contentedly,
 “ and take all for good which was fet before
 “ ’em?”—

HAD I to deal with a malicious Reader; he might perhaps, pretend to infer from this Story of my travelling Friends, that I intended to represent it as an eafy Matter for People to perfuade themselves into what Opinion or Belief they pleas’d. But it can never furely be thought, that Men of true Judgment and Understanding, fhou’d fet about fuch a Task as that of perverting their own Judgment, and giving a wrong Bias to their REASON. They muft eafily forefee that an Attempt of this kind, fhou’d it have the leaft Succels, wou’d prove of far worfe Confequence to them than any Perverfion of their Tafte, Appetite, or ordinary Senfes.

I MUST confels it, however, to be my Imagination, that where fit Circumftances concur, and many inviting Occasions offer from the fide of Mens Interest, their Humour, or their Paflion; ’tis no extraordinary Cafe to fee ’em enter into fuch a Plot as this againft their own Understandings, and endeavour by all possible means to persuade both themselves and others of what they think convenient and useful to believe.
 VOL. III. H ftandings.

IF in many particular Cases, where Favour and Affection prevail, it be found so easy a thing with us, to impose upon ourselves, it cannot surely be very hard to do it, where, we take for granted, our highest Interest is concern'd. Now it is certainly no small Interest or Concern with Men, to believe what is by Authority establish'd; since in the Case of Disbelief there can be no Choice left but either to live a Hypocrite, or be esteem'd profane. Even where Men are left to themselves, and allow'd the Freedom of their Choice, they are still forward enough in believing; and can officiously endeavour to persuade themselves of the Truth of any flattering Imposture.

NOR is it un-usual to find Men successful in this Endeavour: As, among other Instances, may appear by the many religious Faiths or Opinions, however preposterous or contradictory, which, Age after Age, we know to have been rais'd on the Foundation of Miracles and pretended Commissions from Heaven. These have been as generally espous'd and passionately cherish'd as the greatest Truths and most certain Revelations. 'Tis hardly to be suppos'd that that such Combinations shou'd be form'd, and Forgerys erected with such Succes and Prevalency over the Understandings of Men, did not they themselves co-operate, of their own accord, towards the Imposture, and shew, “ That “ by a good-Will and heartly Desire of believing, “ they had in reality a considerable Hand in “ the Deceit.”

’TIS certain that in a Country, where FAITH, has for a long time, gone by Inheritance, and Opinions are entail’d by Law, there is little room left for the Vulgar to alter their Persuasion, or deliberate on the Choice of their religious Belief. Whensoever a Government thinks fit to concern it-self with Mens Opinions, and by its absolute Authority impose any particular Belief, there is none perhaps ever so ridiculous or monstrous in which it needs doubt of having good Succes. This we may see thorowly effected in certain Countrys, by a steady Policy, and sound Application of Punishment and Reward: with the Assistance of particular Courts erected to this end; peculiar Methods of Justice; peculiar Magistrates and Officers; proper Inquests, and certain wholesom Severitys, not slightly administer’d, and play’d with, (as certain Triflers propose) but duly and properly inforc’d; as is absolutely requisite to this end of strict Conformity, and Unity in one and the same Profession, and manner of Worship.

BUT shou'd it happen to be the TRUTH it-self which was thus effectually propagated by the Means we have describ'd; the very Nature of such Means can, however, allow but little Honour to the Propagators, and little Merit to the Disciples and Believers. 'Tis certain that MAHOMETISM, PAGANISM, JUDAISM, or any other BELIEF may stand, as well as the truest, upon this Foundation. He who is now an Orthodox CHRISTIAN, wou'd by virtue of such a Discipline have been infallibly as true a MUSSULMAN, or as errant a HERETICK; had his Birth happen'd in another place.

FOR this reason there can be no rational Belief but where Comparison is allow'd, Examination permitted, and a sincere Toleration establish'd. And in this case, I will presume to say, "That Whatever BELIEF is once espous'd " or countenanc'd by the Magistrate, it will " have a sufficient advantage; without any " help from Force or Menaces on one hand,
 " or extraordinary Favour and partial Treat" ment on the other." If the BELIEF be in any measure consonant to Truth and Reason, it will find as much favour in the eyes of Mankind,

kind, as Truth and Reason need desire. Whatever Difficultys there may be in any particular Speculations or Mysterys belonging to it; the better sort of Men will endeavour to pass 'em over. They will believe (as our * Author says) to the full stretch of their REASON, and add Spurs to their FAITH, in order to be the more sociable; and conform the better with what their Interest, in conjunction with their Good-Humour, inclines them to receive as credible, and observe as their religious Duty and devotional Task.

HERE it is that GOOD HUMOUR will naturally take place, and the hospitable Disposition of our travelling Friends above-recited will easily transfer it-self into Religion, and operate in the same manner with respect to the establish'd Faith (however miraculous or incomprehensible) under a tolerating, mild, and gentle Government.

EVERY one knows, indeed, That by HERESY is understood a Stubbornness in the Will, not a Defect merely in the Understanding. On this account 'tis impossible that an honest and good-humour'd Man shou'd be a Schismatick or Heretick, and affect to separate from his national Worship on flight Reason, or without severe Provocation.

* Letter of Enthusiasm, VOL. I. pag. 34.

To be persu'd by petty INQUISITORS; to be threatned with Punishment, or penal Laws; to be mark'd out as dangerous and suspected; to be rail'd at in high Places, with all the studdy'd Wit and Art of Calumny; are indeed sufficient Provocations to ill Humour, and may force People to divide, who at first had never any such Intention. But the Virtue of Good-Humour in RELIGION is such, that it can even reconcile Persons to a Belief, in which they were never bred, or to which they had conceiv'd a former Prejudice.

FROM these considerations we cannot but of course conclude. “ That there is nothing
 “ so ridiculous in respect of Policy, or so wrong
 “ and odious in respect of common Human-
 “ ty, as a moderate and half-way PERSECU-“ TION.” It only frets the Sore; it raises the Ill-humour of Mankind; excites the keener Spirits; moves Indignation in Beholders; and sows the very Seeds of Schism in Mens bosoms. A resolute and bold-fac'd PERSECUTION leaves no time or scope for these engendring Distempers, or gathering Ill-humours. It does the work at once; by Extirpation, Banishment, or Massacre; and like a bold Stroke in Surgery, dispatches by one short Amputation, what a bungling Hand wou'd make worse and worse, worse, to the perpetual Sufferance and Misery of the Patient.

IF there be on earth a proper way to render the most sacred Truth suspected, 'tis by supporting it with Threats, and pretending to terrify People into the Belief of it. This is a sort of daring Mankind in a Cause where they know themselves superior, and out of reach. The weakest Mortal finds within himself, that tho he may be out-witted and deluded, he can never be forc'd in what relates to his Opinion or Affent. And there are few Men so ignorant of human Nature, and of what they hold in common with their Kind, as not to comprehend, “ That where great Vehemence is expressed by any-one in what relates solely to another, 'tis seldom without some private Interest of his own.”

IN common Matters of Dispute, the angry Disputant makes the best Cause to appear the worst. A Clown once took a fancy to hear the Latin Disputes of Doctors at a University. He was ask'd what pleasure he cou'd take in viewing such Combatants, when he cou'd never know so much as which of the Partys had the better. “ For that matter, reply'd the Clown, “ I a'n't such a Fool neither, but I can see who's the first that puts t'other into a Passion.”

“ sion.” Nature her-self dictated this Lesson to the Clown; “ That he who had the “ better of the Argument, wou’d be easy and “ well-humour’d: But he who was unable to “ support his Cause by Reason, wou’d natu- “ rally lose his Temper, and grow violent.”

WERE TWO Travellers agreed to tell their Story separate in publick; the one being a Man of Sincerity, but positive and dogmatical; the other less sincere, but easy and good-humour’d: tho it happen’d that the Accounts of this latter Gentleman were of the more miraculous sort; they wou’d yet sooner gain Belief, and be more favourably receiv’d by Mankind, than the strongly asserted Relations and vehement Narratives of the other fierce Defender of the Truth.

THAT GOOD HUMOUR is a chief Cause of Compliance, or Acquiescence in matters of Faith, may be prov’d from the very Spirit of those, whom we commonly call CRITICKS. ’Tis a known Prevention against the Gentlemen of this Character; “ That they “ are generally ill-humour’d and splenetic.” The World will needs have it, That their Spleen disturbs ’em. And I must confess I think the World in general to be so far right in this Conceit, That tho all Criticks perhaps are not necesnecessarily splenetic; all splenetic People (whether naturally such, or made so by ill Usage) have a necessary Propensity to Criticism and Satir. When Men are easy in themselves, they let others remain so; and can readily comply with what seems plausible, and is thought conducing to the Quiet or good Correspondence of Mankind. They study to raise no Difficultys or Doubts, and in religious Affairs, 'tis seldom that they are known forward to entertain ill Thoughts or Surmises, whilst they are unmolested. But if disturb'd by groundless Arraignments and Suspicions, by unnecessary Invectives, and bitter Declamations, and by a contentious quarrelsome Aspect of Religion; they naturally turn Criticks, and begin to question every thing. The Spirit of Satir rises with the ill Mood: and the chief Passion of Men thus diseas'd and thrown out of Good Humour, is to find fault, censure, unravel, confound, and leave nothing without exception and controversy.

THESE are the Scepticks or Scrupulists, against whom there is such a Clamor rais'd. 'Tis evident, in the mean while, that the very Clamor it-self, join'd with the usual Menaces and Shew of Force, is that which chiefly raises this sceptical Spirit, and helps to multiply the number of these inquisitive and ill-humour'd CRI-

TICK'S. Mere Threats, without power of Execution, are only exasperating and provocative. They * who are Masters of the carnal as well as spiritual Weapon, may apply each at their pleasure, and in what proportion they think necessary. But where the Magistrate resolves steadily to reserve his Fasces for his own proper Province, and keep the Edge-Tools and deadly Instruments out of other Hands, 'tis in vain for spiritual Pretenders to take such magisterial Airs. It can then only become them to brandish such Arms, when they have strength enough to make the Magistrate resign his Office, and become Provost or Executioner in their service.——

SHOU'D any one who happens to read these Lines, perceive in himself a rising Animosity against the Author, for asserting thus zealously the Notion of a religious Liberty and mutual Toleration; 'tis wish'd that he wou'd maturely deliberate on the Cause of his Disturbance and Ill-humour. Wou'd he deign to look narrowly into himself, he wou'd undoubtedly find that it is not ZEAL for Religion or the Truth, which moves him on this occasion. For had he happen'd to be in a Nation where he was no Conformist, nor had any Hope or Expectation of obtaining the Precedency for his own Manner of Worship, he wou'd have found nothing preposterous in this our Doctrine of Indulgence. 'Tis a Fact indisputable, that whatever Sect or Religion is undermost, tho it may have persecuted at any time before; yet as soon as it begins to suffer Persecution in its turn, it recurs instantly to the Principles of MODERATION, and maintains this our Plea for Complacency, Sociableness, and GOOD HUMOUR in Religion. The Mystery therefore of this Animosity, or rising Indignation of my devout and zealous Reader, is only this; "That being de" voted to the Interest of a Party already in " possession or expectation of the temporal

* Supra, pag. 94.

 " Advantages annex'd to a particular Belief;
 " he fails not, as a zealous Party-Man, to look
 " with jealousy on every unconformable Opi" nion, and is sure to justify those Means which " he thinks proper to prevent its growth." He knows that if in Matters of Religion any one believes amiss, 'tis at his own peril. If Opinion damns; Vice certainly does as much. Yet will our Gentleman easily find, if he inquires the least into himself that he has no such furious Concern for the Security of Mens Morals, nor any such violent Resentment of their Vices, when they are such as no-way incommode him. And from hence it will be easy for him to infer, "That the Passion he " feels “ feels on this occasion, is not from pure “ ZEAL, but private INTEREST and worldly “ EMULATION,”

COME we now (as authentick Rhetoricians exprefs themselves) to our second Head: which we shou'd again subdivide into Firsts and Seconds, but that this manner of carving is of late days grown much out of fashion.

'Twas the Custom of our Ancestors, perhaps as long since as the days of our hospitable King ARTHUR, to have nothing serv'd at Table but what was intire and substantial. 'Twas a whole Boar, or solid Ox which made the Feast. The Figure of the Animal was preserv'd intire, and the Dissection made in form by the appointed Carver, a Man of Might as well as profound Craft and notable Dexterity; who was seen erect, with goodly Mein and Action, displaying Heads and Members, dividing according to Art, and distributing his Subject-matter into proper Parts, futable to the Stomachs of those he serv'd. In latter days 'tis become the Fashion to eat with less Ceremony and Method, Every-one chuses to carve for himself. The learned Manner of Dissection is out of request; and a certain Method of Cookery has been introduc'd; by which the anatomical Science of the Table is intirely set aside. Ragouts and Fricoffees are the reigning Dishes, in which every thing is so dismember'd and thrown out of all Order and Form, that no Part of the Mass can properly be divided, or distinguish'd from another.
 which

FASHION is indeed a powerful Mistress, and by her single Authority has so far degraded the carving Method and Use of Soli's, even in Discourse and Writing, that our religious Pastors themselves have many of 'em chang'd their Manner of distributing to us their spiritual Food. They have quitted their substantial Service, and uniform Division into Parts and Under-Parts; and in order to become fashionable, they have run into the more favourable way of learned Ragout and Medley. 'Tis the unbred rustick Orator alone, who presents his clownish Audience with a divisible Discourse. The elegant Court-Divine exhorts in MISCELLANY, and is asham'd to bring his Two's and Three's before a fashionable Assembly.

SHOU'D I therefore, as a mere Miscellanarian or Essay-Writer, forgetting what I had promis'd, be found to drop a Head, and lose the connecting Thred of my present Discourse; the Case perhaps wou'd not be so preposterous. For fear however lest I shou'd be charg'd for

for being worse than my word, I shall endeavour to satisfy my Reader, by pursuing my Method propos'd: if peradventure he can call to mind, what that Method was. Or if he cannot, the matter is not so very important, but he may safely pursue his reading, without further trouble.

To proceed, therefore. Whatever Means or Methods may be employ'd at any time in maintaining or propagating a religious Belief already current and establish'd, 'tis evident that the first Beginnings must have been founded in that natural Complacency, and GOOD HUMOUR, which inclines to Trust and Confidence in Mankind. Terrors alone, tho' accompany'd with Miracles and Prodigys of whatever kind, are not capable of raising that sincere Faith and absolute Reliance which is requir'd in favour of the divinely authoriz'd Instructor, and spiritual Chief. The Affection and Love which procures a true Adherence to the new religious Foundation, must depend either on a real or counterfeit * GOODNESS in the religious Founder. Whatever ambitious Spirit may inspire him; whatever savage Zeal or persecuting Principle may lie in reserve, ready to disclose it-self when Authority and Power is once obtain'd; the First Scene of Doctrine, however, fails not to present us with the agreeable Views of Joy, Love, Meekness, Gentleness, and moderation.

* VOL. I. pag. 04. and VOL. II. pag. 334.

IN this respect, RELIGION, according to the common Practice in many Sects, may be compar'd to that sort of Courtship, of which the Fair Sex are known often to complain. In the Beginning of an Amour, when these innocent Charmers are first accosted, they hear of nothing but tender Vows, Submission, Service, Love. But soon afterwards, when won by this Appearance of Gentleness and Humility, they have resign'd themselves, and are no longer their own, they hear a different Note, and are taught to understand Submission and Service in a sense they little expected. Charity and Brotherly Love are very engaging Sounds: But who wou'd dream that out of abundant Charity and Brotherly Love shou'd come Steel, Fire, Gibbets, Rods, and such a sound and hearty Application of these Remedys as shou'd at once advance the worldly Greatness of religious Pastors, and the particular Interest of private Souls, for which they are so charitably concern'd?

IT has been observ'd by our * Author, "That the JEWS were naturally a very cloudy

* Letter of Ethusiastm, VOL. I. pag. 29. And above, pag. 55, 56.
"People."

“ People.” That they had certainly in Religion, as in every thing else, the least Good-Humour of any People in the World, is very apparent. Had it been otherwise, their holy Legislator and Deliverer, who was declar’d * the meekest Man on Earth, and who for many years together had by the most popular and kind Acts endeavour’d to gain their Love and Affection, wou’d in all probability have treated them afterwards with more Sweetness, and been able with † less Blood and Massacre to retain them in their religious Duty. This however we may observe, That if the first Jewish Princes and celebrated Kings acted in reality according to the Institutions of their great Founder, not only MUSICK, but even PLAY and DANCE were of holy Appointment, and divine Right. The first Monarch of this Nation, tho of a melancholy Complexion, join’d MUSICK with his spiritual Exercises, and even us’d it as a Remedy under that dark ENTHUSIASM or ‡ evil Spirit; which how far it might resemble that of Prophecy, experienc’d by him  even

* Numb. Ch. xii. ver. 3.

† Exod. Ch. xxxii. ver. 27, &c. And Numb. Ch. xvi. ver.

41.

‡ 1 Sam. Ch. xviii. ver. 10. And Ch. xix. ver. 9.

 Ibid. ver. 23, 24.

after his Apostacy, our * Author pretends not to determine. 'Tis certain that the Successor of this Prince was a hearty Espouser of the merry Devotion, and by his example has shewn it to have been fundamental in the religious Constitution of his People. † The famous Entry or high Dance perform'd by him, after so conspicuous a manner, in the Procession of the sacred Coffer, shews that he was not ashamed of expressing any Extasy of Joy or ‡ playfom Humour, which was practis'd by the  meanest of the Priests or People on such an occasion.

* Letter of Enthusiasm, VOL. I. pag. 45.

† 2 Sam. Ch. vi. ver. 5, 14, & 16.

‡ Ibid. ver. 22.

 Tho this Dance was not perform'd quite naked, the Dancers, it seems, were so slightly cloth'd, that in respect of Modesty, they might as well have wore nothing: their Nakedness appearing still by means of their high Caperings, Leaps, and violent Attitudes, which were proper to this Dance. The Reader, if he be curious, may examine what relation this religious Extasy and naked Dance had to the naked and processional Prophecy; (1 Sam. Ch. xix. ver. 23, & 24.) where Prince, Priests, and People prophesy'd in conjunction: the Prince himself being both of the itinerant and naked Party. It appears that even before he was yet advan'd to the Throne, he had been seiz'd with this prophesying Spirit-errant, processional, and fallant, attended, as we find, with a sort of Martial Dance perform'd in Troops or Companys, with Pipe and Tabret accompanying the March, together with Psaltry, Harp, Cornets, Timbrels, and other variety of Musick. See 1 Sam. Ch. x. ver 5. and Ch. xix. ver. 23, 24, &c. and 2 Sam. Ch. vi. ver. 5. And above, Letter of Enthusiasm, VOL. I. pag. 45.

BESIDES the many Songs and Hymns dispers'd in Holy Writ, the Book of Psalms it-self, Job, Proverbs, Canticles, and other intire Volumes of the sacred collection, which are plainly Poetry, and full of humorous Images, and jocular Wit, may sufficiently shew how readily the inspir'd Authors had recourse to HUMOUR and DIVERSION, as a proper Means to promote Religion, and strengthen the establish'd Faith.

WHEN the Affairs of the Jewish Nation grew desperate, and every thing seem'd tending to a total Conquest and Captivity, the Style of their holy Writers and Prophets might well vary from that of earlier days, in the Rise and Vigor of their Commonwealth, or during the first Splendor of their Monarchy, when the Princes themselves prophesy'd, and potent Kings were of the number of the sacred Penmen. This still we may be assur'd of; That however melancholy or ill-humour'd any of the Prophets may appear at any time, 'twas not that kind of Spirit, which God was wont to encourage in them. Witness the Case of the Prophet JONAH; whose Character is so naturally describ'd in Holy Writ.

PETTISH as this Prophet was, unlike a Man, and resembling rather some refractory boyish Pupil; it may be said that GOD, as a kind Tutor, was pleas'd to humour him, bear with his Anger, and in a lusty manner, expose his childish Frowardness, and shew him to himself.

“ * ARISE (said his gracious Lord) and go to NINIVE”. “ No such matter,” says our Prophet to himself; but away over-Sea for TARSHISH. He fairly plays the Truant, like an arch School-Boy; hoping to hide out of the way. But his Tutor had good Eyes, and a long Reach. He overtook him at Sea; where a Storm was ready prepar'd for his Exercise, and a Fish's Belly for his Lodging. The Renegade found himself in harder Durance than any at Land. He was sufficiently mortify'd: He grew good, pray'd, moraliz'd, and spoke mightily against † Lying Vanities.

AGAIN ‡ the Prophet is taken into favour, and bid go to NINIVE, to foretel Destruction. He foretells it. NINIVE repents: God pardons: and the Prophet is angry.

* Jonah, Ch. i, &c.

† Ibid. Ch. ii. ver. 8.

‡ Ch. iii. ver. 1, &c.

“ LORD! —Did I not foresee what this “ wou’d come to? Was not this my Saying, when “ I was safe and quiet at home?—What else
 “ shou’d I have run away for?—As if I “ knew not how little dependence there was “ on the Resolution of those, who are always “ so ready to forgive, and repent of what they “ have determin’d.—No!—Strike me “ dead!—Take my Life, this moment. ’Tis better
 “ for me.—If ever I prophesy again” * * * * *

“ AND † Dost thou well then to be thus angry, “ JONAH! Consider with thy-self.—Come!—
 “ Since thou wilt needs retire out of the City,
 “ to see at a distance what will come of it; here,
 “ Take a better Fence than thy own Booth
 “ against the hot Sun which incommodes Thee.
 “ Take this tall Plant as a shady Covering for “ thy Head. Cool thy-self, and be deliver’d
 “ from thy Grief.”

WHEN The Almighty had shown this Indulgence to the Prophet, he grew better humour’d, and pass’d a tolerable Night. But the ‡ next morning the Worm came, and an East-Wind:

* Jonah, Ch. iv. ver. 1, 2, 3.

† Ver. 4, 5, 6.

‡ Ver. 7, 8.

the Arbor was nip'd: the Sun shone vehemently, and the Prophet's Head was heated, as before. Presently the ill Mood returns, and the Prophet is at the old pass. " Better die, than live at this rate.—Death, Death, " alone can satisfy me. Let me hear no longer of Living. ——— No! ——— 'Tis in vain to talk of it." —

AGAIN * GOD expostulates; but is taken up short, and answer'd churlishly, by the testy Prophet. " Angry he is; angry he ought to be, and angry he will be to his Death". But the ALMIGHTY, with the utmost pity towards him, in this melancholy and froward Temper, lays open the Folly of it; and exhorts to Mildness and GOOD HUMOUR, in the most tender manner, and under the most familiar and pleasant Images; whilst he shews † expressly more Regard and Tenderness to the very CATTEL and Brute-Beasts, than the Prophet to his own HUMAN KIND, and those very Disciples whom by his Preaching he had converted.

IN the antienter Parts of Sacred Story, where the Beginning of things, and Origin of human Race are represented to us, there are sufficient Instances of this Familiarity of Style, this popular pleasant Intercourse, and Manner of Dialogue between * GOD and Man; I might add even between † Man and Beast; and what is still more extraordinary, between GOD and ‡ SATAN.

* Ver. 9.

† See the last Verse of this Prophet.

WHATSOEVER of this kind may be allegorically understood, or in the way of PARABLE or FABLE; this I am sure of, That the Accounts, Descriptions, Narrations, Expressions, and Phrases are in themselves many times exceedingly pleasant, entertaining, and facetious. But fearing lest I might be mis-interpreted, shou'd I offer to set these Passages in their proper Light, (which however has been perform'd by undoubted good Christians, and most learned and  eminent Divines of our own Church) I forbear to go any further into the Examination or Criticism of this sort.

As for our Saviour's Style, 'tis not more vehement and majestick in his gravest Animadversions or declamatory Discourses; than it is sharp, humorous and witty in his Repartees,

* Gen. Ch. iii. ver. 9, &c.

† Numb. Ch. xxii. ver. 28, &c.

‡ (1.) Job, Ch. i, & ii.

(2.) 2 Chron. Ch. xviii. ver. 18, 19, &c.

 See BURNET, Archaeol. cap. 7. p. 280, &c.

Reflections, fabulous Narrations, or Parables, Similes, Comparisons, and other Methods of milder Censure and Reproof. His Exhortations to his Disciples; his particular Designation of their Manners; the pleasant Images under which he often couches his Morals and prudential Rules; even his Miracles themselves (especially the * first he ever wrought) carry with them a certain Festivity, Alacrity, and GOOD HUMOUR so remarkable, that I shou'd look upon it as impossible not to be mov'd in a pleasant manner at their Recital.

NOW if what I have here asserted in behalf of PLEASANTRY and HUMOUR, be found just and real in respect of the Jewish and Christian Religions; I doubt not, it will be yielded to me, in respect of the antient Heathen Establishments; that the highest Care was taken by their original Founders, and following Reformers, to exhilarate Religion, and correct that Melancholy and Gloominess to which it is subject; according to those different Modifications of ENTHUSIASM above specify'd.

* St. JOHN, Chap. ii. ver. 11.

† Above, Chap. i, ii.

OUR Author, as I take it, has * elsewhere shewn that these Founders were real Musicians, and Improvers of Poetry, Musick, and the entertaining Arts; which they in a manner incorporated with Religion: Not without good reason; as I am apt to imagine. For to me it plainly appears, That in the early times of all Religions, when Nations were yet barbarous and savage, there was ever an Aptness or Tendency towards the dark part of Superstition, which among many other Horrors produc'd that of human Sacrifice. Something of this nature might possibly be deduc'd even from † Holy

* VOL. I. pag. 237.

† Gen. chap. xxii. ver. 1, 2, &c. and Judg. chap. xi. ver. 30, 31, &c.

These Places relating to ABRAHAM and JEPHTHAH, are cited only with respect to the Notion which these Primitive Warriors may be said to have entertain'd concerning this horrid Enormity, so common among the Inhabitants of the Palestine and other neighbouring Nations. It appears that even the elder of these Hebrew Princes was under no extreme Surprize on this trying Revelation. Nor did he think of expostulating, in the least, on this occasion; when at another time he cou'd be so importunate for the Pardon of an inhospitable, murderous, impious and incestuous City; Gen. xviii. 23, &c. See Muslam's Citations, pag. 76, 77. Ex istis satis est colligere hanc Abrahami Tentationem non fuisse κενανθυγημίνην παράξιν, actionem innovatam; non recens excogitatam, sed ad pristinos Canaanorum mores designatam. See the learned CAPEL's Dissertation upon JEPHTHAH; “Ex hujus voti Lege (Lev. xxvii. ver. 28, 29.) “JEPHTHE Filiam omnino videtur immolasse, hoc est, morte affecisse, & exc- “cutus est in ea votum quod ipse voverat, Jud. xi. 39.

Writ. And in other Historys we are inform'd of it more at large.

EVERY one knows how great a Part of the old Heathen Worship consisted in Play, Poetry and Dance. And tho' some of the more melancholy and superstitious Votarys might approach the Shrines of their DIVINITYS with mean Grimaces, Crouchings, and other fawning Actions, betraying the low Thoughts they had of the Divine Nature; yet 'tis well known, that in those times the *illiberal scophantick manner of Devotion was by the wiser sort contemn'd and oft suspected, † as knavish and indirect.

* See VOL. I. pag. 35.

† ——— Non tu prece poscis emaci, &c.

Haud cuivis promptum est, murmurque humilesque susurros, Tollere de Templis.——

De JOVE quid sentis? Estne, ut præponere cures Hunc cuiquam?——

——— Qua tu mercede Deorum

Emeris auriculas?——

O curvæ in terris animæ, & cælestium inanes?

Quid juvat hoc, Templis nostros immittere mores,

Et bona Diis ex hac scelerata ducere pulpa?

Perf. Sat. 2.

Non est meum, si mugiat Africis

Malus procellis, ad miseræ preces

Decurrere.——

Hor. Lib. 3. Od. 29.

See *VOL. I. pag. 133. And above, pag. 79. in the Notes.

How different an Air and Aspect the good and virtuous were presum'd to carry with them to the Temple, let PLUTARCH finely, instead of many others, witness, in his excellent Treatise of * Superstition; and in

* Ὁ βάρβαρος ἐξευρόλης Ἕλληνας κατὰ τῆ δεισιδαιμονία, πηλώσεις, καταβορβορώσεις, σαββατισμούς, ῥίψεις ἐπὶ προσωποῦν αἰσχρὰς, προσκαδίσεις, αλλοκότους προσκυνήσεις, &c. "O wretched GREEKS! (says he, speaking to his then declining Countrymen) who in a way of Superstition run so easily into the Relish of barbarous Nations, and bring into Religion that frightful Mein of sordid and vilifying Devotion, ill-favour'd Humiliation and Contrition, abject Looks and Countenances, Conternations, Prostrations, Disfigurations, and, in the Act of Worship, Distortions, constrain'd and painful Postures of the Body, wry Faces, beggerly Tones, Mumpings, Grimaces, Cringings, and the rest of this kind——A shame indeed to us Grecians!——For to us (we know) 'tis preferib'd from of old by our peculiar Laws concerning Musick, and the publick Chorus's, that we shou'd perform in the handsomest manner, and with a just and manly Countenance, avoiding those Grimaces and Contortions of which some Singers contract a Habit. And shall we not in the more immediate Worship of the DEITY preserve this liberal Air and manly Appearance? Or, on the contrary, whilst we are nicely observant of other Forms and Decencys in the Temple, shall we neglect this greater Decency in Voice, Words, and Manners; and with vile Cries, Fawnings, and prostitute Behaviour, betray the natural Dignity and Majesty of that Divine Religion and National Worship deliver'd down to us by our Forefathers, and purg'd from every thing of a barbarous and savage kind?"

What PLUTARCH mentions here, of the just Countenance or liberal Air, the τόμα δίκαιον, of the Musical Performer, is agreeably illustrated in his ALCIBIADES. 'Twas that heroick Youth, who, as appears by this Historian, first gave occasion to the ATHENIANS of the higher Rank wholly to abandon the use of Flutes; which had before been highly in favour in another against the Epicurean Atheism, where favour with them. The Reason given, was “ the liberal Air which attended such Performers, and the unmanly Disfiguration of their Looks and Countenance, which this Piping-work produc’d.” As for the real Figure or Plight of the superstitious Mind, our Author thus describes it: “ *Gladly wou’d the poor comfortless Mind, by whiles, keep Festival and rejoice: But such as its Religion is, there can be no free Mirth or Joy belonging to it. Publick Thanksgivings are but private Mournings. Sights and Sorrows accompany its Praises. Fears and Horrors corrupt its best Affections. When it assumes the outward Ornaments of best Apparel for the Temple, it even then strikes Melancholy, and appears in Paleness and ghastly Looks. While it worships, it trembles. It sends up Vows in faint and feeble Voices, with eager Hopes, Desires, and Passions, discoverable in the whole Disorder of the outward Frame: and in the main, it evinces plainly by Practice, that the Notion of PYTHAGORAS was but vain, who dar’d assert, That we were then in the best State, and carry’d our most becoming Looks with us, when we approach’d the Gods. For then, above all other Seasons, are the Superstitious found in the most abject miserable State of Mind, and with the meanest Presence and Behaviour; approaching the Sacred Shrines of the Divine Powers in the same manner as they wou’d the Dens of Bears or Lions, the Caves of Basilisks or Dragons, or other hideous Recesses of wild Beasts or raging Monsters. To me therefore it appears wonderful, that we shou’d arraign Atheism as impious; whilst Superstition escapes the Charge. Shall he who holds there are no Divine Powers, be esteem’d impious! and shall not he be esteem’d far more impious, who holds the Divine Beings such in their Nature as the Superstitious believe and represent? For my own part, I had rather Men shou’d say of me, &c.” See VOL. I. pag. 41. in the Notes. Nothing can be more remarkable than what our Author says again, a little below. “ The Atheist believes there is no Deity; the Religionist (or superstitious Believer) wishes there were none. If he believes, ’tis against his Will: mistrust he dares not, nor call his Thoughts in question. But cou’d he with Security, at once, throw off that oppressive Fear, which like the Rock of TANTALUS impends, and presses over him, he wou’d with equal* where it will plainly enough appear * what a share GOOD HUMOUR had in that which the politer Antients esteem'd as Piety, and true Religion.

“ equal Joy spurn his enslaving Thought, and embrace the Atheist's State and Opinion as his happiest Deliverance. Atheists are free of Superstition, but the Superstitious are ever willing Atheists, tho' impotent in their Thought, and unable to believe of the Divine Being as they gladly wou'd. Νυνὶ δὲ τῶ μὲν Ἄθεοι δεισιδαιμονίας ἔδδεν μέτεσιν· ὁ δὲ δεισιδαίμων τῇ προκαίρει αἰθεῖ· ὦν, ἀθεοεργός ἐστιν ἢ τῷ δοξάζειν περὶ θεῶν ὃ ἐλέλειαι.” See VOL. I. par. 35, 36, 40, 41.

* Where speaking of Religion, as it stood in the Heathen Church, and in his own time; he confesses, “ That as to the vulgar Disposition, there was no remedy. Many even of the better sort would be found, of course, to intermix with their Veneration and Esteem something of Terror or Fear in their religious Worship, which might give it perhaps the Character of SUPERSTITION: But that this Evil was a thousand times over-balanc'd by the Satisfaction, Hope, Joy, and Delight which attended religious Worship. This (says he) is plain and evident from the most demonstrable Testimonys. For neither the Societys, or Publick Meetings in the Temples, nor the Festivals themselves, nor any other diverting Partys, Sightings, or Entertainments, are more delightful or rejoicing than what we our-selves behold, and act in the Divine-Worship, and in the Holy Sacrifices and Mysterys which belong to it. Our Disposition and Temper is not, on this occasion, as if we were in the Prefence of worldly Potentates, dread Sovereigns, and despotick Princes. Nor are we here found meanly humbling our-selves, crouching in Fear and Awe, and full of Anxiety and Confusion, as wou'd be natural to us in such a Case. But where the Divinity is esteem'd the nearest, and most immediately present, there Horrors and Amazements are the furthest banish'd; there the Heart, we find, gives freest way to Pleasure, to Entertainment, to Play, Mirth, Humour, and Diverfion; and this even to an Excess.”

BUT

BUT NOW, methinks, I have been sufficiently grave and serious, in defence of what is directly contrary to Seriousness and Gravity. I have very solemnly pleaded for Gaiety and GOOD HUMOUR: I have declaim'd against Pedantry in learned Language, and oppos'd Formality in Form. I now find my-self somewhat impatient to get loose from the Constraint of Method: And I pretend lawfully to exercise the Privilege which I have asserted, of rambling from Subject to Subject, from Style to Style, in my MISCELLANEOUS manner, according to my present Profession and Character.

I MAY, in the mean while, be censur'd probably for passing over my Third Head. But the methodical Reader, if he be scrupulous about it, may content himself with looking back: And if possibly he can pick it out of my Second, he will forgive this Anticipation, in a Writing which is govern'd less by Form than Humour. I had indeed resolv'd with my-self to make a large Collection of Passages from our most eminent and learned Divines, in order to have set forth this Latter Head of my Chapter; and by better Authority than my own to have evinc'd, "That we had in the main a good-humour'd Religion." But after considering a little while,

I came to this short Issue with myself: “ That “ it was better not to cite at all, than to cite “ partially.” Now if I cited fairly what was said as well on the melancholy as the chearful side of our Religion, the Matter, I found, wou’d be pretty doubtfully balanc’d: And the Result at last wou’d be this; “ That, generally speaking, “ as oft as a Divine was in good Humour, we “ should find RELIGION the sweetest and best-hu- “ mour’d thing in Nature: But at other times
 “ (and that, pretty often) we shou’d find a ve“ ry different Face of Matters.”

THUS are we alternately exalted and humbled, chear’d and dejected, according as our spiritual * Director is himself influenc’d: And this, peradventure, for our Edification and Advantage; “ That by these Contrarietys and “ Changes we may be render’d more supple “ and compliant.” If we are very low, and down; we are taken up. If we are up, and high;
 we are taken down.—This is Discipline. This is Authority and Command.—Did Religion carry constantly one and the same Face, and were it always represented to us alike in every respect;
 we might perhaps be over-bold, and make Acquaintance with it, in too familiar a manner:

* Supra, pag. 39.

We might think our-selves fully knowing in it, and assur'd of its true Character and Genius. From whence perhaps we might become more refractory towards the Ghostly Teachers of it, and be apt to submit our-selves the less to those who, by Appointment and Authority, represent it to us, in such Lights, as they esteem most proper and convenient.

I SHALL therefore not only conclude abruptly, but even sceptically on this my last Head: referring my Reader to what has been said already, on my preceding Heads, for the bare probability “ of our having, in the main, a witty and good-humour'd RELIGION.”

THIS, however, I may presume to assert; That there are undoubtedly some Countenances or Aspects of our Religion, which are humorous and pleasant in themselves; and that the sadder Representations of it are many times so over-sad and dismal, that they are apt to excite a very contrary Passion to what is intended by the Representers.

MISCELLANY III.

C H A P. I.

Further Remarks on the Author of the Treatises.—His Order and Design.—His Remarks on the SUCCESSION of Wit, and Progress of Letters, and Philosophy.—Of Words, Relations, Affections.—Country-Men and Country.—Old-ENGLAND.—Patriots of the Soil.—Virtuosi, and Philosophers.—

A TASTE.

HAVING already asserted my Privilege, as a MISCELLANEOUS or ESSAY-Writer of the modern Establishment; to write on every Subject, and in every Method, as I fancy; to use Order, or lay it aside, as I think fit; and to treat of Order and Method in other Works, tho' free perhaps and unconfin'd as to my own: I shall presume, in this place, to consider consider the present Method and Order of my Author's Treatises, as in this joint-Edition they are rang'd.

NOTWITHSTANDING the high Airs of SCEPTICISM which our Author assumes in his first Piece; I cannot, after all, but imagine that even there he proves himself, at the bottom, a real DOGMATIST, and shews plainly that he has his private Opinion, Belief, or Faith, as strong as any Devotee or Religionist of 'em all. Tho' he affects perhaps to strike at other Hypotheses and Schemes; he has something of his own still in reserve, and holds a certain Plan or System peculiar to himself, or such, at least, in which he has at present but few Companions or Followers.

ON this account I look upon his Management to have been much after the rate of some ambitious ARCHITECT; who being call'd perhaps to prop a Roof, redress a leaning Wall, or add to some particular Apartment, is not contented with this small Specimen of his Mastership: but pretending to demonstrate the Un-serviceableness and Inconvenience of the old Fabrick, forms the Design of a new Building, and longs to shew his Skill in the principal Parts of Architecture and Mechanics.

'TIS certain that in matters of Learning and Philosophy, the Practice of pulling down is far pleasanter, and affords more Entertainment, than that of building and setting up. Many have succeeded, to a miracle, in the first, who have miserably fail'd in the latter of these Attempts. We may find a thousand Engineers who can sap, undermine, and blow up, with admirable Dexterity, for one single-one who can build a Fort or lay the Plat-form of a Citadel. And tho' Compassion in real War may make the ruinous Practice less delightful, 'tis certain that in the literate warring World, the springing of Mines, the blowing up of Towers, Bastions, and Ramparts of PHILOSOPHY, with Systems, Hypotheses, Opinions, and Doctrines into the Air, is a Spectacle of all other the most naturally rejoicing.

OUR Author, we suppose, might have done well to consider this. We have fairly conducted him thro' his first and second LETTER, and have brought him, as we see here, into his third Piece. He has hitherto, methinks, kept up his sapping Method, and unravelling Humour, with tolerable good Grace. He has given only some few, and very slender * Hints
of

* Viz. in the Letter of Enthusiasm, which makes Treatise I. See VOL. I. pag. 41, 43, 44, 49. at the end.—And 54. concerning the of going further, or attempting to erect any Scheme or Model which may discover his Pretence to a real Architect-Capacity. Even in this his Third Piece he carries with him the same sceptical Mein: and what he offers by way of Project or Hypothesis, is very faint, hardly spok'n aloud; but mutter'd to himself, in a kind of dubious Whis'per, or feign'd SOLILOQUY. What he discovers of Form and Method, is indeed so accompany'd with the random Micellaneous Air, that it may pass for Raillery, rather than good Earnest. 'Tis in his following * Treatise that he discovers himself openly, as a plain Dogmatist, a Formalist, and Man of Method; with his Hypothesis tack'd to him, and his Opinions so close-slicking, as wou'd force one to call to mind the Figure of some precise and strait-lac'd Professor in a University.

WHAT may be justly pleaded in his behalf, when we come in company with him, the previous Knowledge—So again, Treatise II. VOL. I. pag. 81, and 116.—And again, Treatise III. VOL. I. pag. 294, 295, 297. where the INQUIRY is propos'd, and the System and Genealogy of the Afflictions previously treated; with an Apology (pag. 312.) for the examining practice, and seeming Pedantry of the Method.—And afterwards the Apology for Treatise IV. in Treatise V. VOL. II. pag. 263, 264. Concerning this Series and Dependency of these joint Treatises, see more particularly below, pag. 189, 190, 191, 284, &c.

* Viz. Treatise V. The INQUIRY concerning Virtue, VOL. II.

to inquire into such solemn and profound Subjects, seems very doubtful. Mean while, as his Affairs stand hitherto in this his Treatise of Advice, I shall be contented to yoke with him, and proceed, in my miscellaneous Manner, to give my ADVICE also to Men of Note; whether they are Authors or Politicians, Virtuosi or Fine-Gentlemen; comprehending Him, the said Author, as one of the Number of the Advis'd, and Myself too (if occasion be) after his own example of Self-Admonition and private Address.

BUT FIRST as to our Author's Dissertation in this * third Treatise, where his Reflections upon Authors in general, and the Rise and Progress of Arts, make the Inlet or Introduction to his Philosophy; we may observe, That it is not without some Appearance of Reason that he has advanc'd this Method. It must be acknowledg'd, that tho, in the earliest times, there may have been divine Men of a transcending Genius, who have given Laws both in Religion and Government, to the great Advantage and Improvement of Mankind; yet PHILOSOPHY it-self, as a Science and known Profession worthy of that name, cannot with any probability be suppos'd to have risen (as our Author shews) till other Arts had been rais'd, and, in a certain proportion, advanc'd before it. And as this was of the greatest Dignity and Weight, so it came last into Form. It was long clearing it-felf from the affected Drefs of Sophifts, or Enthusiaftick Air of Poets; and appear'd late in its genuine, fimple, and juft Beauty.

* VOL. I. pag. 236, 7, 8, 9, &c.

THE Reader perhaps may juftly excufe our Author for having * in this place fo over-load- ed his Margin with thofe weighty Authoritys and antient Citations, when he knows that there are many grave Profeflors in Humanity and Letters among the Moderns who are puz- zled in this Search, and write both repug- nantly to one another, and to the plain and natural Evidence of the Cafe. The real Line- age and SUCCESSION of Wit, is indeed plain- ly founded in Nature: as our Author has en- deavour'd to make appear both from History and Fact. The GREEK Nation, as it is Original to us, in refpect to thefe polite Arts and Sci- ences, fo it was in reality original to it-felf. For whether the EGYPTIANS, PHENICIANS, THRACIANS, or BARBARIANS of any kind, may have hit fortunately on this or that parti- cular Invention, either in Agriculture, Build- ing, Navigation, or Letters; which-ever may have introduc'd this Rite of Worftip, this Title of a Deity, this or that Instrument of Musick, this or that Festival, Game, or Dance, (for on this matter there are high Debates among the Learned) 'tis evident, beyond a doubt, that the Arts and Sciences were form'd in GREECE it-self. 'Twas there that Musick, Poetry, and the rest came to receive some kind of shape, and be distinguish'd into their several Orders and Degrees. Whatever flourish'd, or was rais'd to any degree of Correctness, or real Perfection in the kind, was by means of GREECE alone, and in the hand of that sole polite, most civiliz'd, and accomplish'd Nation.

* Et. VOL. 1. pag. 242, &c.

FOR can this appear strange, when we consider the fortunate Constitution of that People. For tho compos'd of different Nations, distinct in Laws and Governments, divided by Seas and Continents, dispers'd in distant Islands; yet being originally of the same Extract, united by one single Language, and animated by that social publick and free Spirit, which notwithstanding the Animosity of their several warring States, induc'd them to erect such heroick Congresses and Powers as those which constituted the AMPHICTONIAN Councils, the OLYMPICK, ISTHMIAN, and other Games; they cou'd not but naturally polish and refine each other. 'Twas thus they brought their beautiful and comprehensive Language guage to a just Standard, leaving only such Variety in the Dialects as render'd their Poetry, in particular, so much the more agreeable. The Standard was in the same proportion carry'd into other Arts. The Secretion was made. The several Species found, and set apart. The Performers and Masters in every kind, honour'd, and admir'd. And, last of all, even CRITICKS themselves acknowledg'd and receiv'd as Masters over all the rest. From Musick, Poetry, Rhetorick, down to the simple Prose of History, thro' all the plastick Arts of Sculpture, Statuary, Painting, Architeclure, and the rest; every thing Muse-like, graceful and exquisite, was rewarded with the highest Honours, and carry'd on with the utmost Ardor and Emulation. Thus GREECE, tho she exported Arts to other Nations, had properly for her own share no Import of the kind. The utmost which cou'd be nam'd, wou'd amount to no more than raw Materials, of a rude and barbarous form. And thus the Nation was evidently Original in Art; and with them every noble Study and Science was (as the great Master, so often cited by our Author, says of certain kinds of Poetry) * self-

* 'Αυτοσχηδιασική. VOL. I. pag. 244. 'Tis in this sense of the natural Production, and Self-Formation of the Arts, in this Free State of ancient GREECE, that the same great Master uses this Word a little before, in the same Chapter of his Poetics, (viz. the 4th) speaking in general of the Poets: Κατὰ μικρὸν προάγοντες, ἐγέννησαν τὴν ποίησιν, ἐκ τῶν αὐτοσχηδιασμάτων. And presently after, Δίξεις δὲ γενομένης, αὐτὴ ἡ φύσις τὸ εἶκατον μίτρον εἶχε.

form'd, wrought out of Nature, and drawn from the necessary Operation and Course of things, working, as it were, of their own accord, and proper inclination. Now according to this natural Growth of Arts, peculiar to GREECE, it wou'd necessarily happen; That at the beginning, when the Force of Language came to be first prov'd; when the admiring World made their first Judgment, and essay'd their Taste in the Elegancys of this sort; the Lofty, the Sublime, the Astonishing and Amazing wou'd be the most in fashion, and prevail'd. Metaphorical Speech, Multiplicity of Figures and high-sounding Words wou'd naturally prevail. Tho' in the Commonwealth it-self, and in the Affairs of Government, Men were us'd originally to plain and direct Speech; yet when Speaking became an Art, and was taught by Sophists, and other pretended Masters, the high-poetick, and the figurative Way began to prevail, even at the Bar, and in the Publick Assemblies: Insomuch that the Grand-Master, in the * above-cited part of his Rhetoricks, where he extols the Tragick Poet EURIPIDES, upbraids the Rhetoricians of his own Age, who retain'd that very bombastick Style, which even Poets, and those too of the tragick kind, had already thrown off, or at least considerably mitigated. But the Taste of GREECE was now polishing. A better Judgment was soon form'd, when a DEMOSTHENES was heard, and had found success. The People themselves (as our Author has shewn) came now to reform their COMEDY and familiar Manner, after TRAGEDY, and the higher Style, had been brought to its perfection under the last hand of an EURIPIDES. And now in all the principal Works of Ingenuity and Art, SIMPLICITY and NATURE began chiefly to be fought: And this was the TASTE which lasted thro' so many Ages, till the Ruin of all things, under a Universal Monarchy.

*VOL. I. prg. 245. in the Notes.

IF the Reader shou'd peradventure be led by his Curiosity to seek some kind of Comparison between this antient Growth of TASTE, and that which we have experienc'd in modern days, and within our own Nation; he may look back to the Speeches of our Ancestors in Parliament. He will find 'em generally speaking, to have been very short and plain, but coarse, and what we properly call home-spun; till Learning came in vogue, and Science was known amongst us. When our Princes and Senators became Scholars, they spoke scholastically. And the pedantick Style was prevalent, from the first Dawn of Letters, about the Age of the Reformation, and till

till long afterwards. Witness the best written Discourses, the admir'd Speeches, Orations, or Sermons, thro' several Reigns, down to these latter, which we compute within the present Age. 'Twill undoubtedly be found, That till very late days, the Fashion of speaking, and the Turn of Wit, was after the figurative and florid Manner. Nothing was so acceptable as the high-sounding Phrase, the far-fetch'd Comparifon, the capricious Point, and Play of Words; and nothing so despicable as what was merely of the plain or natural kind. So that it must either be confess'd, that in respect of the preceding Age, we are fallen very low in TASTE; or that, if we are in reality improv'd, the natural and simple Manner which conceals and covers ART, is the most truly artful, and of the genteelest, truest, and best-study'd Taste: as has * above been treated more at large,

NOW, THEREFORE, as to our Author's PHILOSOPHY it-self, as it lies conceal'd in † this Treatise, but more profess'd and formal in his ‡ next; we shall proceed gradually according to his own Method: since it becomes not one who has undertaken the part of his airy Assistant and humorous Paraphrast, to enter suddenly, without good preparation, into his dry Reasonings and moral Researches about the social Passions and natural Affections, of which he is such a punctilious Examiner.

* Page 21. and VOL. I. pag. 257, 258.

† Viz. Soliloquy, or Advice to an Author: Treatise III. VOL. I.

‡ Viz. INQUIRY, &c. Treatise IV. VOL. II.

OF all human Affections, the noblest and Most becoming human Nature, is that of LOVE to one's Country. This, perhaps, will easily be allow'd by all Men, who have really a COUNTRY, and are of the number of those who may be call'd * A PEOPLE, as enjoying the Happiness of a real Constitution and Polity, by which they are free and Independent. There are few such Country-men or Free-men so degenerate, as directly to discountenance or condemn this Passion of Love to their Community and national Brotherhood. The indirect manner of opposing this Principle, is the most usual. We hear it commonly, as a Complaint, "That there is little of this LOVE extant in the World." From whence 'tis hastily concluded, "That there is little or nothing of friendly

*A Multitude held together by Force, tho' under one and the same Head, is not properly united: nor does such a Body make a people. 'Tis the social League, Confederacy, and mutual Consent, founded in some common Good or Interest, which joins the Members of a Community, and makes a People ONE. Absolute Power annuls the Publick: And where there is no Publick, or Constitution, there is in reality no Mother-COUNTRY, or NATION. See VOL. I. p. 105, 6, 7.

“ or social Affection inherent in our Nature, or “ proper to our species.” ’Tis however apparent, That there is scarce a Creature of human Kind, who is not possess’d at least with some inferior degree or meaner sort of this natural Affection to a Country.

* *Nescio qua Natale Solum dulcedine captos
Ducit.*——

’TIS a wretched Aspect of Humanity which we figure to our-selves, when we wou’d endeavour to resolve the very Essence and Foundation of this generous Passion into a Relation to mere Clay and Dust, exclusively of any thing sensible, intelligent, or moral. ’Tis, I must own, on certain Relations, or respective Proportions, that all natural Affection does in some measure depend. And in this View it cannot, I confess, be deny’d that we have each of us a certain Relation to the mere Earth itself, the very Mould or Surface of that Planet, in which, with other Animals of various sorts, We (poor Reptiles!) were also bred and nourish’d. But had it happen’d to one of us British-Men to have been born at Sea, cou’d we not therefore properly be call’d British-Men? Cou’d we be allow’d Country-Men of no sort, as

*Ovid. Pont. Lib. 1. Eleg. 3. ver. 35.

†Τὰ Καθήκοντα ταῖς σχέσεσι παραμέλειται.

having no distinct relation to any certain Soil or Region; no original Neighbourhood but with the watry Inhabitants and Sea-Monsters? Surely, if we were born of lawful Parents, lawfully employ'd, and under the Protection of Law; wherever they might be then detain'd, to whatever Colonys sent, or whither-soever driven by any Accident, or in Expeditions or Adventures in the Publick Service, or that of Mankind, we shou'd still find we had a Home, and Country, ready to lay claim to us. We shou'd be oblig'd still to consider our-selves as Fellow-Citizens, and might be allow'd to love our Country or Nation as honestly and heartily as the most inland Inhabitant or Native of the Soil. Our political and social Capacity wou'd undoubtedly come in view, and be acknowledg'd full as natural and essential in our Species, as the parental and filial kind, which gives rise to what we peculiarly call natural Affection. Or supposing that both our Birth and Parents had been unknown, and that in this respect we were in a manner younger Brothers in Society to the rest of Mankind; yet from our Nurture and Education we shou'd surely espouse some Country or other, and joyfully embracing the Protection of a Magistracy, shou'd of necessity and by force of Nature join our-selves to the general Society of Mankind, and those in particular, with whom we had enter'd into a nearer Communication of Benefits, and cloſer Sympathy of Affections. It may therefore be eſteem'd no better than a mean Subterfuge of narrow Minds, to aſſign this natural Paſſion for Society and a Country; to ſuch a Relation as that of a mere Fungus or common Excreſcence, to its Parent-Mould, or nurſing Dung-hill.
of

THE RELATION of Country-man, if it be allow'd any thing at all, muſt imply ſomething moral and ſocial. The Notion it-ſelf pre-ſuppoſes a naturally civil and political State of Mankind, and has reference to that particular part of Society to which we owe our chief Advantages as Men, and rational Creatures, ſuch as are * naturally and neceſſarily united for each other's Happineſs and Support, and for the higheſt of all Happineſſes and Enjoyments; “ The Inter“ courſe of Minds, the free Uſe of our Reaſon,
“ and the Exerciſe of mutual Love and Friend“ ſhip.”

AN ingenious Phyſician among the Moderns, having in view the natural Dependency of the vegetable and animal Kinds on their common Mother-EARTH, and obſerving that both the one and the other draw from her their continual Sulleance, (ſome rooted and fix'd down to their first abodes, others unconfined, and wandering from place to place to suck their Nourishment :) He accordingly, as I remember, styles this latter animal-Race, her releas'd Sons; Filios Terræ emancipatos. Now if this be our only way of reckoning for Mankind, we may call our-selves indeed, The Sons of EARTH, at large; but not of any particular SOIL, or District. The Division of Climates and Regions is fantastick and artificial: much more the Limits of particular Countries, Citys or Provinces. Our Natale Solum, or Mother-Earth, must by this account be the real GLOBE it-self which bears us, and in respect of which we must allow the common Animals, and even the Plants of all degrees, to claim an equal Brotherhood with us, under this common PARENT.

* VOL. I. p. 109, &c. and VOL. II. p. 27. 310, &c.

ACCORDING to this Calculation we must of necessity carry our Relation as far as to the whole material World or Universe; where alone it can prove compleat. But for the particular District or Tract of Earth, which in a vulgar sense we call our COUNTRY, however bounded or geographically divided, we can never, at this rate, frame any accountable Relation to it, nor consequently assign any natural or proper Affection towards it.

IF unhappily a Man had been born either at an Inn, or in some dirty Village; he wou'd hardly,

hardly, I think, circumscribe himself so narrowly as to accept a Denomination or Character from those nearest Appendices, or local Circumstances of his Nativity. So far shou'd one be from making the Hamlet or Parish to be characteristical in the Case, that hardly wou'd the Shire it-self, or County however rich or flourishing, be taken into the honourary Term or Appellation of one's COUNTRY. “What, then, shall we presume to call our COUNTRY? Is it ENGLAND it-self? But what of SCOTLAND? Is it therefore BRITAIN? But what of the other Islands, the Northern ORCADES, and the Southern JERSEY and GUERNSEY? What of the Plantations and POOR IRELAND?”——Behold, here, a very dubious Circumscription!

BUT what, after all, if there be a Conquest or Captivity in the case? a Migration? a national Seccession, or Abandonment of our native Seats for some other Soil or Climate? This has happen'd, we know, to our Forefathers. And as great and powerful a People as we have been of late, and have ever shewn our-selves under the influence of free Councils, and a tolerable Ministry; shou'd we relapse again into slavish Principles, or be administer'd long under such Heads as having no Thought of Liberty for themselves, ſelves, can have much leſs for EUROPE or their Neighbours; we may at laſt feel a War at home, become the Seat of it, and in the end a Conqueſt. We might then gladly embrace the hard Condition of our Predeceſſors, and exchange our beloved native Soil for that of ſome remote and uninhabited part of the World. Now ſhou'd this poſſibly be our Fate; ſhou'd ſome conſiderable Colony or Body be form'd afterwards out of our Remains, or meet as it were by Miracle, in ſome diſtant Climate; wou'd there be, for the future, no English-man remaining? No common Bond of Alliance and Friendſhip, by which we cou'd ſtill call Country-men, as before? How came we, I pray, by our antient name of English-men? Did it not travel with us over Land and Sea? Did we not, indeed, bring it with us heretofore from as far as the remoter Parts of GERMANY to this Iſland?

I MUST confeſs, I have been apt ſometimes to be very angry with our Language, for having deny'd us the uſe of the word PATRIA, and afforded us no other name to expreſs our native Community, than that of Country; which already bore * two different Significations ab-tracted from Mankind or Society. Reigning words are many times of such force as to influence us considerably in our Apprehension of things. Whether it be from any such Cause as this, I know not: but certain it is, that in the Idea of a CIVIL State or NATION, we English-men are apt to mix somewhat more than ordinary gross and earthy. No People who ow'd so much to A CONSTITUTION, and so little to A SOIL or CLIMATE, were ever known so indifferent towards one, and so passionately fond of the other. One wou'd imagine from the common Discourse of our Country-men, that the finest Lands near the EUPHRATES, the BABYLONIAN or PERSIAN Paradises, the rich Plains of EGYPT, the Grecian TEMPLE, the Roman CAMPANIA, LOMBARDY, PROVENCE, the Spanish ANDALUSIA, or the most delicious Tracts in the Eastern or Western INDIES, were contemptible Countrys in respect of OLD ENGLAND.

* Rus et Regio. In French Campagne et Pais.

Now by the good leave of these worthy Patriots of the Soil, I must take the liberty to say, I think OLD ENGLAND to have been in every respect a very indifferent Country: and that Late ENGLAND, of an Age or two old, even since Queen BESS's days, is indeed very much mended for the better. We were, in the beginning of her Grandfather's Reign, under a sort of Po- lish

lish Nobility, and had no other Libertys, than what were in common to us with the then fashionable Monarchys and Gothick Lordships of EUROPE. For Religion, indeed, we were highly fam'd, above all Nations; by being the most subject to our Ecclesiasticks at home, and the best Tributarys and Servants to the Holy See abroad.

I MUST go further yet, and own, that I think Late ENGLAND, since the Revolution, to be better still than Old ENGLAND, by many a degree; and that, in the main, we make somewhat a better Figure in EUROPE, than we did a few Reigns before. But however our People may of late have flourish'd, our Name, or Credit have risen; our Trade, and Navigation, our Manufactures, or our Husbandry been improv'd; 'tis certain that our Region, Climate, and Soil, is, in its own nature, still one and the same. And to whatever Politeness we may suppose ourselves already arriv'd; we must confess, that we are the latest barbarous, the last civiliz'd or polish'd People of EUROPE. We must allow that our first Conquest by the ROMANS brought us out of a State hardly equal to the Indian Tribes; and that our last Conquest by the NORMANS brought us only into the capacity of receiving Arts and civil Accomplishments from abroad. They came to us by degrees, from remote distances, at second or third hand; from other Courts, States, Academics, and foreign Nurseries of Wit and Manners.

L 2

came

NOTWITHSTANDING this, we have as over-weaning an Opinion of our-selves, as if we had a claim to be Original and Earth-born. As oft as we have chang'd Masters, and mix'd Races with our several successive Conquerors, we still pretend to be as legitimate and genuine Possessors of our Soil, as the antient ATHENIANS accounted themselves to have been of theirs. 'Tis remarkable however in that truly antient, wise, and witty People, That as fine Territorys and noble Countrys as they possess'd, as indisputable Masters and Superiors as they were in all Science, Wit, Politeness and Manners; they were yet so far from a conceited, selfish, and ridiculous Contempt of others, that they were even, in a contrary Extreme, "Admirers of whatever was in the "least degree ingenious or curious in foreign "Nations." Their Great Men were constant Travellers. Their Legislators and Philosophers made their Voyages into EGYPT, pass'd into CHALDEA, and PERSIA; and fail'd not to visit most of the dispers'd Grecian Governments and Colonys thro' the Islands of the ÆGEAN, in ITALY, and on the Coasts of ASIA and AFRICA.

AFRICA. 'Twas mention'd as a Prodigy, in the case of a great Philosopher, tho known to have been always poor? "That he shou'd never have travel'd, nor had ever gone out of ATHENS for his Improvement." How modest a Reflection in those who were themselves ATHENIANS!

FOR our part, we neither care that * Foreigners shou'd travel to us, nor any of ours shou'd travel into foreign Countrys. Our best Policy

* An ill Token of our being thorowly civiliz'd: since in the Judgment of the Polite and Wise, this inhospitable Disposition was ever reckon'd among the principal Marks of Barbarism. So STRABO, from other preceding Authors, κοινὸν μὲν εἶναι τοῖς βαρβάροις παῶσιν ἔθουσιν τὴν ΞΕΝΑΗΛΙΑΝ, l. 17. p. 802.

The Ζεὺς ξένιος of the Antients was one of the solemn Characters of Divinity: the peculiar Attribute of the supreme DEITY, benign to Mankind, and recommending universal Love, mutual Kindness, and Benignity between the remotest and most unlike of human Race. Thus their Divine Poet in Harmony with their Sacred Oracles, which were known frequently to confirm this Doctrine.

ξείν' ἔ μοι θέμις, ἔς, εἰδ' εἰ κακίαν σέθεν ἔλθοι, ξείνον ἀτιμῆσαι· πρὸς γὰρ Διὸς εἰσιν ἅπαντες ξεῖνοι·————— Ο Δ Ι Σ. ξ.

Again,

—————'Ουδέ τις ἄμμι βροτῶν ἐπιμίσηται ἄλλου·
 Ἄλλ' ὅδε τις δύστηνος ἀλώμενος ἔνθαδ' ἰκάνει, Ἴδὼν νῦν χρεὴ κομέειν· πρὸς γὰρ Διὸς εἰσιν ἅπαντες ξεῖνοι·————— Ο Δ Ι Σ. ζ.

And again,

Ἄφνειός ἐστότω, φίλος δ' ἦν ἀνθρώποισι·
 Πάσις γὰρ φιλέσκειν, ὁδῶ ἔπι οὐκία ναίων.

Ι Δ Ι Δ Δ. ζ.

Policy and Breeding is, it seems, “ To look “ abroad as little as possible; contract our “ Views within the narrowest Compass; and “ despise all Knowledge, Learning, or Man“ ners which are not of a Home-Growth.” For hardly will the Antients themselves be regarded by those who have so resolute a Contempt of what the politest Moderns of any Nation, besides their own, may have advanc'd in the way of Literature, Politencfs, or PHILOSOPHY.

THIS Disposition of our Country-men, from whatever Causes it may possibly be deriv'd, is, I fear, a very prepossessing Circumstance against our Author; whose Design is to advance something new, or at least something different from what is commonly current in PHILOSOPHY and MORALS. To support this Design of his, he seems intent chiefly on this single Point; “ To discover, how we may, to “ best Advantage, form within our-selves what “ in the polite World is call'd a Relish, or “ Good TASTE.”

See also Odyf. lib. 3. ver. 34, &c. and 67, &c. lib. 4. ver. 30, &c.
 and 60.

Such was ancient Heathen CHARITY, and pious Duty towards the Whole of Mankind; both those of different Nations, and different Worships. See VOL. II. pag. 165, 166.

HE begins, it's true, as near home as possible, and sends us to the narrowest of all Conversations, that of SOLILOQUY or Self-discourse. But this Correspondence, according to his Computation, is wholly impracticable, without a previous Commerce with the World: And the larger this Commerce is, the more practicable and improving the other, he thinks, is likely to prove. The Sources of this improving Art of Self-correspondence he derives from the highest Politeness and Elegance of antient Dialogue, and Debate, in matters of Wit, Knowledge and Ingenuity. And nothing, according to our Author, can so well revive this self-corresponding Practice, as the same Search and Study of the highest Politeness in modern Conversation. For this, we must necessarily be at the pains of going further abroad than the Province we call HOME. And, by this Account, it appears that our Author has little hopes of being either relish'd or comprehended by any other of his Country-men. than those who delight in the open and free Commerce of the World, and are rejoic'd to gather Views, and receive Light from every Quarter; in order to judge the best of what is perfect, and according to a just Standard, and true TASTE in every kind.

IT may be proper for us to remark in favour of our Author, that the sort of Ridicule or Raillery, which is apt to fall upon PHILOSOPHERS, is of the same kind with that which falls commonly on the VIRTUOSI, or refin'd Wits of the Age. In this latter Denomination we include the real fine Gentlemen, the Lovers of Art and Ingenuity; such as have seen the World. And inform'd themselves of the Manners and Customs of the several Nations of EUROPE, search'd into their Antiquitys, and Records; consider'd their Police, Laws and Constitutions; observ'd the Situation, Strength, and Ornaments of their Citys, their principal Arts, Studys and Amusements; their Architecture, Sculpture, Painting, Musick, and their Taste in Poetry, Learning, Language, and Conversation.

HITHERTO there can lie no Ridicule, nor the least Scope for Satirick Wit or Raillery. But when we push this Virtuoso-CHARACTER a little further, and lead our polish'd Gentleman into more nice Researches; when from the view of Mankind and their Affair, our speculative Genius, and minute Examiner of Nature's Works, proceeds with equal or perhaps superior Zeal in the Contemplation of the Insect-Life, the Conveniencys, Habitations and and OEconomy of a Race of Shell-Fish; when he has erected a Cabinet in due form, and made it the real Pattern of his Mind, replete with the same Trash and Trumpery of correspondent empty Notions, and chimerical Conceits; he then indeed becomes the Subject of sufficient Raillery, and is made the Jest of common Conversations.

A WORSE thing than this happens commonly to these inferior VIRTUOSI. In seeking so earnestly for Raritys, they fall in love with RARITY for Rareness-sake. Now, the greatest Raritys in the World are MONSTERS. So that the Study and Relish of these Gentlemen, thus assiduouſly imploy'd, becomes at last in reality monſtrous: And their whole Delight is found to consist in selecting and contemplating whatever is most monſtrous, disagreeing, out of the way, and to the least purpose of any thing in Nature

IN PHILOSOPHY, Matters answer exactly to this Virtuoso-Scheme. Let us suppose a Man, who having this Resolution merely, how to employ his Understanding to the best purpose, considers “ Who or What he is; Whence he arose, “ or had his Being; to what End he was design'd; and to what Course of Action he is “ by his natural Frame and Constitution design'd;”

“fin’d:” shou’d he descend on this account into himself, and examine his inward Powers and Facultys; or shou’d he ascend beyond his own immediate Species, City, or Community, to discover and recognize his higher Policy, or Community, (that common and universal-one, of which he is born a Member;) nothing, surely, of this kind, cou’d reasonably draw upon him the least Contempt or Mockery. On the contrary, the finest Gentleman must after all be consider’d but as an IDIOT, who talking much of the knowledge of the World and Mankind, has never so much as thought of the Study or Knowledge of himself, or of the Nature and Government of that real Publick and WORLD, from whence he holds his Being.

* Quid sumus, & quidnam victuri gignimur?—

“Where are we? Under what Roof? Or on board what Vessel? Whither bound? On what Business? Under whose Pilotship, Government, or Protection?” are Questions which every Man wou’d naturally ask, if he were on a sudden transported into a new Scene of Life. ’Tis admirable, indeed, to consider, That a Man shou’d have been long come into a World,

* Perf. Sat. 3. ver. 67.

carry'd his Reason and Sense about with him, and yet have never seriously ask'd himself this single Question, WHERE am I? or WHAT?" but, on the contrary, shou'd proceed regularly to every other Study and Inquiry, postponing this alone, as the least considerable; or leaving the Examination of it to others commission'd as he supposes, to understand and think for him, upon this Head. To be bubbled, or put upon by any sham-Advices in this Affair, is, it seems, of no consequence! We take care to examine accurately, by our own Judgment, the Affairs of other People, and the Concerns of the World which least belong to us: But what relates more immediately to our-selves, and is our chief SELF-Interest, we charitably leave to others to examine for us, and readily take up with the first Comers; on whose Honesty and good Faith 'tis presum'd we may safely rely.

HERE, methinks, the Ridicule turns more against the Philosophy-haters than the Virtuosi or Philosophers. Whilst PHILOSOPHY is taken (as in its prime Sense it ought) for Mastership in LIFE and MANNERS, 'tis like to make no ill Figure in the World, whatever Impertinencys may reign, or however extravagant the Times may prove. But let us view PHILOSOPHY, PHILOSOPHY, like mere Virtuoso-ship, in its usual Career, and we shall find The Ridicule rising full as strongly against the professors of the higher as the lower kind. Cockleshell abounds with each. Many things exterior, and without our-selves, of no relation to our real Interests or to those of Society and Mankind, are diligently investigated: Nature's remotest Operations, deepest Mysteries, and most difficult Phænomena discuss'd, and whimsically explain'd; Hypotheses and fantastick Systems erected; a Universe anatomiz'd; and by some * notable Scheme so solv'd and reduc'd, as to appear an easy Knack or Secret to those who have the Clew. Creation it-self can, upon occasion, be exhibited! Transmutations, Projections, and other Philosophical ARCANES, such as in the corporeal World can accomplish all things; while in the intellectual, a set Frame of metaphysical Phrases and Distinctions can serve to solve whatever Difficultys may be propounded either in Logicks, Ethicks, or any real Science, of whatever kind.

IT appears from hence, that the Defects of PHILOSOPHY, and those of Virtuoso-ship are of the same nature. Nothing can be more dangerous than a wrong Choice, or Misapplication in these Affairs. But as ridiculous as these

* VOL II. pag. 184, 190.

Studys are render'd by their senseless Managers; it appears, however, that each of 'em are, in their nature, essential to the Character of a Fine Gentleman and Man of Sense.

To philosophize, in a just Signification, is but to carry Good-breeding a step higher. For the Accomplishment of Breeding is, To learn whatever is decent in Company, or beautiful in Arts; and the Sum of Philosophy is, To learn what is just in Society, and beautiful in Nature, and the Order of the World.

'TIS not Wit merely, but a Temper which must form the WELL-BRED MAN. In the same manner, 'tis not a Head merely, but a Heart and Resolution which must compleat the real PHILOSOPHER. Both Characters aim at what is excellent, aspire to a just Taste, and carry in view the Model of what is beautiful and becoming. Accordingly, the respective Conduct and distinct Manners of each Party are regulated: The one according to the perfectest Ease, and good Entertainment of COMPANY; the other according to the strictest Interest of MANKIND and SOCIETY: The one according to a Man's Rank and Quality in his private Nation; the other according to his Rank and Dignity in NATURE.

WHETHER each of these Offices, or social Parts, are in themselves as convenient as becoming, is the great Question which must some-way be decided. The WELL-BRED MAN has already decided this, in his own Case, and declar'd on the side of what is Handsom: For whatever he practises in this kind *, he accounts no more than what he owes purely to himself; without regard to any further Advantage. The pretender to PHILOSOPHY, who either knows not how to determine this Affair, or if he has determin'd, knows not how to pursue his Point, with Constancy, and Firmness, remains in respect of Philosophy, what a Clown or Coxcomb is in respect of Breeding and Behaviour. Thus according to our Author, the TASTE of Beauty, and the Relish of what is decent, just, and amiable, perfects the Character of the GENTLEMAN, and the PHILOSOPHER. And the Study of such a TASTE or Relish will, as we suppose, be ever the great Employment and Concern of him, who covets as well to be wise and good, as agreeable and polite.

† Quid VERUM atque DECENS, curo, & rogo, & omnis in hoc sum.

* VOL. I. pag. 129, 130.

† Horat. lib. I. Ep. I. ver. 11.

C H A P. II.

Explanation of a TASTE continu'd.—Ridiculers of it.—Their Wit, and Sincerity.
 —Application of the Taste to Affairs of Government and Politicks.—Imaginary CHARACTERS in the State.—Young Nobility, and Gentry.—Pursuit of BEAUTY.—Preparation for Philosophy.

BY this time, surely, I must have prov'd myself sufficiently engag'd in the Project and Design of our Self-discoursing AUTHOR, whose Defence I have undertaken. His Pretension, as plainly appears in this third Treatise, is to * recommend MORALS on the same foot, with what in a lower sense is call'd Manners; and to advance PHILOSOPHY (as harsh a Subject as it may appear) on the very Foundation of what is call'd agreeable and polite. And 'tis in this Method and Management that, as his Interpreter, or Paraphrast, I have propos'd to imitate and

* VOL. I. pag. 336, &c.

accompany accompany him, as far as my Miscellaneous CHARACTER will permit.

OUR joint Endeavour, therefore, must appear this: To shew, * “ That nothing which is found “ charming or delightful in the polite World, “ nothing which is adopted as Pleasure, or En“ tertainment, of whatever kind, can any way
 “ be accounted for, supported, or establish’d,
 “ without the Pre-establishment or Supposition
 “ of a certain TASTE.” Now a TASTE or Judg- ment, ’tis suppos’d, can hardly come ready form’d with us into the World. Whatever Principles or Materials of this kind we may possibly bring with us; whatever good Facultys, Senses, or anticipating Sensations, and Imaginations, may be of Nature’s Growth, and arise properly, of themselves, without our Art, Promotion, or Assistance; the general Idea which is form’d of all this Management, and the clear Notion we attain of what is preferable and principal in all these Subjects of Choice and Estimation, will not, as I imagine, by any Person, be taken for in-nate. Use, Practice and Culture must precede the Understanding and Wit of such an ad-vanc’d Size and Growth as this. A legitimate and just TASTE can neither be begotten, made,

* VOL. I. pag. 336, &c.

conceiv'd, or produc'd, without the antecedent Labour and Pains of CRITICISM.

FOR this reason we presume not only to defend the Cause of CRITICKS; but to declare open War against those indolent supine Authors, Performers, Readers, Auditors, Actors or Spectators; who making their HUMOUR alone the Rule of what is beautiful and agreeable, and having no account to give of such their HUMOUR or odd FANCY, reject the criticizing or examining Art, by which alone they are able to discover the true BEAUTY and WORTH of every Object.

ACCORDING to that affected Ridicule which these insipid Remarkers pretend to throw upon just CRITICKS, the Enjoyment of all real Arts or natural Beautys wou'd be intirely lost: Even in Behaviour and Manners we shou'd at this rate become in time as barbarous, as in our Pleasures and Diversions. I wou'd presume it, however, of these Critick-Haters, that they are not yet so unciviliz'd, or void of all social Sense, as to maintain, "That the most barbarous Life, or brutish Pleasure, is as desirable as the most polish'd or refin'd."

FOR my own part, when I have heard sometimes Men of reputed Ability join in with that effeminate plaintive Tone of Invective against CRITICKS, I have really thought they had it in their Fancy, to keep down the growing Genius's of the Youth, their Rivals, by turning them aside from that Examination and Search, on which all good Performance as well as good Judgment depends. I have seen many a time a well-bred Man, who had himself a real good TASTE, give way, with a malicious Complaisance, to the Humour of a Company, where, in favour chiefly of the tender Sex, this soft languishing Contempt of Criticks, and their Labours, has been the Subject set a-foot. “ Wretched Creatures! (says one) impertinent Things, these Criticks, as ye call 'em!—As if one cou'dn't know what was agreeable or pretty, without their help.—'Tis fine indeed, that one shou'dn't be allow'd to fancy for one's self.—Now shou'd a thousand Criticks tell me that Mr. A—'s new Play wan't the wittiest in the World, I wou'dn't mind 'em one bit.”

THIS our real Man of Wit hears patiently; and adds, perhaps of his own, “ That he thinks it, truly, somewhat hard, in what relates to People's Diversion and Entertainment, that they shou'd be oblig'd to chuse what pleas'd others, and not themselves.” Soon after this he he goes himself to the Play, finds one of his effeminate Companions commending or admiring at a wrong place. He turns to the next Person who sits by him, and asks privately, “What he thinks of his Companion’s Relish.”

SUCH is the Malice of the World! They who by Pains and Industry have acquir’d a real TASTE in Arts, rejoice in their Advantage over others, who have either none at all, or such as renders ’em ridiculous. At an Auction of Books, or Pictures, you shall hear these Gentlemen persuading every one “To bid for what he fancies.” But, at the same time, they wou’d be foundly mortify’d themselves, if by such as they esteem’d good Judges, they shou’d be found to have purchas’d by a wrong Fancy, or ill TASTE. The same Gentleman who commends his Neighbour for ordering his Garden or Apartment, as his HUMOUR leads him, takes care his own shou’d be so order’d as the best Judgments wou’d advise. Being once a Judge himself, or but tolerably knowing in these Affairs, his Aim is not “To change the Being of Things, and bring TRUTH and NATURE to his Humour:” “but, leaving NATURE and TRUTH just as he found ’em, to accommodate his Humour and Fancy to their STANDARD.” Wou’d he do this in a yet higher Case, he might in reality become as wise and great a MAN, as he is already a refin'd and polish'd GENTLEMAN. By one of these TASTES he understands how to lay out his Garden, model his House, fancy his Equipage, appoint his Table: By the other he learns of what Value these Amusements are in Life, and of what importance to a Man's Freedom, Happiness, and Self-enjoyment. For if he wou'd try effectually to acquire the real Science or TASTE of Life; he wou'd certainly discover, "That a RIGHT MIND, and GENEROUS AFFECTION, had more Beauty and Charm, "than all other Symmetrys in the World besides." And, "That a Grain of Honesty and native "Worth, was of more value than all the adventitious Ornaments, Estates, or Preferments; for "the sake of which some of the better sort so oft turn Knaves: forsaking their Principles, "and quitting their Honour and Freedom, for a "mean, timorous, shifting State of gaudy Servitude."

A LITTLE better TASTE (were it a very little) in the Affair of Life itself, wou'd, if I mistake not, mend the Manners, and secure the Happiness of some of our noble Countrymen, who come with high Advantage and a worthy Character

raçter into the Publick. But ere they have long engag'd in it, their WORTH unhappily becomes venal. Equipages, Titles, Precedencys, Staffs, Ribbons, and other such glittering Ware, are taken in exchange for inward MERIT, HONOUR, and a CHARACTER.

THIS they may account perhaps a shreud Bargain. But there will be found very untoward Abatements in it, when the matter comes to be experienc'd. They may have descended in reality from ever so glorious Ancestors, Patriots, and Sufferers for their Nation's Liberty and Welfare: They may have made their Entrance into the World upon this bottom of anticipated Fame and Honour: They may have been advanc'd on this account to Dignitys, which they were thought to have deserv'd. But when induc'd to change their honest Measures, and sacrifice their Cause and Friends to an imaginary private Interest; they will soon find, by Experience, that they have lost the Relish and TASTE of Life; and for insipid wretched Honours, of a deceitful kind, have unhappily exchang'd an amiable and sweet Honour, of a sincere and lasting Relish, and good Savour. They may, after this, act Farces, as they think fit, and hear Qualitys and Virtues assign'd to 'em under the Titles of Graces, Excellencys, Honours, and the rest of this mock-Praise and mimical Appellation. They may even with serious Looks be told of Honour and Worth, their PRINCIPLE, and their COUNTRY: But they know better within themselves; and have occasion to find That, after all, the World too knows better; and that their few Friends and Admirers have either a very shallow Wit, or a very profound Hypocrisy.

'Tis not in one Party alone that these Purchases and Sales of HONOUR are carry'd on. I can represent to my-self a noted PATRIOT, and reputed Pillar of the religious Part of our Constitution, who having by many and long Services, and a steady Conduct, gain'd the Reputation of thorow Zeal with his own Party, and of Sincerity and Honour with his very Enemies, on a sudden (the time being come that the Fulness of his Reward was set before him) submits complacently to the propos'd Bargain, and sells himself for what he is worth, in a vile detestable Old-Age, to which he has reserv'd the Infamy of betraying both his Friends and Country.

I CAN imagine, on the other side, one of a contrary Party; a noted Friend to LIBERTY in Church and State; an Abhorrer of the slavish Dependency on Courts, and of the narrow Principles principles of Bigots: Such a one, after many publick Services of note, I can see wrought upon, by degrees, to seek Court-Preferment; and this too under a Patriot-Character. But having perhaps try'd this way with less success, he is oblig'd to change his Charaēter, and become a royal Flatterer, a Courtier against his Nature; submitting himself, and suing, in so much the meaner degree, as his inherent Principles are well known at Court, and to his new-adopted Party, to whom he feigns himself a Profelyte.

THE greater the Genius or Charaēter is of such a Person, the greater is his Slavery, and heavier his Load. Better had it been that he had never discover'd such a Zeal for publick Good, or signaliz'd himself in that Party which can with least grace make Sacrifices of national Interests to a Crown, or to the private Will, Appetite or Pleasure of a Prince. For supposing such a Genius as this had been to act his Part of Courtship in some foreign and absolute Court; how much less infamous wou'd his Part have prov'd? How much less slavish, amidst a People who were All Slaves? Had he peradventure been one of that forlorn begging Troop of Gentry extant in DENMARK, or SWEDEN, since the time that those Nations lost their Libertys; had he liv'd out of a free Nation, and happily-balanc'd Constitution; had he been either conscious of no Talent in the Affairs of Government, or of no Opportunity to exert any such, to the advantage of Mankind: Where had been the mighty shame, if perhaps he had employ'd some of his Abilitys in flattering like others, and paying the necessary Homage requir'd for Safety's sake, and Self-preservation, in absolute and despotick Governments? The TASTE, perhaps, in strictness, might still be wrong, even in this hard Circumstance: But how inexcusable in a quite contrary one! For let us suppose our Courtier not only an English-man, but of the Rank and Stem of those old English Patriots who were wont to curb the Licentiousness of our Court, arraign its Flatterers, and purge away those Poisons from the Ear of Princes; let us suppose him of a competent Fortune and moderate Appetites, without any apparent Luxury or Lavishment in his Manners: What shall we, after this, bring in Excuse, or as an Apology, for such a Choice as his? How shall we explain this preposterous Relish, this odd Preference of Subtlety and Indirectness, to true Wisdom, open Honesty, and Uprightness?

'Tis easier, I confess, to give account of this Corruption of TASTE in some noble Youth of a more sumptuous gay Fancy; supposing him born truly Great, and of honourable Descent;

scant; with a generous free MIND, as well as ample Fortune. Even these Circumstances themselves may be the very Causes perhaps of his being thus ensnar'd. The * Elegance of his Fancy in outward things, may have made him over-look the Worth of inward Character and Proportion: And the Love of Grandure and Magnificence, wrong turn'd, may have possess'd his Imagination over-strongly with such things as Frontispieces, Parterres, Equipages, trim Varlets in party-colour'd Clothes; and others in Gentlemens Apparel.——Magnanimous Exhibitions of Honour and Generosity!—" In Town,
 " a Palace and sutable Furniture! In the " Country the same; with the addition of such
 " Edifices and Gardens as were unknown to
 " our Ancestors, and are unnatural to such a
 " Climate as GREAT BRITAIN!"

MEAN while the Year runs on; but the Year's Income answers not its Expence. For " Which of these Articles can be retrench'd?
 " Which way take up, after having thus set " out? A Princely Fancy has begot all this, and a Princely Slavery, and Court-Dependance must maintain it.

* VOL. I. pag. 139.

THE young Gentleman is now led into a Chace, in which he will have slender Capture, tho' Toil sufficient. He is himself taken. Nor will he so easily get out of that Labyrinth, to which he chose to commit his steps, rather than to the more direct and plainer Paths in which he trod before. "Farewel that generous proud Spirit, which was wont to speak only what it approv'd, commend only whom it thought worthy, and act only what it thought right! Favourites must be now observ'd, little Engines of Power attended on, and loathsome cares'd: an honest Man dreaded, and every free Tongue or Pen abhor'd as dangerous and reproachful". For till our Gentleman is become wholly prostitute and shameless; till he is brought to laugh at publick Virtue, and the very Notion of common Good; till he has openly renounc'd all Principles of Honour and Honesty, he must in good Policy avoid those to whom he lies so much expos'd, and shun that Commerce and Familiarity which was once his chief Delight.

SUCH is the Sacrifice made to a wrong Pride, and ignorant Self-esteem; by one whose inward Character must necessarily, after this manner, become as mean and abject, as his outward

outward Behaviour insolent and intolerable.

THERE are another sort of Suitors to Power, and Traffickers of inward WORTH and LIBERTY for outward Gain, whom one wou'd be naturally drawn to compassionate. They are themselves of a humane, compassionate, and friendly nature, Well-wishers to their Country and Mankind. They cou'd, perhaps, even embrace POVERTY contentedly, rather than submit to any thing diminutive either of their inward Freedom or national Liberty. But what they can bear in their own Persons, they cannot bring themselves to bear in the Persons of such as are to come after them. Here the best and noblest of Affections are borne down by the Excess of the next best, those of Tendernefs for Relations and near Friends.

SUCH Captives as these wou'd disdain, however, to devote themselves to any Prince or Ministry whose Ends were wholly tyrannical, and irreconcilable with the true Interest of their Nation. In other cases of a less Degeneracy, they may bow down perhaps in the Temple of RIMMON, support the Weight of their supine LORDS. And prop the steps and ruining Credit of their corrupt Patrons.

THIS is Drudgery sufficient for such honest Natures; such as by hard Fate alone cou'd have been made dishonest. But as for Pride or Insolence on the account of their outward Advancement and seeming Elevation; they are so far from any thing resembling it, that one may often observe what is very contrary in these fairer Characters of Men. For tho' perhaps they were known somewhat rigid and severe before; you see 'em now grown in reality submissive and obliging. Tho' in Conversation formerly dogmatical and over-bearing, on the Points of State and Government; they are now the patientest to hear, the least forward to dictate, and the readiest to embrace any entertaining Subject of Discourse, rather than that of the Publick, and their own personal Advancement.

NOTHING is so near Virtue as this Behaviour; and nothing so remote from it, nothing so sure a Token of the most profligate Manners, as the contrary. In a free Government, 'tis so much the Interest of every one in Place, who profits by the Publick, to demean himself with Modesty and Submission; that to appear immediately the more insolent and haughty on such an Advancement, is the mark only of a contemptible Genius, and of a want of true

true Understanding, even in the narrow Sense of Interest and private Good.

THUS we see, after all, that 'tis not merely what we call Principle, but a TASTE, which governs Men. They may think for certain, "This is right, or that wrong:" They may believe "This a Crime, or that a Sin; This punishable by Man, or that by God:" Yet if the Savor of things lies cross to HONESTY; if the Fancy be florid, and the Appetite high towards the subaltern Beautys and lower Order of worldly Symmetrys and Proportions; the Conduct will infallibly turn this latter way.

EVEN Conscience, I fear, such as is owing to religious Discipline, will make but a slight Figure, where this TASTE is set amiss. Among the Vulgar perhaps it may do wonders. A Devil and a Hell may prevail, where a Jail and Gallows are thought insufficient. But such is the Nature of the liberal, polish'd, and refin'd part of Mankind; so far are they from the mere Simplicity of Babes and Sucklings; that, instead of applying the Notion of a future Reward or Punishment to their immediate Behaviour in Society, they are apt, much rather, thro' the whole Course of their Lives, to shew evidently that they look on the pious Narrations tions to be indeed no better than Childrens Tales, or the Amusement of the mere Vulgar:

† Esse aliquos Manes, & subterranea regna,
* * * * *

Nec pueri credunt, nisi qui nondum ære lavantur.

SOMETHING therefore shou'd, methinks, be further thought of, in behalf of our generous Youths, towards the correcting of their TASTE, or Relish in the Concerns of Life. For this at last is what will influence. And in this respect the Youth alone are to be regarded. Some hopes there may be still conceiv'd of These. The rest are confirm'd and harden'd in their way. A middle-ag'd Knave (however devout or orthodox) is but a common Wonder: An old-one is no Wonder at all: But a young-one is still (thank Heaven!) somewhat extraordinary. And I can never enough admire what was said once by a worthy Man at the first appearance of one of these young able Prostitutes, “ That he even trembled “ at the sight, to find Nature capable of being “ turn'd so soon: and That he boded greater “ Calamity to his Country from this single “ Example of young Villany, than from the † Juven. Sat. 2. ver. 149.

“ Practices and Arts of all the old Knaves in “ being.”

LET us therefore proceed in this view, addressing our-selves to the grown Youth of our polite World. Let the Appeal be to these whose Relish is retrievable, and whose Taste may yet be form'd in Morals; as it seems to be, already, in exterior Manners and Behaviour.

THAT there is really A STANDARD of this latter kind, will immediately, and on the first view, be acknowledg'd. The Contest is only, “ Which is right:—Which the un-affected Carriage, and just Demeanour: And “ Which the affected and false.” Scarce is there any-one, who pretends not to know and to decide What is well-bred and handsom. There are few so affectedly clownish, as absolutely to disown Good-breeding, and renounce the Notion of A BEAUTY in outward Manners and Deportment. With such as these, wherever they shou'd be found, I must confess, I cou'd scarce be tempted to bestow the least Pains or Labour, towards convincing 'em of a Beauty in inward Sentiments and Principles.

WHOEVER has any Impression of what we call Gentility or Politeness, is already so acquainted quainted with the DECORUM and GRACE of things, that he will readily confess a Pleasure and Enjoyment in the very Survey and Contemplation of this kind. Now if in the way of polite Pleasure, the Study and Love of BEAUTY be essential; the Study and Love of SYMMETRY and ORDER, on which Beauty depends, must also be essential, in the same respect.

'Tis impossible we can advance the least in any Relish or Taste of outward Symmetry and Order; without acknowledging that the proportionate and regular State, is the truly prosperous and natural in every Subject. The same Features which make Deformity, create Incommodiousness and Disease. And the same Shapes and Proportions which make Beauty, afford Advantage, by adapting to Activity and Use. Even in the imitative or designing Arts (to which our Author so often refers) the Truth or Beauty of every Figure or Statue is measur'd from the Perfection of Nature, in her just adapting of every Limb and Proportion to the Activity, Strength, Dexterity, Life and Vigor of the particular Species or Animal design'd.

THUS Beauty and * Truth are plainly join'd with the Notion of Utility and Convenience, even in the Apprehension of every ingenious Artist, the * Architect, the Statuary, or the Painter. 'Tis the same in the Physician's way. Natural Health is the just Proportion, Truth, and regular Course of things, in a Constitution. 'Tis the inward Beauty of the BODY. And when the Harmony and just Measures of the rising Pulses, the circulating Humours, and the moving Airs or Spirits are disturb'd or lost, Deformity enters, and with it, Calamity and Ruin.

* VOL. I. pag. 142, &c.

SHOU'D not this (one wou'd imagine) be still the same Case, and hold equally as to the MIND? Is there nothing there which tends to Disturbance and Dissolution? Is there no natural Tenour, Tone or Order of the Passions or Affections? No Beauty, or Deformity in this moral kind?

* In GRÆCIS Operibus, nemo sub mutulo denticulos constituit, &c. Quod ergo supra Canthērios et Templā in Veritate delect esse collocatum, id in Imaginibus, si infra constitutum fuerit, mendosam habebit operis rationem. Etiamque ANTIQVI non probaverunt, neque instituerunt, &c. Ita quod non potest in Veritate fieri, id non putaverunt in Imaginibus factum, posse certam rationem habere. Omnia enim certa proprietate et a veris NATURÆ deductis Moribus, traduxerunt in Operum perfectiones: et ea probaverunt quorum explicationes in Disputationibus rationem possunt habere VERITATIS. Itaque ex eis Originibus Symmetrias et Proportiones cuiuscujusque generis constitutas reliquerunt. VITRUVIUS, lib. 4. cap. 2. whose Commentator PHILANDER may be also read on this place. See above, VOL. I. pag. 208, 336, &c. 340, 350, &c. And below, pag. 259, 260.

Or allowing that there really is; must it not, of consequence, in the same manner imply Health or Sickliness, Prosperity or Disaster? Will it not be found in this respect, above all, “ That what is

* This is the HONESTUM, the PULCHRUM, τὸ Καλὸν, on which our Author lays the stress of VIRTUE, and the Merits of this Cause; as well in his other Treatises, as in this of Soliloquy here commented. This Beauty the ROMAN Orator, in his rhetorical way, and in the Majesty of Style, cou'd express no otherwise than as A Mystery. “ HONESTUM igitur id intelligimus quod tale est, ut, detracta “ omni utilitate, sine ullis præmiis fructibusve, per seipsum possit jure laudari.
“ Quod quale sit, non tam definitione qua sum usus intelligi potest (quanquam “ aliquantum potest) quam COMMUNI omnium JUDICIO, et “ optimi cujusque Studii, atque sælis; qui per multa eam unam causam fa“ ciunt, quia decet, quia rectum, quia honestum est; etsi nullum consecutum “ emolumentum vident.” Our Author, on the other side, having little of the Orator, and less of the Constraint of Formality belonging to some graver Characters can be more familiar on this occasion: and accordingly descending, without the least scruple, into whatever Style, or Humour; he refuses to make the least Difficulty or Mystery of this matter. He pretends, on this head, to claim the Assent not only of Orators, Poets, and the higher Virtuosi; but even of the Beaux themselves, and such as go no farther than the Dancing-Master to seek for Grace and Beauty. He pretends, we see, to fetch this natural Idea from as familiar Amusements as Dress, Equipage, the Tiring-Room, or Toy-shop. And thus in his proper manner of SOLILOQUY, or Self-discourse, we may imagine him running on: beginning perhaps with some particular Scheme or fancy'd Scale of BEAUTY, which, according to his Philosophy, he strives to erect; by distinguishing, sorting, and dividing into Things animate, in-animate, and mixt: as thus.

In the IN-ANIMATE; beginning from those regular Figures and Symmetries with which Children are delighted; and proceeding gradually to the Proportions of Architecture and the other Arts.—

“ is * BEAUTIFUL is harmonious and proportion- “ able; what is harmonious and proportion- “ able, is TRUE; and what is at once both beau- “ tiful and true, is, of consequence, agreeable
 “ and GOOD?”

WHERE

The same in respect of Sounds and MUSIC. From beautiful Stones, Rocks, Minerals; to Vegetables, Woods, aggregate Parts of the World, Seas, Rivers, Mountains, Vales,———The Globe.———Celestial Bodys, and their Order. The higher Architecture of Nature.———NATURE her-self, consider'd as in-animate and passive.

In the ANIMATE; from Animals, and their several Kinds, Tem- pers, Sagacitys, to Men,———And from single Persons of Men, their private Charaēters, Understandings, Genius's, Dispositions, Manners; to Pub- lick Societys, Communitys or Commonwealths.———From Flocks, *Herd*s, and other natural Assemblages or Groups of living Creatures, to human In- telligencys and Correspondencys, or whatever is higher in the kind. The Correspondence, Union and Harmony of NATURE her-self, confi-der'd as animate and intelligent.

In the MIXT; as in a single Person (a Body and a Mind) the Union and Harmony of this kind, which constitutes the real Person: and the Friendship, Love, or whatever other Affection is form'd on such an Ob- ject. A Household, a City, or Nation, with certain Lands, Buildings, and other Appendices, or local Ornaments, which jointly form that agreeable Idea of Home, Family, Country.———

“ And what of this?” (says an airy Spark, no Friend to Meditation or deep Thought) “ What means this Catalogue, or Scale, as you are pleas'd “ to call it? Only, Sir, to satisfy my-self, That I am not alone, “ or single in a certain Fancy I have of a thing call'd BEAUTY; That “ I have almost the whole World for my Companions; and That each “ of us Admirers and earnest Pursuers of BEAUTY (such as in a manner
 “ we All are) if peradventure we take not a certain Sagacity along with “ us, we must err widely, range extravagantly, and run ever upon a false “ Scent. We may (in the Sportsman's Phrase) have many Hares afoot, but “ I shall stick to no real Game, nor be fortunate in any Capture which may “ content us.

WHERE then is this BEAUTY or Harmony to be found? How is this SYMMETRY to be discover'd and apply'd? Is it any other Art than that of PHILOSOPHY, or the Study of inward Numbers and “ See with what Ardour and Vehemence, the young Man, neglecting his proper Race and Fellow-Creatures, and forgetting what is decent, handsom, or becoming in human Affairs, pursues these S P E C I E S in those common Objects of his Affection, a Horse, a Hound, a Hawk!——What doting on these Beautys!——What Admiration of the Kind it-self! And of the particular Animal, what Care, and in a manner Idolatry and Consecration; when the Beast beloved is (as often happens) even set apart from use, and only kept to gaze on, and feed the enamour'd Fancy with highest Delight!——See! in another Youth not so forgetful of Human Kind, but remembering it still in a wrong way! a φιλόκαλός of another sort, a C H Œ R E A. Quam elegans formarum Spectator!——See! as to other Beautys, where there is no Possession, no Enjoyment or Reward, but barely seeing and admiring: as in the Virtuoso-Passion, the Love of Painting, and the Designing Arts of every kind, so often observ'd.——How fares it with our princely Genius, our Grandee who assembles all these Beautys, and within the Bounds of his sumptuous Palace incloses all these Graces of a thousand kinds?——What Pains! Study! Science!——Behold the Disposition and Order of these finer sorts of Apartments, Gardens, Villas!——The kind of Harmony to the Eye, from the various Shapes and Colours agreeably mixt, and rang'd in Lines, intercrossing without confusion, and fortunately co-incident.——A Parterre, Cypresses, Groves, Wildernesses.——Statues, here and there, of Virtue, Fortitude, Temperance.——Heroes-Busts, Philosophers, Heads; with futable Motto's and Inscriptions.——Solemn Representations of things deeply natural.——Caves, Grotto's, Rocks.——Urns and Obelisks in retir'd places, and dispos'd at proper distances and points of Sight: with all those Symmetrys which silently express a reign-and Proportions, which can exhibit this in Life? If no other; Who, then, can possibly have a TASTE of this kind, without being beholden to PHILOSOPHY? Who can admire the outward Beautys, and not recur instantly to the inward, which are the most real and essential, the most naturally affecting, and of the highest Pleasure, as well as Profit and Advantage?

“ ing

IN

ing Order, Peace, Harmony, and Beauty!———But what is there answerable to this, in the MINDS of the Possessors?———What Possession or Propriety is theirs? What Constancy or Security of Enjoyment? What Peace, what Harmony WITHIN."

Thus our MONOLOGIST, or self-discoursing Author, in his usual Strain; when incited to the Search of BEAUTY and the DECORUM, by vulgar Admirations, and the universal Acknowledgment of the SPECIES in outward Things, and in the meaner and subordinate Subjects. By this inferior Species, it seems, our strict Inspector disdains to be allur'd: And refusing to be captivated by any thing less than the superior, original, and genuine Kind; he walks at leisure, without Emotion, in deep philosophical Reserve, thro' all these pompous Scenes; passes unconcernedly by those Court-Pageants, the illustrious and much-envy'd Potentates of the Place; overlooks the Rich, the Great, and even the Fair: Feeling no other Astonishment than what is accidentally rais'd in him, by the View of these Impostures, and of this specious Snare. For here he observes those Gentlemen chiefly to be caught and fastest held, who are the highest Ridiculers of such Reflections as his own, and who in the very height of this Ridicule prove themselves the impotent Contemners of a SPECIES, which, whether they will or no, they ardently pursue: Some, in a Face, and certain regular Lines, or Features: Others in a Palace and Apartments: Others in an Equipage and Dress.———"O EFFEMINACY! EFFEMINACY! Who wou'd imagine this cou'd be the Vice of such as appear no inconsiderable Men?———"

"But Person is a Subject of Flattery which reaches beyond the Bloom of

IN so short a compass does that Learning and Knowledge lie, on which Manners and Life depend. 'Tis We our-selves create and form our TASTE. If we resolve to have it just; 'tis in our power. We may esteem and value, approve and disapprove, as we wou'd wish. For who wou'd not rejoice to be always equal and consonant to himself, and have constantly that Opinion of things which is natural and proportionable? But who dares search OPINION to the bottom, or call in question his early and prepossessing TASTE? Who is so just to himself, as to recal his FANCY from the power of Fashion and Education, to that of REASON? Cou'd we, however, be thus courageous; we shou'd soon settle in our-selves such an Opinion of GODD as wou'd secure to us an invariable, agree-

“ Youth. The experienc'd Senator and aged General, can, in our days, dispense with a Toilet, and take his outward Form into a very extraordinary Adjustment and Regulation. All Embellishments are affected, besides the true. And thus, led by Example, whilst we run in search of Elegancy and Neatness; pursuing B E A U T Y; and adding, as we imagine, more Lustre, and Value to our own Person; we grow, in our real Character and truer S E L F, deform'd and monstrous, servile and abject; stooping to the lowest Terms of Courtship; and sacrificing all internal Proportion, all intrinsic and real B E A U T Y and W O R T H, for the sake of Things which carry scarce a Shadow of the Kind.” Supra, VOL. II. pag. 394, &c. and VOL. I. pag. 138, &c. and pag. 337. able, able, and just TASTE in Life and Manners.

THUS HAVE I endeavour'd to tread in my Author's steps, and prepare the Reader for the serious and downright Philosophy, which even in this * last commented Treatise, our Author keeps still as a Mystery, and dares not formally profess. His pretence has been to advise Authors, and polish Styles; but his Aim has been to correct Manners, and regulate Lives. He has affected SOLILOQUY, as pretending only to censure Himself; but he has taken occasion to bring others into his Company, and make bold with Personages and Characters of no inferior Rank. He has given scope enough to Raillery and Humour; and has intrench'd very largely on the Province of us Miscellanarian Writers. But the Reader is † now about to see him in a new aspect, “ a formal and profess'd “ Philosopher, a System-Writer, a Dogmatist, and “ Expounder.”——Habes contententem reum.

So to his PHILOSOPHY I commit him. Tho, according as my Genius and present Dispositi-

* Viz. Treatise III. (ADVICE to an Author) VOL. I.

† Viz. In Treatise IV. (The INQUIRY, &c.) VOL. II.

on will permit, I intend still to accompany him at a distance, keep him in sight, and convoy him, the best I am able, thro' the dangerous Seas he is about to pass.

MISCELLANY IV.

CHAP. I.

Connexion and Union of the Subject-Treatise.—PHILOSOPHY in form.—Metaphysicks.—EGO-ity.—Identity.—Moral Footing.—Proof and Discipline of the Fancys. Settlement of OPINION.—Anatomy of the Mind.—A Fable.

WE have already, in the beginning of our preceding Miscellany, taken notice of our Author's Plan, and the Connection and Dependency of his * Joint-Tracts, comprehended in two preceding Volumes. We are now in our Commentator-Capacity, arriv'd at length to his second Volume, to which the three Pieces of his first appear preparatory. That they were really so design'd, the Adver- tisement to the first Edition of his Soliloquy is a sufficient Proof. He took occasion there, in a line or two, under the Name of his Printer, or (as he otherwise calls him) his Amanuensis, to prepare us for a more elaborate and methodical Piece which was to follow. We have this System now before us. Nor need we wonder, such as it is, that it came so hardly into the World, and that our Author has been deliver'd of it with so much difficulty, and after so long a time. His Amanuensis and he, were not, it seems, heretofore upon such good Terms of Correspondence. Otherwise such an unshapen Fetus, or false Birth, as that of which our Author in his * Title-page complains, had not formerly appear'd abroad. Nor had it ever risen again in its more decent Form, but for the accidental Publication of our Author's First † Letter, which, by a necessary Train of Consequences, occasion'd the revival of this abortive Piece, and gave usherance to its Companions.

* Above, pag. 135. Again below, 214, 285, &c.

tisement

IT will appear therefore in this Joint-Edition of our Author's Five Treatises, that the Three former are preparatory to the Fourth, on which we are now enter'd; and the Fifth

* Viz. To the INQUIRY (Treatise IV.) VOL. II.

† Viz. Letter of Enthusiasm, VOL. I.

(with which he concludes) a kind of Apology for this reviv'd Treatise concerning Virtue and Religion.

As for his APOLOGY) particularly in what relates to reveal'd Religion, and a World to come) I commit the Reader to the disputant Divines, and Gentlemen, whom our Author has introduc'd in that concluding Piece of Dialogue-Writing, or rhapsodical Philosophy. Mean while, we have here no other part left us, than to enter into the dry PHILOSOPHY, and rigid Manner of our Author; without any Excursions into various Literature; without help from the Comick or Tragick MUSE, or from the Flowers of Poetry or Rhetorick.

SUCH is our present Pattern, and strict moral Task; which our more humorous Reader fore-knowing, may immediately, if he pleases, turn over; skipping (as is usual in many grave Works) a Chapter or two, as he proceeds. We shall, to make amends, endeavour afterwards, in our following MISCELLANY, to entertain him again with more chearful Fare, and afford him a Deffert, to rectify his Palat, and leave his Mouth at last in good relish.

To the patient and grave READER, therefore, who in order to moralize can afford to retire tire into his Clofet, as to some religious or devout Exercise, we presume thus to offer a few Reflections, in the support of our Author's profound INQUIRY. And accordingly, we are to imagine our Author speaking as follows.

HOW LITTLE regard soever may be shewn to that moral Speculation or INQUIRY, which we call the Study of ourselves; it must, in strictness, be yielded, That all Knowledge whatsoever depends upon this previous-one: "And that we can in reality be assur'd of nothing, till we are first assur'd of What we are OURSELVES." For by this alone we can know what Certainty and Affurance is.

THAT there is something undoubtedly which thinks, our very Doubt it-self and scrupulous Thought evinces. But in what Subject that Thought resides, and how that Subject is continu'd one and the same, so as to answer constantly to the suppos'd Train of Thoughts or Reflections which seem to run so harmoniously thro' a long Course of Life, with the same relation still to one single and self-same PERSON; this is not a Matter so easily or hastily decided, by those who are nice Self-Examiners, or Searchers after Truth and Certainty.

'TWILL

TWILL not, in this respect, be sufficient for us to use the seeming Logick of a famous * Modern, and say, “We think, therefore We are.” Which is a notably invented Saying, after the Model of that like philosophical Proposition; That “What is, is.”——Miraculously argu’d! “If I am; I am.”——Nothing more certain! For the EGO or I, being establish’d in the first part of the Proposition, the Ergo, no doubt, must hold it good in the latter. But the Question is, “What constitutes the WE or I?” And, “Whether the I of this instant, be the same with that of any instant “preceding, or to come.” For we have nothing but Memory to warrant us: and Memory may be false. We may believe we have thought and reflected thus or thus: But we may be mistaken. We may be conscious of that, as Truth; which perhaps was no more than Dream: and we may be conscious of that as a past Dream, which perhaps was never before so much as dreamt of.

THIS is what Metaphysicians mean, when they say, “That Identity can be prov’d only “by Consciousness; but that Consciousness, with“al, may be as well false as real, in respect

* MONSIEUR DES CARTES.

“of what is past.” So that the same successful We or I must remain still, on this account, undecided.

To the force of this Reasoning I confess I must so far submit, as to declare that for my own part, I take my Being upon Trust. Let others philosophize as they are able: I shall admire their strength, when, upon this Topick, they have refuted what able Metaphysicians object, and PYRRHONISTS plead in their own behalf.

MEAN while, there is no Impediment, Hindrance, or Suspension of Action, on account of these wonderfully refin'd Speculations. Argument and Debate go on still. Conduct is settled. Rules and Measures are given out, and receiv'd. Nor do we scruple to act as resolutely upon the mere Supposition that we are, as if we had effectually prov'd it a thousand times, to the full satisfaction of our Metaphysical or Pyrrhonian Antagonist.

THIS to me appears sufficient Ground for a Moralist. Nor do I ask more, when I undertake to prove the reality of VIRTUE and MORALS.

IF it be certain that I AM; 'tis certain and demonstrable WHO and WHAT I ought to be, even

even on my own account, and for the sake of my own private Happiness and Success. For thus I take the liberty to proceed

THE Affections, of which I am conscious, are either GRIEF or JOY; DESIRE, or AVERSION. For whatever mere Sensation I may experience; if it amounts to neither of these, 'tis indifferent, and no way affects me.

THAT which causes Joy and Satisfaction when present, causes Grief and Disturbance when absent: And that which causes Grief and Disturbance when present, does, when absent, by the same necessity occasion Joy and Satisfaction.

THUS LOVE (which implies Desire with Hope of Good) must afford occasion to Grief and Disturbance, when it acquires not what it earnestly seeks. And HATRED (which implies Aversion and Fear of Ill) must, in the same manner, occasion Grief and Calamity, when that which it earnestly shun'd, or wou'd have escap'd, remains present, or is altogether unavoidable.

THAT which being present can never leave the Mind at rest, but must of necessity cause Aversion, is its ILL. But that which can be sustain'd without any necessary Abhorrence, or Aversion

Aversion, is not its ILL; but remains indifferent in its own nature; the ILL being in the Affection only, which wants redress.

IN the same manner, that which being absent, can never leave the Mind at rest, or without Disturbance and Regret, is of necessity its GOOD. But that which can be absent, without any present or future Disturbance to the Mind, is not its GOOD, but remains indifferent in its own nature. From whence it must follow, That the Affection towards it, as suppos'd GOOD, is an ill Affection, and creative only of Disturbance and Disease. So that the AFFECTIONS of Love and Hatred, Liking and Dislike, on which the Happiness or Prosperity of the Person so much depends, being influenc'd and govern'd by OPINION; the highest Good or Happiness must depend on right Opinion, and the highest Misery be deriv'd from wrong.

To explain this, I consider for instance, the Fancy or Imagination I have of Death, according as I find this Subject naturally passing in my Mind. To this Fancy, perhaps, I find united an OPINION OF APPREHENSION of Evil and Calamity. Now the more my Apprehension of this Evil increases; the greater, I find, my Disturbance proves, not only at the approach

approach of the suppos'd Evil, but at the very distant Thought of it. Besides that, the Thought itself will of necessity so much the oftner recur, as the Aversion or Fear is violent, and increasing.

FROM this suppos'd Evil I must, however, fly with so much the more earnestness, as the OPINION of the Evil increases. Now if the Increase of the Aversion can be no Cause of the Decrease or Diminution of the Evil it-self, but rather the contrary; then the Increase of the Aversion must necessarily prove the Increase of Disappointment and Disturbance. And so on the other hand the Diminution or Decrease of the Aversion (if this may any way be effected) must of necessity prove the Diminution of inward Disturbance, and the better Establishment of inward Quiet and Satisfaction.

AGAIN, I consider with my-self, That I have the * Imagination of something BEAUTIFUL, GREAT, and BECOMING in Things. This Imagination I apply perhaps to such Sub-

* Of the necessary Being and Prevalency of some such IMAGINATION or SENSE (natural and common to all Men, irresistible, of original Growth in the Mind, the Guide of our Affections, and the Ground of our Admiration, Contempt, Shame, Honour, Disdain, and other natural and unavoidable Impressions) See VOL. I. pag. 138, 139, 336, 337. VOL. II. pag. 28, 29, 30, 394, 420, 421, 429, 430. And above, p. 30, 31, 2, 3, &c. 182, 3. 4. 5, 6. in the Notes.

jects as Plate, Jewels, Apartments, Coronets, Patents of Honour, Titles, or Precedencys. I must therefore naturally seek these, not as mere Conveniencys, Means, or Helps in Life, (for as such my Passion cou'd not be so excessive towards 'em) but as EXCELLENT in themselves, necessarily attractive of my Admiration, and directly and immediately causing my Happiness, and giving me Satisfaction. Now if the PASSION rais'd on this Opinion (call it Avarice, Pride, Vanity, or Ambition) be indeed incapable of any real Satisfaction, even under the most successful Course of Fortune; and then too, attended with perpetual Fears of Disappointment and Loss: how can the Mind be other than miserable, when possess'd by it? But if instead of forming thus the Opinion of GOOD; if instead of placing WORTH or EXCELLENCE in these outward Subjects, we place it, where it is truest, in the Affections or Sentiments, in the governing Part and inward Character; we have then the full Enjoyment of it within our power: The Imagination or Opinion remains steady and irreversible: And the Love, Desire and Appetite is answer'd; without Apprehension of Loss or Disappointment.

HERE therefore arises Work and Employment for us Within: " To regulate FANCY,
and

“ and rectify * OPINION, on which all depends.” For if our Loves, Desires, Hatreds and Aversions are left to themselves; we are necessarily expos'd to endless Vexation and Calamity: but if these are found capable of Amendment, or in any measure flexible or variable by Opinion; we ought, methinks, to make trial, at least, how far we might by this means acquire Felicity and Content.

ACCORDINGLY, if we find it evident, on one hand, that by indulging any wrong Appetite (as either Debauch, Malice, or Revenge) the Opinion of the false Good increases; and the Appetite, which is a real Ill, grows so much the stronger: we may be as fully asfur'd, on the other hand, that by restraining this Affection, and nourishing a contrary fort in opposition to it; we cannot fail to diminish what is Ill, and increase what is properly our Happiness and Good.

* Ὅτι πάντα ἡ ὑπόληψις κ' αὐτὴ ἐπὶ σοί. Ἔσονται ἔν ὅτε θέλεις τὴν ὑπόληψιν. κ' ὡσπερ κάμψαντι τὴν ἄκραν Γαλήνην, σαβαρὰ πάντα κ' κολπὸν ἀκύμων. Μ. Αἰ. β. β. β.

Ἵδιον ἐστὶν ἡ λεκάνη τῶ ὕδατι, τοῦτον ἡ ψυχή. Ἵδιον ἡ αὐγὴ ἡ προσπιπίσσα τῶ ἔδατι, τοῦτον αἱ φαλασῖαι. Ὅταν ἔν τὸ ὕδωρ κινήθῃ, δοκεῖ μὲν κ' ἡ αὐγὴ κινεῖσθαι· ἔ μὲν τοι κινεῖται κ' ὅταν τίον σκόλωθ' τίς, ἔχ' αἱ τέχναι κ' αἱ ἀρεταὶ συγχέονται, ἀλλὰ τὸ πνεῦμα ἐφ' ἑ ἔστι· κάλυψαντι δὲ, καθίσταται κακῆνα. Αἰσ. β. β. γ. κ. φ. γ'. See VOL. I. pag. 185, &c. 291, 5, 6, 324, &c. And VOL. II. pag. 437.

ON this account, a Man may reasonably conclude, "That it becomes him, by working upon his own Mind to withdraw the Fancy or Opinion of GOOD or ILL from that to which justly and by necessity it is not join'd; and apply it, with the strongest Resolution, to that with which it naturally agrees." For if the Fancy or Opinion of Good be join'd to what is not durable, nor in my power either to acquire or to retain; the more such an Opinion prevails, the more I must be subject to Disappointment and Distress, But if there be that to which, whenever I apply the Opinion or Fancy of Good, I find the Fancy more consistent, and the Good more durable, solid, and within my Power and Command; then the more such an Opinion prevails in me, the more Satisfaction and Happiness I must experience.

NOW, if I join the Opinion of Good to the Possessions of the MIND; if it be in the Affections themselves that I place my highest Joy, and in those Objects, whatever they are, of inward Worth and Beauty, (such as Honesty, Faith, Integrity, Friendship, Honour) 'tis evident I can never possibly, in this respect, rejoice amidst, or indulge my-self too far in the Enjoyment. The greater my Indulgence is, the less I have reason to fear either Reverse or Disappointment.

THIS,

THIS, I know, is far contrary in another Regimen of Life. The Tutorage of FANCY and PLEASURE, and the easy Philosophy of taking that for Good which * pleases me, or which I fancy merely, will, in time, give me Uneasiness sufficient. 'Tis plain, from what has been debated, That the less fanciful I am, in what relates to my Content and Happiness, the more powerful and absolute I must be, in Self-enjoyment, and the Possession of my Good. And since 'tis Fancy merely, which gives the force of Good, or power of passing as such, to Things of Chance and outward Dependency; 'tis evident, that the more I take from Fancy in this respect, the more I confer upon my-self. As I am less led or betray'd by Fancy to an Esteem of what depends on others; I am the more fix'd in the Esteem of what depends on my-self alone. And if I have once gain'd the Taste of LIBERTY, I shall easily understand the force of this Reasoning, and know both my true SELF and INTEREST.

THE Method therefore requir'd in this my inward OEconomy, is, to make those Fancies themselves the Objects of my Aversion which justly deserve it; by being the Cause of a

* VOL. I. pag. 308. VOL. II. pag. 227.

† VOL. II. pag. 432. And below, pag. 307, &c.

wrong Estimation and Measure of Good and Ill, and consequently the Cause of my Unhappiness and Disturbance.

ACCORDINGLY (as the learned Masters in this Science advise) we are to begin rather * by the averse, than by the prone and forward Disposition. We are to work rather by the weaning than the ingaging Passions: since if we give way chiefly to Inclination, by loving, applauding and admiring what is Great and Good, we may possibly, it seems, in some high Objects of that kind, be so amus'd and extasy'd,

as

* Ἄρειν ἔν τῶν ἐκκλισιν ἀπὸ παύλων τῶν ἐκ ἐφ' ἡμῶν, καὶ μετὰ θεῖς ἐπὶ τὰ παρὰ φύσιν τῶν ἐφ' ἡμῶν. Εἰρηκ. κεφ. ζ'.

* Οὐρεξιν ἀρεαί σε δὲ πασιθεῶς, ἐκκλισιν ἐπὶ μόνῃ μετὰ θεῖς τὰ προαιθεῖνικά. Αἰρη. βιβ. γ. κεφ. κβ. This subdu'd or moderated Admiration or Zeal in the highest Subjects of Virtue and Divinity, the Philosopher calls σύμμετρον καὶ ναδιγαμένην τὴν Ὀρεξιν; the contrary Disposition, τὸ ἀλογον καὶ ἀσεκόν. Βιβ. γ. κεφ. κς. The Reason why this over-forward Ardor and Pursuit of high Subjects runs naturally into Enthusiasm and Disorder, is shewn in what succeeds the first of the Passages here cited; viz. Τῶν δὲ ἐφ' ἡμῶν, ὅσον ὀρέγεσθαι καλὸν αὖν, εἰδὲν εἰδὲ πω σοι πάρεσι. And hence the repeated Injunction, Ἀπίσχε ποτὲ παύσασθαι ὀρέξεως, ἵνα ποτε καὶ εὐλόγως ὀρεχθῆς: εἰ δ' εὐλόγως, ὅταν ἔχης τί ἐν σεαυτῷ ἀγαθὸν εἰς ὀρεχθήση. Βιβ. γ. κεφ. ιγ. To this HORACE, in one of his latest Epistles of the deeply philosophical kind, alludes.

Infani sapiens nomen ferat, æquus iniqui,

Ultra quam satis est Virtutem se petat ipsam. Ep. 6. lib. 1.

And in the beginning of the Epistle,

Nil admirari proferes est una, Numici,

Sola; que possit facere & ferre beatum. Ibid.

For tho' these first Lines (as many other of HORACE's on the Subject of Philosophy) have the Air of the EPICUREAN Discipline and LUCRETIAN

Style;

as to lose our-felves, and miss our proper Mark, for want of a steady and settled Aim. But being more sure and infallible in what relates to our Ill, we shou'd begin, they tell us by applying our Aversion, on that side, and raising our Indignation against those Meannesses of Opinion, and Sentiment, which are the Causes of our Subjection, and Perplexity.

THUS the COVETOUS FANCY, if consider'd as the Cause of Misery (and consequently detested as a real Ill) must of necessity abate: And the AMBITIOUS FANCY, if oppos'd in the same manner, with Resolution, by better Thought, must resign it-self, and leave the Mind free, and disincumber'd in the pursuit of its better Objects.

NOR is the Case different in the Passion of COWARDICE, OR FEAR OF DEATH. For if Style; yet, by the whole taken together, it appears evidently on what System of ancient Philosophy this Epistle was form'd. Nor was this Prohibition of the wondering or admiring Habit, in early Students, peculiar to one kind of Philosophy alone. It was common to many; however the Reason and Account of it might differ, in one Sect from the other. The PYTHAGOREANS sufficiently check'd their TYRO's, by silencing them so long on their first Courtship to Philosophy. And tho' Admiration, in the Peripatetick Sense as above-mention'd, may be justly call'd the inclining Principle or first Motive to PHILOSOPHY; yet this Mistress, when once espous'd, teaches us to admire, after a different manner from what we did before. See above, pag. 37. And VOL. I. pag. 41.

we

we leave this Passion to itself (or to certain Tutors to manage for us) it may lead us to the most anxious and tormenting State of Life. But if it be oppos'd by sounder Opinion, and a just Estimation of things, it must diminish of course: And the natural Result of such a Practice must be, the Rescue of the Mind from numberless Fears, and Miserys of other kinds.

THUS at last a MIND, by knowing itself, and its own proper Powers and Virtues, becomes free, and independent. It sees its Hindrances and Obstructions, and finds they are wholly from itself, and from Opinions wrong-conceiv'd. The more it conquers in this respect, (be it in the least particular) the more it is its own Master, feels its own natural LIBERTY, and congratulates with it-self on its own Advancement and Prosperity.

WHETHER some who are call'd Philosophers have so apply'd their Meditations, as to understand any thing of this Language, I know not. But well I am assur'd that many an honest and free-hearted Fellow, among the vulgar Rank of People, has naturally some kind of Feeling or Apprehension of this Self-enjoyment; when refusing to act for Lucre or outward Profit, the Thing which from his Soul he abhors, and thinks below him; he goes on,
with

with harder Labour, but more Content, in his direct plain Path. He is secure within; free of what the World calls Policy, or Design; and sings (according to the old Ballad)

My Mind to me a Kingdom is, &c.

Which in Latin we may translate,

* _____—*Et mea
Virtute me involvo, probamque
Pauperiem sine dote quæro.*

BUT I FORGET, it seems, that I am now speaking in the Person of our grave INQUIRER. I shou'd consider I have no Right to vary from the Pattern he has set; and that whilst I accompany him in this particular Treatise, I ought not to make the least Escape out of the high Road of Demonstration, into the diverting Paths of Poetry or Humour.

As grave however as MORALS are presum'd in their own nature, I look upon it as an essential matter in their Delivery, to take now and then the natural Air of Pleasantry. The first MORALS which were ever deliver'd in the World, were in Parables, Tales, or Fables.

* Horat. Od. 29. lib. 3.

And the latter and most consummate Distributers of Morals, in the very politest times, were great Tale-Tellers, and Retainers to honest ÆSOP.

AFTER all the regular Demonstrations and Deductions of our grave Author, I dare say 'twou'd be a high Relief and Satisfaction to his Reader, to hear an Apologue, or Fable, well told, and with such humour as to need no sententious Moral at the end, to make the application.

As an Experiment in this case, let us at this instant imagine our grave Inquirer taking pains to shew us, at full length, the unnatural and unhappy Excursions, Rovings, or Expeditions of our ungovern'd FANCYS and OPINIONS over a World of Riches, Honours, and other ebbing and flowing Goods. He performs this, we will suppose, with great Sagacity, to the full measure and scope of our Attention. Mean while, as full or fatiated as we might find our-selves of serious and solid Demonstration, 'tis odds but we might find Vacancy still sufficient to receive Instruction by another Method. And I dare answer for success, shou'd a merrier Moralist of the ÆSOPAEAN-School present himself; and, hearing of this Chace describ'd by our Philosopher, beg leave to represent it to the life, by a homely Cur or two, of his Master's ordinary breed.

“ Two

“ Two of this Race (he wou’d tell us) hav“ ing been daintily bred, and in high thoughts
 “ of what they call’d Pleasure and good Living, “ travel’d once in quest of Game and Rarities,
 “ till they came by accident to the Sea-side.
 “ They saw there, at a distance from the shore,
 “ some floating pieces of a Wreck, which “ they took a fancy to believe some wonder“ ful rich Dainty, richer than Amber-greece, or “ the richest Product of the Ocean. They “ cou’d prove it, by their Appetite and Long“ ing, to be no less than Quintessence of the Main, “ ambrosial Substance, the Repast of marine Deitys, “ surpassing all which Earth afforded.—By “ these rhetorical Arguments, after long Rea“ soning with one another in this florid Vein,
 “ they proceed from one Extravagance of “ Fancy to another; till they came at last to “ this issue. Being unaccustom’d to Swim“ ming, they wou’d not, it seems, in prudence, “ venture so far out of their Depth as was “ necessary to reach their imagin’d Prize:
 “ But being stout Drinkers, they thought “ with themselves, they might compass to “ drink all which lay in their way; even
 “ The SEA it-self; and that by this method
 “ they might shortly bring their Goods safe “ to dry Land. To work therefore they went;

“ went; and drank till they were both “ burst.”

FOR my own part, I am fully satisfy'd that there are more Sea-drinkers than one or two, to be found among the principal Personages of Mankind; and that if these Dogs of ours were silly Curs, many who pass for wise in our own Race are little wiser; and may properly enough be said to have the Sea to drink.

'Tis pretty evident that they who live in the highest Sphere of human Affairs have a very uncertain View of the thing call'd Happiness or Good. It lies out at Sea, far distant, in the Offin; where those Gentlemen ken it but very imperfectly: And the means they employ in order to come up with it, are very wide of the matter and far short of their propos'd End.— “ First a general Acquaintance.
 “ —Visits, Levees.—Attendance upon the “ Great and Little.——Popularity.——A Place
 “ in Parliament.—Then another at Court.—
 “ Then Intrigue, Corruption, Prostitution.—
 “ Then a higher Place.—Then a Title.—Then “ a Remove.——A new MINISTER!—Frac“ tions at Court.——Ship-wreck of Ministries.
 “ —The new: The old.—Engage with one:
 “ piece up with t'other.—Bargains; Losses;
 After-

“ After-Games ; Retrievals.”—Is not this, the Sea to drink?

* *At si Divitiæ prudentem reddere possent, Si cupidum timidumque minus te; nempe rube-
res,
Vivcret in Terris te si quis avarior uno.*

But lest I shou'd be tempted to fall into a manner I have been oblig'd to disclaim in this part of my Miscellaneous Performanc; I shall here set a Period to this Discourse, and renew my attempt of serious Reflection and grave Thought, by taking up my Clew in a fresh Chapter.

* Horat. Ep. 2. lib. 2.

C H A P. II.

Passage from Terra Incognita to the visible World.—Mistress-ship of NATURE.—Animal-Confederacy, Degrees, Subordination.—Master-Animal Man. Privilege of his Birth.—Serious Countenance of the Author.

AS heavily as it went with us, in the deep philosophical part of our preceding Chapter; and as necessarily engag'd as we still are to prosecute the same serious INQUIRY, and Search, into those dark Sources; 'tis hoped, That our remaining Philosophy may flow in a more easy Vein; and the second Running be found somewhat clearer than the first. However it be; we may, at least, congratulate with ourselves for having thus briefly pass'd over that Metaphysical part, to which we have paid sufficient deference. Nor shall we scruple to declare our Opinion, " That it is, in a manner, necessary for one who wou'd usefully philosophize, to have a Knowledge in this part of Philosophy sufficient to satisfy him that there is no Knowledge or Wisdom to be learnt from
" it."

“ it.” For of this Truth nothing besides Experience and Study will be able fully to convince him.

WHEN we are even past these empty Regions and Shadows of Philosophy; ’twill still perhaps appear an uncomfortable kind of travelling thro’ those other invisible Ideal Worlds: such as the Study of Morals, we see, engages us to visit. Men must acquire a very peculiar and strong Habit of turning their Eye inwards, in order to explore the interior Regions and Recesses of the MIND, the hollow Caverns of deep Thought, the private Seats of Fancy, and the Wastes and Wildernesses, as well as the more fruitful and cultivated Tracts of this obscure Climate.

BUT what can one do? Or how dispense with these darker Disquisitions and Moon-light Voyages, when we have to deal with a sort of Moon-blind WITS, who tho’ very acute and able in their kind, may be said to renounce Day-light, and extinguish, in a manner, the bright visible outward World, by allowing us to know nothing beside what we can prove, by strict and formal Demonstration?

’TIS therefore to satisfy such rigid Inquirers as these, that we have been necessitated to proceed

ceed by the inward way; and that in our preceding Chapter we have built only on such foundations as are taken from our very Perceptions, Fancys, Appearances, Affections and Opinions themselves, without regard to any thing of an exterior WORLD, and even on the supposition that there is no such World in being.

SUCH has been our late dry Task. No wonder if it carries, indeed, a meagre and raw Appearance. It may be look'd on, in Philosophy, as worse than a mere EGYPTIAN Imposition. For to make Brick without Straw or Stubble, is perhaps an easier labour, than to prove MORALS without a World, and establish a Conduct of Life without the Supposition of any thing living or extant besides our immediate Fancy, and WORLD of Imagination.

BUT having finish'd this mysterious Work, we come now to open Day, and Sunshine: And, as a Poet perhaps might express himself, we are now ready to quit

*The dubious Labyrinths, and Pyrrhonian Cells
Of a Cimmerian Darknes,——*

We are, henceforward, to trust our Eyes, and take for real the whole Creation, and the fair Forms which
which

which lie before us. We are to believe the Anatomy of our own Body, and in proportionable Order, the Shapes, Forms, Habits, and Constitutions of other Animal-Races. Without demurring on the profound modern Hypothesis of animal Insensibility, we are to believe firmly and resolutely, “ That other Creatures have “ their Sense and Feeling, their mere Passions and “ Affections, as well as our-selves.” And in this manner we proceed accordingly, on our Author’s Scheme, “ To inquire what is truly natural to each Creature: And Whether that “ which is natural to each, and is its Perfection, “ be not withal its Happiness, or Good.”

To deny there is any thing properly natural (after the Concessions already made) wou’d be undoubtedly very preposterous and absurd. NATURE and the outward World being own’d existent, the rest must of necessity follow. The Anatomy of Bodys, the Order of the Spheres, the proper Mechanisms of a thousand kinds, and the infinite Ends and sutable Means establish’d in the general Constitution and Order of Things; all this being once admitted, and allow’d to pass as certain and unquestionable, ’tis as vain afterwards to except against the Phrase of natural and unnatural, and question the Propriety of this Speech apply’d to the particular Forms and Beings in the World, as it wou'd be to except againſt the common Appellations of Vigour and Decay in Plants, Health or Sickneſs in Bodys, Sobriety or Diſtraſtion in Minds, Proſperity or Degeneracy in any variable part of the known Creation.

WE may, perhaps, for Humour's ſake, or after the known way of diſputant Hoſtility, in the ſupport of any odd Hypotheſis, pretend to deny this natural and unnatural in Things. 'Tis evident however, that tho' our Humour or Taſte be, by ſuch Affection, ever ſo much deprav'd; we cannot reſiſt our natural * Anticipation in behalf of NATURE; according to whoſe ſuppos'd

Standard

* See what is ſaid above on the word Sensus Communis, in that ſecond Treatiſe, VOL. I. pag. 103, &c. and pag. 110, 138, 139, 140, And in the ſame VOL. p. 336, &c. and 352, 353, &c. And in VOL. II. p. 307, 411, 412, &c. concerning the natural Ideas, and the Pre-conceptions or Pre-ſenſations of this kind; the Προλήψεις, of which a learned Critick and Maſter in all Philoſophy, modern and antient, takes notice, in his lately publiſh'd Volume of Socratick Dialogues; where he adds this Reflection, with reſpect to ſome Philoſophical Notions much in vogue amongſt us, of late, here in ENGLAND. Obiter duntaxat addemus, Socraticam, quam expoſuimus, Doctrinam magno uſui eſſe poſſe ſi probe expendatur, dirimende inter viros doctos controverſiæ, ante paucos annos, in BRITANNIA præſentim, exortæ; de Ideis Innatis, quas dicere poſſis ἐμφυτῶς ἐνοίας. Quamvis enim nullæ ſint, ſi accurate loquamur, notionæ a natura animis noſtris infixæ; attamen nemo negarit ita eſſe facultates Animorum noſtrorum natura adſeclatæ, ut quam primum ratione uti incipiunt, Verum a Falſo, Malum a Bono aliquo mo-

Standard we perpetually approve and disapprove, and to whom in all natural Appearances, all moral Actions (whatever we contemplate, whatever we have in debate) we inevi-

do distinguere incipiamus. Species Veritatis nobis semper placet; displicet contra Mendacii: Imo et HONESTUM INHONESTO præferimus; ob Semina nobis indita, que tum demum in lucem prædeunt, cum ratiocinari possumus, eoque uberiores fructus præferunt, quo melius ratiocinamur, adcuratioroque institutione aljuamur. Æsch. Dial. cum Silvis Philol. Jo. Cler. ann. 1711. pag. 176. They seem indeed to be but weak Philosophers, tho' able Sophists, and artful Confounders of Words and Notions, who wou'd refute Nature and Common Sense. But NATURE will be able still to shift for her-self, and get the better of those Schemes, which need no other Force against them, than that of HORACE's single Verse:

Dente Lupus, cornu Taurus petit. Unde, nisi INTUS Monstratum?

Sat. 1. Lib. 2.

An ASS (as an English Author says) never butts with his Ears; tho' a Creature born to an arm'd Forehead, exercises his butting Faculty long ere his Horns are come to him. And perhaps if the Philosopher wou'd accordingly examine himself, and consider his natural Passions, he wou'd find there were such belong'd to him as Nature had premeditated in his behalf, and for which she had furnish'd him with Ideas long before any particular Præctice or Experience of his own. Nor wou'd he need be scandaliz'd with the Comparison of a Goat, or Boar, or other of HORACE's premeditating Animals, who have more natural Wit, it seems, than our Philosopher; if we may judge of him by his own Hypothesis, which denies the same implanted SENSE and natural Ideas to his own Kind.

Cras donaberis Hædo,

Cui Frons turgida Cornibus

Primis, et Venerem et Prælia desinat.

Od. 13. lib. 3.

And,

Verris obliquum meditantis Ictum.

lb. Od. 22.

tably appeal, and pay our constant Homage, with the most apparent Zeal and Passion.

'Tis here, above all other places, that we say with strict Justice,

* NATURAM expellas Furca, tamen usque recurret.

THE airy Gentlemen, who have never had it in their thoughts to study NATURE in their own Species; but being taken with other Loves, have apply'd their Parts and Genius to the same Study in a Horse, a Dog, a Game Cock, a Hawk, or any other † Animal of that degree; know very well, that to each Species there belongs a several Humour, Temper, and Turn of inward Disposition, as real and peculiar as the Figure and outward Shape which is with so much Curiosity beheld and admir'd. If there be any thing ever so little amiss or wrong in the inward Frame, the Humour or Temper of the Creature, 'tis readily call'd vicious; and when more than ordinary wrong, unnatural. The Humours of the Creatures, in order to their redress, are attentively observ'd; sometimes in-

* Hor. Lib. 1. Ep. 10.

† VOL. II. pag. 92, 93, &c. and 131, &c. and pag. 307, &c.

dulg'd and flatter'd; at other times controul'd and check'd with proper Severitys. In short, their Affections, Passions, Appetites, and Antipathys are as duly regarded as those in Human Kind, under the strictest Discipline of Education. Such is The SENSE of inward Proportion and Regularity of Affections, even in our Noble Youths themselves; who in this respect are often known expert and able Masters of Education, tho not so susceptible of Discipline and Culture in their own case, after those early Indulgences to which their Greatness has intitled 'em.

As little favourable however as these sportly Gentlemen are presum'd to show themselves towards the Care or Culture of their own Species; as remote as their Contemplations are thought to lie from Nature and Philosophy; they confirm plainly and establish our philosophical Foundation of the natural Ranks, Orders, interior and exterior Proportions of the several distinct Species and Forms of Animal Beings.

Ask one of these Gentlemen, unawares, when solicitously careful and busy'd in the great Concerns of his Stable, or Kennel, "Whether his Hound or Greyhound-Bitch who eats her Puppys, is as natural as the other who nurses 'em?" and he will think you frantick. Ask him again, "Whether he thinks

“ the unnatural Creature who acts thus, or the “ natural-one who does otherwise, is best in “ its kind, and enjoys it-self the most?” And he will be inclin’d to think still as strangely of you. Or if perhaps he esteems you worthy of better Information; he will tell you, “ That “ his best-bred Creatures, and of the truest Race, “ are ever the noblest and most generous in “ their Natures: That it is this chiefly which “ makes the difference between the Horse of “ good Blood, and the errant Jade of a base “ Breed; between the Game-Cock, and the Dung- “ hil-Craven; between the true Hawk, and the “ mere Kite or Buzzard; and between the right “ Mastiff, Hound, or Spaniel, and the very Mun- “ grel.” He might, withal, tell you perhaps with a Masterly Air in this Brute-Science, “ That the timorous, poor-spirited, lazy and “ gluttonous of his Dogs, were those whom he “ either suspected to be of a spurious Race, or “ who had been by some accident spoil’d in “ their Nursing and Management: For that “ this was not natural to ’em. That in every “ Kind, they were still the miserablest Creatures
 “ who were thus spoil’d: And that having each “ of ’em their proper Chace or Business, if they “ lay resty and out of their Game, chamber’d, and “ idle, they were the same as if taken out of “ their Element. That the saddest Curs in
 “ the

“ the world, were those who took the Kitch-
 “ in-Chimney and Dripping-pan for their De“ light; and that the only happy DOG (were “ one to be a Dog ONE’S-SELF) was he who in “ his proper Sport and Exercise, his natural Pur“ suit and Game, endur’d all Hardships, and “ had so much delight in Exercise and in “ the Field, as to forget Home and his Re- “ ward.”

THUS the natural Habits and Affections of the inferior Creatures are known; and their unnatural and degenerate part discover’d. Depravity and Corruption is acknowledg’d as real in their Affections, as when any thing is misshapen, wrong, or monstrous in their outward Make. And notwithstanding much of this inward Depravity is discoverable in the Creatures tam’d by Man, and, for his Service or Pleasure merely, turn’d from their natural Course into a contrary Life and Habit; notwithstanding that, by this means, the Creatures who naturally herd with one another, lose their associating Humour, and they who naturally pair and are constant to each other, lose their kind of conjugal Alliance and Affection; yet when releas’d from human Servitude, and return’d again to their natural Wilds, and rural Liberty, they instantly resume their natural and regular Habits, such as are conducing to the Increase and Prosperity of their own Species.

WELL it is perhaps for Mankind, that tho there are so many Animals who naturally herd for Company's sake, and mutual Affection, there are so few who for Conveniency, and by Necessity are oblig'd to a strict Union, and kind of confederate State. The Creatures who, according to the OEconomy of their Kind, are oblig'd to make themselves Habitations of Defence against the Seasons and other Incidents; they who in some parts of the Year are depriv'd of all Subsistence, and are therefore necessitated to accumulate in another, and to provide withal for the Safety of their collected Stores, are by their Nature indeed as strictly join'd, and with as proper Affections towards their Publick and Community, as the looser Kind, of a more easy Subsistence and Support, are united in what relates merely to their Offspring, and the Propagation of their Species. Of these thorowly-associating and confederate-Animals, there are none I have ever heard of, who in Bulk or Strength exceed the BEAVER. The major part of these political Animals, and Creatures of a joint Stock, are as inconsiderable as the Race of ANTS or BEES. But had Nature assign'd such an OEconomy as this to so puissant an Animal, for instance, as the ELEPHANT, and made him withal as prolifick as those smaller Creatures commonly are; it might have gone hard perhaps with Mankind: And a single Animal, who by his proper Might and Prowess has often decided the Fate of the greatest Battels which have been fought by Human Race, shou'd he have grown up into a Society, with a Genius for Architecture and Mechanicks proportionable to what we observe in those smaller Creatures; we shou'd, with all our invented Machines, have found it hard to dispute with him the Dominion of the Continent.
 . made

WERE we in a disinterested View, or with somewhat less Selfishness than ordinary, to consider the *O*Economys, Parts, Interests, Conditions, and Terms of Life, which Nature has distributed and assign'd to the several Species of Creatures round us, we shou'd not be apt to think ourselves so hardly dealt with. But Whether our Lot in this respect be just, or equal, is not the Question with us, at present. 'Tis enough that we know " There is certainly an Assignment and Distribution: That each *O*Economy or Part so distributed, is in it-self " uniform, fix'd and invariable: and That if " any thing in the Creature be accidentally " impair'd; if any thing in the inward Form, " the Disposition, Temper or Affections, be " contrary

“ contrary or unfutable to the distinct OEconomy or Part, the Creature is wretched and “ unnatural.”

THE social or natural Affections, which our Author considers as essential to the Health, Wholeness, or Integrity of the particular Creature, are such as contribute to the Welfare and Prosperity of that Whole or Species, to which he is by Nature join'd. All the Affections of this kind our Author comprehends in that single name of natural. But as the Design or End of Nature in each Animal-System, is exhibited chiefly in the Support and Propagation of the particular Species; it happens, of consequence, that those Affections of earliest Alliance and mutual Kindness between the Parent and the Offspring, are known more particularly by the name of * natural Affection. However, since it is evident that all Defect or Depravity of Affection, which counterworks or opposes the original Constitution and OEconomy of the Creature, is unnatural; it follows, “ That in “ Creatures who by their particular OEconomy are fitted to the strictest Society and Rule
 “ of common Good, the most unnatural of all Affections are those which separate from this “ Community; and the most truly natural,

* Στάγειν. For which we have no particular Name in our Language.
 “ generous

“ generous and noble, are those which tend “ towards Publick Service, and the Interest of “ the SOCIETY at large.”

THIS is the main Problem which our Author in more philosophical Terms demonstrates,
 * in this Treatise, “ That for a Creature whose “ natural End is Society, to operate as is by Na- “ ture appointed him towards the Good of such his “ SOCIETY, or WHOLE, is in reality to pur- “ sue his own natural and proper GOOD.” And “ That to operate contrary-wise, or by such Af“ fections as sever from that common Good,
 “ or publick Interest, is, in reality, to work to- “ wards his own natural and proper ILL.” Now if Man, as has been prov'd, be justly rank'd in the number of those Creatures whose OEco- nomy is according to a joint-Stock and pub- lick Weal; if it be understood, withal, that the only State of his Affections which answers rightly to this publick-Weal, is the regular, orderly, or virtuous State; it necessarily follows, “ That VIRTUE is his natural Good, and VICE
 “ his Misery and Ill.”

As for that further Consideration, “ Whe“ ther NATURE has orderly and justly distri“ buted the several OEconomys or Parts; and

“ Whether the Defects, Failures, or Calamitys
 “ of particular Systems are to the advantage “ of all in general, and contribute to the Per“ fection of the one common and universal “ System;” we must refer to our Author’s pro-founder Speculations in this his INQUIRY, and in his following Philosophick DIALOGUE.
 But if what he advances in this respect be real, or at least the most probable by far of any Scheme or Representation which can be made of the Universal Nature and Cause of things; it will follow, “ That since MAN has been so con“ stituted, by means of his rational Part, as “ to be conscious of this his more imme“ diate Relation to the Universal System, and “ Principle of Order and Intelligence; he is “ not only by Nature sociable, within the Li“ mits of his own Species, or Kind; but in “ a yet more generous and extensive man“ ner. He is not only born to VIRTUE, Friend- “ ship, Honesty, and Faith; but to RELIGION, “ *Piety, Adoration, and a * generous Surrender* of “ his Mind to whatever happens from that “ Supreme CAUSE, OF ORDER of Things, “ which he acknowledges intirely just, and “ perfect.”

* VOL. II. pag. 72, 73; &c.

THESE ARE our Author's formal and grave Sentiments; which if they were not truly his, and sincerely espous'd by him, as the real Result of his best Judgment and Understanding, he wou'd be guilty of a more than common degree of Imposture. For, according to his own * Rule, an affected Gravity, and feign'd Seriousness carry'd on, thro any Subject, in such a manner as to leave no Insight into the Fiction or intended Raillery; is in truth no Raillery, or Wit, at all: but a gross, immoral, and illiberal way of Abuse, foreign to the Character of a good Writer, a Gentleman, or Man of WORTH.

BUT since we have thus acquitted ourselves of that serious Part, of which our Reader was before-hand well appriz'd; let him now expect us again in our original MISCELLANEOUS Manner and Capacity. 'Tis here, as has been explain'd to him, that Raillery and Humour are permitted: and Flights, Sallys, and excursions of every kind are found agreeable and requisite. Without this, there might be less Safety found, perhaps, in Thinking. Every light Reflection might run us up to the dangerous State of Me-

* VOL. I. pag. 63.

ditation. And in reality, profound Thinking is many times the Cause of shallow Thought. To prevent this contemplative Habit and Character, of which we see so little good effect in the World, we have reason perhaps to be fond of the diverting Manner in Writing, and Discourse, especially if the Subject be of a solemn kind. There is more need, in this case, to interrupt the long-spun Thred of Reasoning, and bring into the Mind, by many different Glances and broken Views, what cannot so easily be introduc'd by one steady Bent, or continu'd Stretch of Sight.

MISCELLANY V.

C H A P. I.

Ceremonial adjusted, between AUTHOR and READER.—Affectation of Precedency in the former.—Various Claim to Inspiration.—Bards; Prophets; Sibyline Scripture.—Written Oracles; in Verse and Prose.—Common Interest of anti-ent Letters and Christianity.—State of Wit, Elegance, and Correctness.—Poetick Truth.—Preparation for Criticism on our Author, in his concluding Treatise.

OF all the artificial Relations, form'd between Mankind, the most capricious and variable is that of Author and Reader, Our Author, for his part, has declar'd his Opinion of this, where * he gives his Advice to modern Authors. And tho he supposes that every Author in Form, is, in respect of the particular matter he explains, superior in Understanding to his Reader; yet he allows not that any Author shou'd assume the upper hand, or pretend to withdraw himself from that necessary Subjection to foreign Judgment and Criticism, which must determine the Place of Honour on the Reader's side.
of

'Tis evident that an Author's Art and Labour are for his Reader's sake alone. 'Tis to his Reader he makes his application, if not openly and avowedly, yet, at least, with implicit Courtship. Poets indeed, and especially those of a modern kind, have a peculiar manner of treating this Affair with a high hand. They pretend to set themselves above Mankind. "Their Pens are sacred: Their Style and Utterance divine." They write, often, as in a Language foreign to human Kind; and wou'd disdain to be reminded of those poor Elements of Speech, their Alphabet and Grammar.

BUT here inferior Mortals presume often to intercept their Flight, and remind them of their fallible and human part. Had those first Poets who began this Pretence to Inspiration, been taught a manner of communicating their rapturous Thoughts and high Ideas by some other Medium than that of Style and Language; the Case might have stood otherwise. But the inspiring DIVINITY or MUSE having in the Explanation of her-self, submitted her Wit and Sense to the mechanick Rules of human arbitrary Composition; she must, in consequence, and by necessity, submit her-self to human Arbitration, and the Judgment of the literate World. And thus THE READER is still superior, and keeps the upper hand.

* Viz. Treatise III. VOL. 1.

'Tis indeed no small Absurdity, to assert a Work or Treatise, written in human Language, to be above human Criticism or Censure. For if the Art of Writing be from the grammatical Rules of human Invention and Determination; if even these Rules are form'd on casual Practice and various Use: there can be no Scripture but what must of necessity be subject to the Reader's narrow Scrutiny and strict Judgment; unless a Language and Grammar, different from any of human Structure, were deliver'd down from Heaven, and miraculously accommodated to human Service and Capacity.

'TIS no otherwise in the grammatical Art of Characters, and painted Speech, than in the Art of Painting it-self. I have seen in certain Christian-Churches, an antient Piece or two, affirm'd, on the solemn Faith of Priestly Tradition, "to have been Angelically and Divinely wrought, by a supernatural Hand, and sacred Pencil." Had the Piece happen'd to be of a Hand like RAPHAEL'S, I cou'd have found nothing certain to oppose to this Tradition. But having observ'd the whole Style and Manner of the pretended heavenly Workmanship to be so indifferent as to vary in many Particulars from the Truth of Art, I presume within my-self to beg pardon of the Tradition, and assert confidently, "That if the Pencil had been Heaven-guided, it cou'd never have been so lame in its performance:" It being a mere contradiction to all Divine and Moral Truth, that a Celestial Hand, submitting it-self to the Rudiments of a human Art, shou'd sin against the ART it-self, and express Falshood and Error, instead of Justness and Proportion.

IT may be alledg'd perhaps, "That there are, however, certain AUTHORS in the World, who tho, of themselves, they neither boldly claim the Privilege of Divine Inspiration, “spiration, nor carry indeed the least resemblance of Perfection in their Style or Composition; yet they subdue the READER, gain the ascendent over his Thought and Judgment, and force from him a certain implicit Veneration and Esteem.” To this I can only answer, “That if there be neither Spell nor Inchantment in the Case; this can plainly be no other than mere ENTHUSIASM;” except, perhaps, where the supreme Powers have given their Sanction to any religious Record, or pious Writ: And in this Case, indeed, it becomes immoral and profane in any one, to deny absolutely, or dispute the sacred Authority of the least Line or Syllable contain’d in it. But shou’d the Record, instead of being single, short and uniform, appear to be multifarious, voluminous, and of the most difficult Interpretation; it wou’d be somewhat hard, if not wholly impracticable in the Magistrate, to suffer this Record to be universally current, and at the same time prevent its being variously apprehended and descanted on, by the several differing Genius’s and contrary Judgments of Mankind.

’Tis remarkable, that in the politest of all Nations, the Writings look’d upon as most sacred, were those of their great POETS; whose Works indeed were truly divine, in respect of Art, and the Perfection of their Frame and Composition.

position. But there was yet more * Divinity ascrib'd to them, than what is comprehended in this latter Sense. The Notions of vulgar Religion were built on their miraculous Narrations. The wiser and better sort themselves paid a regard to them in this respect; tho they interpreted them indeed more allegorically. Even the Philosophers who criticiz'd 'em with most Severity, were not their least Admirers; when they † ascrib'd to 'em that divine Inspiration or sublime ENTHUSIASM, of which our Author has largely treated ‡ elsewhere.

IT wou'd, indeed, ill become any Pretender to Divine Writing, to publish his Work under a Character of Divinity; if, after all his Endeavours, he came short of a consummate and just Performance. In this respect the Cumean SIBYL was not so indiscreet or frantick, as she might appear, perhaps, by writing her Prophetick Warnings and pretended Inspirations upon Joint-Leaves; which, immediately after their elaborate Supercription, were torn in pieces, and scatter'd by the Wind.

* Supra, pag. 153, 154. in the Notes.

† VOL. I. pag. 53, 54.

‡ Viz. Letter of Enthusiasm, VOL. I. And above, MISC. II. chap. 1, 2.

* *Insanam vatem aspicias; quæ rupe sub ima
Fata canit, foliisque notas & nomina man-dat.*

Quæcunque in foliis descripsit Carmina Virgo, Digerit in numerum, atque antro seclusa relinquit.

Illa manent immota locis, neque ab ordine ce-dunt.

Verum eadem, verso tenuis cum cardine ventus

Impulit, & teneras turbavit janua frondes:

*Nunquam deinde cavo volitantia prendere
saxo,*

Nec revocare situs, aut jungere carmina cu-rat.

Inconfulsi abeunt, sedemque odere SIBYLLÆ.

'Twas impossible to disprove the DIVINITY of such Writings, whilst they cou'd be perus'd only in Fragments. Had the Sister-Priestess of DELPHOS, who deliver'd her-self in audible plain Metre, been found at any time to have transgress'd the Rule of Verse, it wou'd have been difficult in those days to father the lame Poetry upon APOLLO himself. But where the Invention of the Leaves prevented the Reading of a single Line intire; whatever Interpretations might have been made of this fragil and volatil Scripture, no imperfection could be charged on the Original TEXT it-self.

* Virg. Æn. lib. 3.

WHAT those * Volumes may have been, which the disdainful SIBYL or Prophetess committed to the Flames; or what the remainder was, which the Roman Prince receiv'd and consecrated; I will not pretend to judge: Tho it has been admitted for Truth by the antient Christian Fathers, That these Writings were so far sacred and divine, as to have prophesy'd of the Birth of our religious Founder, and bore testimony to that holy Writ which has preserv'd his Memory, and is justly held, in the highest degree, sacred among Christians.

THE Policy however of Old ROME was such, as not absolutely to rest the Authority of their Religion on any Composition of Literature. The SIBYLLINE Volumes were kept safely lock'd, and inspect'd only by such as were ordain'd, or deputed for that purpose. And in this Policy the New ROME has follow'd their Example; in scrupling to annex the supreme Authority and sacred Character of Infallibility to SCRIPTURE it-self; and in refusing to submit that Scripture to publick Judgment, or to any Eye or Ear but what they qualify for the Inspection of such sacred Mysterys.

* Libri tres in Sacrarium conditi, Sibyllini appellati. Ad eos quasi ad Oraculum Quindecimviri accunt, cum Di immortales publice consulendi sunt. Aul. Gell. lib. 1. c. 19. & Plin. lib. 13. c. 13. But of this first Sibylline Scripture, and of other canonic'd Books and additional Sacred Writ among the ROMANS; see what DIONYSIUS HALICARNASSEUS cites (from VARRO's Roman Theologicks) in his History, lib. 4. c. 62.

THE Mahometan Clergy seem to have a different Policy. They boldly rest the Foundation of their Religion on a Book: Such a one as (according to their Pretension) is not only perfect, but inimitable. Were a real Man of Letters, and a just Critick permitted to examine this Scripture by the known Rules of Art; he wou'd soon perhaps refute this Plea. But so barbarous is the accompanying Policy and Temper of these Eastern Religionists, that they discourage, and in effect extinguish all true Learning, Science, and the politer Arts, in company with the antient Authors and Languages, which they set aside; and by this infallible Method, leave their SACRED WRIT the sole Standard of literate Performance. For being compar'd to nothing besides it-self, or what is of an inferior kind, it must undoubtedly be thought incomparable.

"T WILL be yielded, surely, to the Honour of the Christian World, that their Faith (especially ally that of the Protestant Churches) stands on a more generous Foundation. They not only allow Comparison of Authors, but are content to derive their Proofs of the Validity of their sacred Record and Revelation, even from those Authors call'd Profane; as being well appriz'd, (according to the Maxim of * our Divine Master) "That in what we bear witness only to

 " our-selves, our Witness cannot be establish'd
 " as a Truth." So that there being at present no immediate Testimony of Miracle or Sign in behalf of holy Writ: and there being in its own particular Composition or Style nothing miraculous, or self-convincing; if the collateral Testimony of other antient Records, Historians and foreign Authors, were destroy'd, or wholly lost; there wou'd be less Argument or Plea remaining against that natural Suspicion of those who are call'd Sceptical,
 " That the holy Records themselves were no
 " other than the pure Invention or artificial " Compiement of an interested Party, in behalf " of the richest Corporation and most profitable
 " Monopoly which cou'd be erected in the World."

THUS, in reality, the Interest of our pious Clergy is necessarily join'd with that of antient Letters, and polite Learning. By this they perpetually refute the crafty Arguments of those Objectors. When they abandon this; they resign their Cause. When they strike at it; they strike even at the Root and Foundation of our holy Faith, and weaken that Pillar on which the whole Fabrick of our Religion depends.

* John, chap. v. ver. 31.

IT belongs to mere Enthusiasts and Fanaticks to plead the Sufficiency of a reiterate translated Text, deriv'd to 'em thro' so many Channels, and subjected to so many Variations, of which they are wholly ignorant. Yet wou'd they persuade us, it seems, that from hence alone they can recognize the Divine Spirit, and receive it in themselves, un-subject (as they imagine) to any Rule, and superior to what they themselves often call the dead Letter and unprofitable Science.—This, any one may see, is building Castles in the Air, and demolishing them again at pleasure; as the exercise of an aerial Fancy, or heated Imagination.

BUT the judicious Divines of the establish'd Christian Churches, have sufficiently condemn'd this Manner. They are far from resting their Religion on the common Aspect, or obvious Form of their vulgar BIBLE, as it presents it-self in the printed Copy, or modern Version. Neither do they in the Original it-self represent it to us as a very Master-piece of Writing, or as absolutely perfect in the Purity and Justness either of Style, or Composition. They allow the Holy Authors to have written according to their best Facultys, and the Strength of their natural Genius: “ A Shepherd like a Shepherd; and a Prince like a Prince. A “ Man of reading, and advanc’d in Letters, “ like a Proficient in the kind; and a Man of “ meaner Capacity and Reading, like one of “ the ordinary sort, in his own common Idiom “ and imperfect manner of Narration.”

or

’Tis the Substance only of the Narrative, and the principal Facts confirming the Authority of the Revelation, which our Divines think themselves concern’d to prove, according to the best Evidence of which the Matter it-self is capable. And whilst the Sacred Authors themselves allude not only to the Annals and Historys of the HEATHEN World, but even to the philosophical Works, the regular * Poems, the very Plays and † Comedys of the learned and

* ARATUS, Acts ch. xvii. ver. 28. And EPIMENIDES, Titus ch. i. ver. 12. Even one of their own PROPHEETS. For so the holy Apostle deign’d to speak of a Heathen Poet, a Physiologist, and Divine: who prophesy’d of Events, wrought Miracles, and was receiv’d as an inspir’d Writer, and Author of Revelations, in the chief City and States of GREECE.

† MENANDER, 1 Cor. ch. xv. ver. 33.

polite Antients; it must be own'd, that as those antient Writings are impair'd, or lost, not only the Light and Clearness of holy Writ, but even the Evidence it-self of its main Facts, must in proportion be diminish'd and brought in question. So ill advis'd were * those devout Church-men heretofore, who in the height

* Even in the sixth Century, the sam'd GREGORIUS Bishop of ROME, who is so highly celebrated for having planted the Chrillian Religion, by his Missionary Monks, in our English Nation of Heathen Saxons, was so far from being a Cultivator or Supporter of Arts or Letters, that he carry'd on a kind of general Maffacre upon every Product of human Wit. His own Words in a Letter to one of the French Bishops, a Man of the highest Consideration and Merit (as a noted modern Critic, and satirical Genius of that Nation acknowledges) are as follow. *Pervenit ad nos quod sine verecundia memorare non possimus, fraternitatem tuam GRAMMATICAM quibusdam exponere. Quam rem ita moleste suscepimus, ac sumus vehementius aspernati, ut ea quæ prius dicta fuerant, in gemitum & tristitiam vertereamus, quia in uno se ore cum JOVIS laudibus CHRISTI laudes non capiunt. * * * * Unde si post hoc evideriter ea quæ ad nos perlata sunt, falsa esse claruerint, nec vos VUGIS & SECULARIBUS LITERIS studere contigerit, Deo nostro gratias agimus, qui cor vestrum maculari blasphemis nefandorum laudibus non permisit.* GREGORII Opera, Epist. 48. lib. 9. Paris. Ann. 1533. And in his Dedication, or first Preface to his Morals, after some very insipid Rhetorick, and figurative Dialect employ'd against the Study and Art of Speech, he has another Fling at the Classick Authors and Discipline; betraying his inveterate Hatred to antient Learning, as well as the natural Effect of this Zealot-Passion, in his own Barbarity both of Style and Manners. His words are, Unde & ipsam artem loquendi, quam Magisteria Disciplinæ exterioris insinuant, ser. are despecti. Nam sicut hujus quoque Epistolæ tenor enunciat, non Metacismi collisionem fugio: non Barbarismi confusionem decito, sitis motusque præpositionum casusque ferreare height of Zeal did their utmost to destroy all Foot-steps of Heathen Literature, and consequently all further use of Learning or Antiquity.

BUT happily the Zeal of this kind is now left as proper only to those despis'd and ignorant ferre contemno: quia indignum vehementer existimo, ut verba caelestis oraculi reftringam sub regulis DONATI. That he carry'd this savage Zeal of his so far as to destroy (what in him lay) the whole Body of Learning, with all the Classick Authors then in being, was generally believ'd. And (what was yet more notorious and unnatural in a ROMAN Pontiff) the Destruction of the Statues, Sculptures, and finest Pieces of Antiquity in ROME, was charg'd on him by his Successor in the SEE; as, besides PLATINA, another Writer of his Life, without the least Apology, confesses. See in the above-cited Edition of St. GREGORY's Works at the beginning, viz. Vita D. Gregorii ex Joan. Laziardo Caesestino. 'Tis no wonder, therefore, if other Writers have given account of that Sally of the Prelate's Zeal against the Books and Learning of the Antients, for which the Reason alledg'd was very extraordinary; "That the holy Scriptures wou'd be the better relish'd, and receive a considerable Advantage by the Destruction of these Rivals." It seems they had no very high Idea of the holy Scripture, when they suppos'd them such losers by a Comparison. However, 'twas thought advisable by other Fathers (who had a like view) to frame new Pieces of Literature, after the Model of these condemn'd Antients. Hence those ridiculous Attempts of new heroick Poems, new Epicks and Dramaticks, new HOMERS, EURIPIDES'S MENANDERS, which were with so much Pains and so little Effect industriously set a-foot by the zealous Priesthood; when Ignorance prevail'd, and the Hierarchal Dominion was so universal. But tho' their Power had well nigh compass'd the Destruction of those great Originals, they were far from being able to procure any Reception for their puny Imitations. The Mock-Works have lain in their deserv'd Obscurity; as will all other Attempts of that kind, concerning which our Author has already given his Opinion, rant modern Enthusiaſts we have deſcrib'd. The ROMAN Church it-ſelf is ſo recover'd from this primitive Fanaticiſm, that their Great Men, and even their Pontiffs, * are found ready to give their helping Hand, and confer their Bounty liberally towards the advancement of all anti-ent and polite Learning. They juſtly obſerve that their very Traditions ſtand in need of ſome collateral Proof. The Conſervation of theſe other antient and diſintereſted Authors, they nion, VOL. I. pag. 356, 357, &c. But as to the ill Policy as well as Barbarity of this Zealot-Enmity againſt the Works of the Antients, a foreign Proteſtant Divine, and moſt learned Defender of Religion, making the beſt Excufe he can for the GREEK-Fathers, and endeavouring to clear them from this general Charge of Havock and Maſſacre committed upon Science and Erudition, has theſe words: “ Si cela eſt, voilà encore un nouveau Sujet de mépriſer les Patriarches de CONSTANTINOPLE qui n'étoient d'ailleurs rien moins que gens de bien; mais j'ai de la peine à le croire, parce qu'il nous eſt reſté de Poetes infiniment plus ſales que ceux qui ſe ſont perdus. Perſonne ne doute qu' ARISTOPHANE ne ſoit beaucoup plus ſale, que n'étoit MENANDER. PLUTARQUE en eſt un bon témoin, dans la Comparaiſon qu'il a faite de ces deux Poetes. Il pouvoit être néanmoins arrivé, que quelques ECCLESIASTIQUES ennemis des Belles Lettres, en euſſent uſé comme dit CHALCONDYLE, ſant penſer qu'en conſervant toute l'Antiquité Grecque, ils conſerveroient la Langue de leurs Prédéceſſeurs, et une infinie de Faits qui ſervoient beaucoup à l'intelligence et à la confirmation de l'Histoire Sacrée, et meme de la Religion Chretienne. Ces gens-là devoient au moins nous conſerver les Hiſtoires Anciennes des Orientaux, comme des Chaldéens, des Tyriens, et des Egyptiens; mais ils agiſſoient plus par ignorance et par negligence, que par raiſon.” BIBL. CHOIS. Tom. XIV. pag. 131, 132, 133.

* Such a one is the preſent Prince, CLEMENT XI. an Incourager of all Arts and Sciences.

wiſely

wisely judge essential to the Credibility of those principal Facts, on which the whole religious History and Tradition depend.

'TWOUD indeed be in vain for us, to bring a PONTIUS PILATE into our Creed, and recite what happen'd under him, in JUDEA, if we knew not "Under whom he himself govern'd, whose " Authority he had, or what Character he bore, " in that remote Country, and amidst a foreign " People." In the same manner, 'twou'd be in vain for a ROMAN Pontiff to derive his Title to spiritual Sovereignty from the Seat, Influence, Power, and Donation of the Roman CAESARS, and their Successors; if it appear'd not by any History, or collateral Testimony, " Who " the first CAESARS were; and how they came " possess'd of that universal Power, and long " Residence of Dominion."

MY READER doubtless, by this time, must begin to wonder thro' what Labyrinth of Speculation, and odd Texture of capricious Reflections I am offering to conduct him. But he will not, I presume, be altogether displeas'd with me, when I give him to understand, that being now come into my last MISCELLANY, and being sensible of the little Courtship I have paid paid him, comparatively with what is practis'd in that kind by other modern Authors; I am willing, by way of Compensation, to express my Loyalty or Homage towards him, and shew, by my natural Sentiments, and Principles, "What particular Deference and high Respect

" I think to be his Due."

THE Issue therefore of this long Deduction is, in the first place, with due Compliments, in my Capacity of Author, and in the name of all modest Workmen willingly joining with me in this Representation, to congratulate our English READER on the Establishment of what is so advantageous to himself; I mean, that mutual Relation between him and ourselves, which naturally turns so much to his Advantage, and makes us to be in reality the subservient Party. And in this respect 'tis to be hop'd he will long enjoy his just Superiority and Privilege over his humble Servants, who compose and labour for his sake. The Relation in all likelihood must still continue, and be improv'd. Our common Religion and Christianity, founded on Letters and Scripture, promises thus much. Nor is this Hope likely to fail us, whilst READERS are really allow'd the Liberty to read; that is to say, to examine, construe and remark with Understanding. LEARNING and SCIENCE must

must of necessity flourish, whilst the Language of the wisest and most learned of Nations is acknowledg'd to contain the principal and essential part of our holy Revelation. And CRITICISM, Examinations, Judgments, literate Labours and Inquiries must still be in Repute and Practice; whilst antient Authors, so necessary to the Support of the sacred Volumes, are in request, and afford Employment of such infinite Extent to us Moderns of whatever degree, who are desirous to signalize ourselves by any Atchievement in Letters, and be consider'd as the Investigators of Knowledge and Politeness.

I MAY undoubtedly, by virtue of my preceding Argument in behalf of Criticism, be allow'd, without suspicion of Flattery or mere Courtship, to assert the READER'S Privilege above the Author; and assign to him, as I have done, the upper Hand, and Place of Honour. As to Fact, we know for certain, that the greatest of Philosophers, the very Founder of Philosophy it-self, was no Author. Nor did the Divine Author and Founder of our Religion, condescend to be an Author in this other respect. He who cou'd best have given us the History of his own Life, with the intire Sermons and divine Discourses which he made in publick, was pleas'd

to

to leave it to others, * “ To take in hand:” As there were many, it seems, long afterwards, who did; and undertook accordingly “ to write in order, and as seem'd good to them, for “ the better information of particular Persons, “ what was then believ'd among the Initiated

* So LUKE, chap. i. ver. 1, 2, 3, 4. “ (1) For as much as MANY “ have taken in hand to set forth, in order, a Declaration (Exposition or “ Narrative, Δίηγησιν, of those things which are most surely believ'd a- “ mong (or were fulfill'd in, or among) us; (2) Even as they deliver'd “ them unto us, which from the beginning were Eye-witnesse and Mi- “ nisters of the Word: (3) It seem'd good to ME also, having had “ perfect understanding of all things from the very first (or having look'd “ back and search'd accurately into all Matters from the beginning, or highest “ time, παρεκτελεθεικότι ἀναθεὶν πάσῃ ἀκρίβειᾳ) to write unto Thee in order, “ most excellen, THEOPHILUS, (4) That Thou mightest know the Cer- “ tainty (or Validity, sound Discussion, ἀσφάλειαν) of those things wherein “ THOU hast been instructed (or catechiz'd) περι ὧν κατηχήθης.” Whether the words πεπληροφορημένων ἐν ἡμῖν, in the first Verse, shou'd be render'd believ'd among, or fulfill'd in, or among us, may depend on the different reading of the Original. For in some Copies, the ἐν next following is left out. However, the exact Interpreter, or verbal Translators render it fulfill'd, Vid. Ar. Montan. Edit. Plantin. 1584. In Ver. 4. the word CERTAINTY ἀσφάλειαν, is interpreted ἀκρίβειαν, Validity, Soundness, good Foundation, from the Sense of the preceding Verse. See the late Edition of our learned Dr. MILL, ex recensione RUSTERI, Rot. 1710. For the word Catechiz'd, κατηχήθης (the last of the fourth Verse) ROB. CONSTANTINE has this Explanation of it. “ Præcis Theologi; “ apud ÆGYPTIOS mos erat, ut Myſteria voce tantum, veluti per manus, “ posteris relinquerent. Apud Christianos, qui Baptifmatis erant candidati, iis, “ viva voce, tradebatur fidei Christianæ Myſteria, sine scriptis: quod PAU- “ LUS & LUCAS κατηχεῖν vocant. Unde qui docebantur, Catechumeni vo- “ cabantur; qui docebant, Catechistæ.”

“ or Catechiz'd, from Tradition, and early In- “ struction in their Youth; or what had been “ transmitted, by Report, from such as were “ the presum'd Auditors, and Eye-witneffes of “ those things in former time.”

WHETHER those sacred Books ascrib'd to the Divine Legislator of the JEWS, and which treat of his * Death, Burial, and Succession, as well as of his Life and Actions, are strictly to be understood as coming from the immediate Pen of that holy Founder, or rather from some other inspir'd Hand, guided by the same influencing Spirit; I will not presume so much as to examine or enquire. But in general we find, That both as to publick Concerns in Religion, and in Philosophy, the great and eminent Actors were of a Rank superior to the Writing-Worthys. The great ATHENIAN Legislator, tho noted as a poetical Genius, cannot be esteem'd an Author, for the sake of some few Verses he may occasionally have made.
 Nor was the great SPARTAN Founder, a Poet himself, tho Author or Redeemer (if I may so express it) to the greatest and best of Poets; who ow'd in a manner his Form and Being to the accurate Searches and Collections of that great

* Deut. ch. xxxiv. ver. 5, 6, 7, &c.

Patron. The Politicians and civil SAGES, who were fitted in all respects for the great Scene of Business, cou'd not, it seems, be well taken out of it, to attend the slender and minute Affairs of Letters, and Scholastick Science.

'TIS true, indeed, that without a Capacity for Action, and a Knowledge of the World and Mankind, there can be no Author naturally qualify'd to write with Dignity, or execute any noble or great Design. But there are many, with the highest Capacity for Business, are by their Fortune deny'd the Privilege of that higher Sphere. As there are others who having once mov'd in it, have been afterwards, by many Impediments and Obstructions, necessitated to retire, and exert their Genius in this lower degree.

'TIS to some Catastrophe of this kind that we owe the noblest Historians (even the two Princes and Fathers of History) as well as the greatest Philosophical Writers, the Founder of the ACADEMY, and others, who were also noble in respect of their Birth, and fitted for the highest Stations in the Publick; but discourag'd from engaging in it, on account of some Misfortunes experienc'd either in their own Persons, or that of their near Friends.

'TIS to the early Banishment and long Retirement of a heroick Youth out of his native Country, that we owe an original System of Works, the politest, wisest, usefullest, and (to those who can understand the Divineness of a just Simplicity) the most * amiable, and even the most elevating and exalting of all un-inspir'd and merely human Authors.

TO this Fortune we owe some of the greatest of the antient Poets. 'Twas this Chance which produc'd the MUSE of an exalted Grecian † LYRICK, and of his Follower ‡ HORACE; whose Character, tho' easy to be gather'd from History, and his own Works, is little observ'd by any of his Commentators: The general Idea, conceiv'd of him, being drawn chiefly from his precarious and low Circumstances at Court, after the forfeiture

* Τὸν ἠδίστον καὶ χαίρειστος ξενοφῶντα, as Athenæus calls him, lib. 11. See V O L. I. pag. 255.

† Et te sonantem plenius aures,
A L C E E, plestro dura navis,
Dura fugæ mala, dura belli.

Horat. Od. 13. lib. 2.

‡ ————— Age, dic Latinum,
Barbite, carmen.
Uxib' primū modulate Cici;
Qui ferox bello, &c.

Horat. Od. 32. lib. 1.

of his Estate, under the Ufurpation and Conquest of an OCTAVIUS, and the Ministry of a MAECENAS; not from his better Condition, and nobler Employments in earlier days, under the Favour and Friendship of greater and better Men, whilst the Roman State and Liberty subsisted. For of this Change he himself, as great a Courtier as he seem'd afterwards, gives sufficient * Intimation.

LET

* *Dura sed amovere loco me Tempora grato,
Civillisque rudem Belli tulit æsus in arma,
Cæsaris Augusti non responsura lacestis.
Unde simul primum me dimisere Philippi,
Decisis humilem pennis, inopemque paterni
Et Laris & Fovili, Paupertas impulit aulæ
Ut cessus facerem.*

Horat. Epist. 2. lib. 2. Et Sat. 6. lib. 1.

At olim

Quod mihi pareret Legio Romana Tribuno.

Viz. under BRUTUS. Whence again that natural Boast:

Me primis Urbis BELLII placuisse Domique.

Epist. 20.

And again,

— Cum MAGNIS vixisse invidiæ fitebitur usque

Invidia.

Sat. 1. lib. 2.

Where the vixisse shews plainly whom he principally meant by his MAGNIS, his early Patrons and Great Men in the State: His Apology and Defence here (as well as in his fourth and sixth Satires of his first Book, and his 2d Epistle of his second, and elsewhere) being supported still by the open and bold Assertion of his good Education (equal to the highest Senators, and under the best Masters' his Employments at home and abroad, and his early Commerce and Familiarity with former Great Men, before these his new Friendships and this latter Court-Acquaintance, which was now envy'd him by his Adversaries.

NUNC quia Mæcenæ, tibi sum convictor: at OLIM

Quod mihi pareret Legio Romana Tribuno.

LET AUTHORS therefore know themselves; and tho' conscious of Worth, Virtue, and a Genius, such as may justly place them above Flattery or mean Courtship to their READER; yet let them reflect, that as Authors merely, they are but of the second Rank of Men. And let the READER withal consider, " That when he
 " unworthily resigns the place of Honour, and " surrenders his Taste, or Judgment, to an Author of ever so great a Name, or venerable
 " Antiquity, and not to Reason, and Truth, at " whatever hazard; he not only betrays him-

The Reproach now was with respect to a MAECENAS or AUGUSTUS. 'Twas the same formerly with respect to a BRUTUS, and those who were then the principal and leading Men. The Complaint or Murmur against him on account of his being an Uffstart or Favourite under a MAECENAS and AUGUSTUS, cou'd not be answer'd, by a Finisſe relating to the same Persons; any more than his Placisſe join'd with his B E L L I Dominique cou'd relate to those under whom he never went to War, nor wou'd ever consent to bear any Honours. For so he himself distinguishes (Sat. 6. to MAECENAS)

————— Quia non ut forſit Honorem

Jure mihi incidat quæ is, ita te quoque Amicum.

He was formerly an Actor, and in the Ministry of Affairs: Now only a FRIEND to a Minister: Himself still a private and retir'd Man. That he refus'd AUGUSTUS's Offer of the Secretary-ſhip, is well known. But in these Circumstances, the Politeneſs as well as Artifice of HORACE is admirable; in making Futurity or Posterity to be the speaking Party in both those places, where he suggests his Intimacy and Favour with the Great, that there might, in some measure, be room left (tho' in strictness there was scarce any) for an OCTAVIUS and a MAECENAS to be included. See VOL. I. pag. 269, 270. in the Notes.

ſelf,

“ self, but withal the common Cause of AUTHOR
 “ and READER, the Interest of Letters and “ Knowledge, and the chief Liberty, Privilege,
 “ and Prerogative of the rational part of Man“ kind.”

’TIS related in History of the CAPPADOCI-ANS, That being offer’d their Liberty by the ROMANS, and permitted to govern themselves by their own Laws and constitutions, they were much terrify’d at the Proposal; and as if some fore harm had been intended ’em, humbly made it their Request, “ That they “ might be govern’d by arbitrary Power, and “ that an absolute Governour might without “ delay be appointed over ’em at the discre“ tion of the ROMANS.” For such was their Disposition towards mere Slavery and Subjection; that they dar’d not pretend so much as to chuse
 their own MASTER. So essential they thought SLAVERY, and so divine a thing the Right of MASTERSHIP, that they dar’d not be so free even as to presume to give themselves that Blessing, which they chose to leave rather to Providence, Fortune, or a CONQUEROR to bestow upon them. They dar’d not make a King;
 but wou’d rather take one, from their powerful Neighbours. Had they been necessitated to come to an Election, the Horror of such a

Ufe of Liberty in Government, wou'd perhaps have determin'd 'em to chufe blindfold, or leave it to the Decifion of the commoneft Lot, Caft of Dye, Crofs or Pile, or whatever it were which might beft enable them to clear themfelves of the heinous Charge of ufing the leaft Forefight, Choice, or Prudence in fuch an Affair.

I SHOU'D think it a great Misfortune, were my READER of the number of thofe, who in a kind of Cappadocian Spirit, cou'd eafily be terrify'd with the Propofal of giving him his Liberty, and making him his own Judge. My Endeavour, I muft confeff, has been to fhew him his juft Prerogative in this refpect, and to give him the fharpeft Eye over his Author, invite him to criticize honeftly, without favour or affection, and with the utmoft Bent of his Parts and Judgment. On this account it may be objected to me, perhaps, “ That I am not “ a little vain and prefumptuous, in my own
 “ as well as in my Author's behalf, who can “ thus, as it were, challenge my Reader to a “ Trial of his keeneft Wit.”

BUT to this I anfwer, That fhould I have the good fortune to raife the mafterly Spirit of juft CRITICISM in my Readers, and exalt them ever fo little above the lazy, timorous, over-

over-modest, or resign'd State, in which the generality of them remain; tho' by this very Spirit, I my-self might possibly meet my Doom: I shou'd however abundantly congratulate with my-self on these my low Flights, be proud of having plum'd the Arrows of better Wits, and furnish'd Artillery, or Ammunition of any kind, to those Powers to which I my-self had fall'n a Victim.

*——Fungar vice Cotis.——

I COU'D reconcile my Ambition in this respect to what I call my Loyalty to the READER, and say of his Elevation in Criticism and Judgment, what a Roman Princess said of her Son's Advancement to Empire, “† Occidat, dum imperet.”

HAD I been a Spanish CERVANTES, and with success equal to that comick Author, had destroy'd the reigning Taste of Gothick or Moorish CHIVALRY, I cou'd afterwards contentedly have seen my Burlesque-Work it-self despis'd, and set aside; when it had wrought its intended effect, and destroy'd those Giants and Monsters of the Brain, against which it was originally design'd. Without regard, therefore, to the prevailing Relish or Taste which, in my own Person, I may unhappily experience, when these my Miscellaneous Works are leisurely examin'd; I shall proceed still in my Endeavour to refine my Reader's PALATE; whetting and sharpening it, the best I can, for Use, and Practice, in the lower Subjects; that by this Exercise it may acquire the greater Keeness, and be of so much the better effect in Subjects of a higher kind, which relate to his chief Happiness, his Liberty and Manhood.

* Horat. de Arte Poet.

† Tacit. Annal. lib. 14.

SUPPOSING me therefore a mere comick Humourist, in respect of those inferior Subjects, which after the manner of my familiar Prose-Satir I presume to criticize; May not I be allow'd to ask, "Whether there remains " not still among us noble BRITONS, some" thing of that original Barbarous and Gothick
 " Relish, not wholly purg'd away; when, even
 " at this hour, Romances and Gallantrys of like
 " sort, together with Works as monstrous of o" ther kinds, are current, and in vogue, even " with the People who constitute our reputed
 " polite World?" Need I on this account refer again to our * Author, where he treats in general of the Style and Manner of our modern Authors, from the Divine, to the Comedian?

* Viz. In his Advice to Authors, (Treatise III.) VOL. I.

What Person is there of the least Judgment or Understanding, who cannot easily, and without the help of a Divine, or rigid Moralist, observe the lame Condition of our English STAGE; which nevertheless is found the Rendevouz and chief Entertainment of our best Company, and from whence in all probability our Youth will continue to draw their Notion of Manners, and their Taste of Life, more directly and naturally, than from the Rehearsals and Declamations of a graver THEATER?

LET those whose business it is, advance, as they best can, the Benefit of that sacred Oratory, which we have lately seen and are still like to see employ'd to various purposes, and further designs than that of instructing us in Religion or Manners. Let 'em in that high Scene endeavour to refine our Taste and Judgment in sacred Matters. 'Tis the good Critick's Task to amend our common STAGE; nor ought this Dramatick Performance to be decry'd or sentenc'd by those Criticks of a higher Sphere. The Practice and Art is honest, in it-self. Our Foundations are well laid. And in the main, our English STAGE (as * has been remark'd) is capable of the highest Improvement; as well from the present Genius of our Nation, as from the rich Oar of our early Poets in this kind. But Faults are easier imitated than Beautys.

* VOL. I. pag. 217, &c. 223, 259, 275, 276.

WE find, indeed, our THEATER become of late the Subject of a growing Criticism. We hear it openly complain'd, "That in our " newer Plays as well as in our older, in " Comedy, as well as Tragedy, the Stage pre" sents a proper Scene of Uproar;—Duels
 " fought; Swords drawn, many of a side;
 " Wounds given, and sometimes dress'd too;
 " the Surgeon call'd, and the Patient prob'd
 " and tented upon the Spot. That in our Tra- " gedy nothing is so common as Wheels, Racks,
 " and Gibbets properly adorn'd; Executions
 " decently perform'd; Headless Bodys and Bo-
 " diless Heads, expos'd to view: Battels fought:
 " Murders committed: and the Dead carry'd
 " off in great Numbers."—Such is our Politeness!

NOR are these Plays, on this account, the less frequented by either of the Sexes: Which inclines me to favour the Conceit our * Author has suggested concerning the mutual Correspondence and Relation between our Royal THEATER, and Popular CIRCUS or Bear-Garden. For in the former of these Assemblies, 'tis undeniable that at least the two upper Regions or Gallerys contain such Spectators, as indifferently frequent each Place of Sport. So that 'tis no wonder we hear such Applause resounded on the Victoriys of an ALMANZOR; when the same Partys had possibly, no later than the Day before, bestow'd their Applause as freely on the victorious Butcher, the HERO of another Stage: where amidst various Frays, bestial and human Blood, promiscuous Wounds and Slaughter; one Sex are observ'd as frequent and as pleas'd Spectators as the other, and sometimes not Spectators only, but Actors in the Gladiatorian Parts.—These Congregations, which we may be apt to call Heathenish * (tho in reality never known among the politer Heathens) are, in our Christian Nation, unconcernedly allow'd and tolerated, as no way injurious to religious Interests; whatever effect they may be found to have on national Manners, Humanity, and Civil Life. Of such Indulgencys as these, we hear no Complaints. Nor are any Assemblies, tho of the most barbarous and enormous kind, so offensive, it seems, to Men of Zeal, as religious Assemblies of a different Fashion or Habit from their own.

* VOL. I. pag. 270, &c.

I AM sorry to say, that, tho in the many parts of Poetry our Attempts have been high and noble, yet in general the TASTE of Wit and Letters lies much upon a level with what relates to our Stage.

* VOL. I. pag. 263, &c.

I CAN readily allow to our BRITISH Genius what was allow'd to the ROMAN heretofore :

* ————— Natura sublimis et acer:
Nam spirat Tragicum fatis, et feliciter audet.

But then I must add too, that the excessive Indulgence and Favour shown to our Authors on account of what their mere Genius and flowing Vein afford, has render'd them intolerably supine, conceited, and Admirers of themselves. The Publick having once suffer'd 'em to take the ascendent, they become, like flatter'd Princes, impatient of Contradiction or Advice. They think it a disgrace to be criticiz'd, even by a Friend; or to reform, at his desire, what they themselves are fully convinc'd is negligent, and uncorrect.

† Sed turpem putat in scriptis, metuitque Lituram.

The † Lime Labor is the great Grievance, with our Country-men. An English AUTHOR wou'd

* Horat. Epist. 1. lib. 2.

† Ibid.

‡ Ars Poet.

be all GENIUS. He wou'd reap the Fruits of Art; but without Study, Pains, or Application. He thinks it necessary, indeed (lest his Learning shou'd be call'd in question) to show the World that he errs knowingly against the Rules of Art. And for this reason, whatever Piece he publishes at any time, he seldom fails, in some prefix'd Apology, to speak in such a manner of Criticism and Art, as may confound the ordinary Reader, and prevent him from taking up a Part, which, shou'd he once assume, wou'd prove fatal to the impotent and mean Performance.

'TWERE to be wish'd, that when once our Authors had consider'd of a Model or Plan, and attain'd the Knowledge of a * WHOLE and PARTS;

* "ΟΛΟΝ δὲ ἐστὶ τὸ ἔχον ἀρχὴν καὶ μέσον καὶ τελευτὴν· Ἀρχὴ δὲ ἐστίν, ὃ αὐτὸ μὲν ἐξ ἀνάγκης, μὴ μετ' ἄλλο ἐστὶ μετ' ἐκείνου δ' ἕτερον πέφυκεν εἶναι ἢ γένεσθαι. Τελευτὴ δὲ τὸ αὐτίον. ο' αὖτὸ μετ' ἄλλο πέφυκεν εἶναι. ἢ ἐξ ἀνάγκης, ἢ ὡς ἐπίλο- πολὺ μετὰ δὲ τούτο ἄλλο εἶδεν. Μίσηον δὲ, καὶ αὐτὸ μετ' ἄλλο, καὶ μετ' ἐκείνου ἕτερον. Arill. de Poet. cap. 7. And in the following Chapter, Μῦθος δ' ἐστὶν ἙΙΣ, ἔχ' ὡσπερ τινὲς οἰοῦνται εἶαν περὶ ἑνα ἦ, &c.

Denique si quod vis simplex duntaxat et UNUM.

Horat. de Arte Poet. See VOL. I. p. 145, 146.

'Tis an infallible proof of the want of just Integrity in every Writing, from the Epopœe or Heroick Poem, down to the familiar Epistle, or slightest Essay either in Verse or Prose, if every several Part or Portion fits not its proper place so exactly, that the least Transposition wou'd be impracticable. Whatever is Episodick, tho' perhaps it be a Whole, and in itself intire, yet being inserted, as a Part, in a Work of greater length, it must appear

PARTS; when from this beginning they had proceeded to Morals, and the Knowledge of what is call'd * POETICK MANNERS and TRUTH; appear only in its due Place. And that Place alone can be call'd its due-one, which alone befits it. If there be any Passage in the Middle or End, which might have stood in the Beginning; or any in the Beginning, which might have stood as well in the Middle or End; there is properly in such a Piece neither Beginning, Middle, or End. 'Tis a mere Rhapsody; not a Work. And the more it assumes the Air or Appearance of a real Work, the more ridiculous it becomes. See above, pag. 25. And VOL. I. pag. 145, 146.

* *Respicere exemplar vitæ morumque jubebo
Doctum Imitatorem, et VERAS hinc ducere voces.*

Horat. de Arte Poet.

The Chief of antient Criticks, we know, extols HOMER, above all things, for understanding how "To LYE in perfection:" as the Passage shews which we have cited above, VOL. I. pag. 346. His LYES, according to that Master's Opinion, and the Judgment of many of the gravest and most venerable Writers, were, in themselves, the justest Moral Truths, and exhibitive of the best Doctrine and Instruction in Life and Manners.

It may be ask'd perhaps, "How comes the Poet, then, to draw "no single Pattern of the kind, no perfect Character, in either of his Heroick Pieces?" I answer, that shou'd he attempt to do it, he wou'd, as a Poet, be preposterous and false. 'Tis not the Possible, but the Probable and Likely which must be the Poet's Guide in Manners. By this he wins Attention, and moves the conscious Reader or Spectator; who judges best from within, by what he naturally feels and experiences in his own Heart. The Perfection of Virtue is from long Art and Management, Self-control, and, as it were, Force on Nature. But the common Auditor or Spectator, who seeks Pleasure only, and loves to engage his Passion, by view of other Passion and Emotion, comprehends little of the Restraints, Allays and Corrections which form this new and artificial Creature. For such indeed is the truly virtuous Man; whose ART, tho' ever

TRUTH; when they had learnt to reject false Thought, embarrassing and mix'd Metaphors,
the

so natural in it-self, or justly founded in Reason and Nature, is an Improvement far beyond the common Stamp, or known Character of Human Kind. And thus the compleatly virtuous and perfect Character is unpoetical and false. Effects must not appear, where Causes must necessarily remain unknown and incomprehensible. A HERO without Passion, is, in Poetry, as absurd as a HERO without Life or Action. Now if Passion be allow'd, passionate Action must ensue. The same Heroick Genius and seeming Magnanimity which transport us when beheld, are naturally transporting in their Lives and Manners of the Great, who are describ'd to us. And thus the able Designer who feigns in behalf of Truth, and draws his Character after the Moral Rule, fails not to discover Nature's Propensity, and assigns to these high Spirits their proper Exorbitancy, and Inclination to exceed in that Tone or Species of Passion which constitutes the eminent or shining part of each poetical Character. The Passion of an ACHILLES is towards that Glory which is acquir'd by Arms and personal Valour. In favour of this Character, we forgive the generous Youth his excess of Ardor in the Field, and his Repentment when injur'd and provok'd in Council, and by his Allies. The Passion of an ULYSSES is towards that Glory which is acquir'd by Prudence, Wisdom, and Ability in Affairs. 'Tis in favour of this Character that we forgive him his subtle, crafty, and deceitful Air: since the intriguing Spirit, the ever-reaching Manner, and Over-refinement of Art and Policy, are as naturally incident to the experienc'd and thorow Politician, as sudden Repentment, indiscreet and rash Behaviour, to the open undesigning Character of a warlike Youth. The gigantick Force and military Toil of an AJAX wou'd not be so easily credible, or engaging, but for the honest Simplicity of his Nature, and the Heaviness of his Parts and Genius. For Strength of Body being so often noted by us, as unattended with equal Parts and Strength of Mind; when we see this natural Effect express'd, and find our secret and malicious kind of Reasoning confirm'd, on this hand; we yield to any Hyperbole of our Poet, on the other. He has afterwards his full Scope, and Liberty of enlarging, and the ridiculous Paint in Comedy, and the false Sublime, and Bombast in Heroick; they wou'd at last have some regard to Numbers, Harmony, exceeding in the peculiar Virtue and excellence of his Hero. He may lve splendidly, raise wonder, and be as glorifying as he pleases. Every thing will be allow'd him in return for this frank Allowance. Thus the Tongue of a NESTOR may work Prodigys, whilst the accompanying Allays of the rhetorical Fluency, and aged Experience, are kept in view. An AGAMEMNON may be admir'd as a noble and wise Chief, whilst a certain princely Haughtiness, a Stiffness and stately Carriage natural to the Character, are represented in his Person, and noted in their ill Effects. For thus the Excesses of every Character are by the Poet redress'd. And the Misfortunes naturally attending such Excesses, being justly apply'd; our Passions, whilst in the strongest manner engag'd and mov'd, are in the wholesomest and most effectual manner corrected and purg'd. Were a Man to form himself by one single Pattern or Original, however perfect; he wou'd himself be a mere Copy. But whilst he draws from various Models, he is original, natural, and unaffected. We see in outward Carriage and Behaviour, how ridiculous, any one becomes who imitates another, be he ever so graceful. They are mean Spirits who love to copy merely. Nothing is agreeable or natural, but what is original. Our Manners, like our Faces, tho' ever so beautiful, must differ in their Beauty. An Over-regularity is next to a Deformity. And in a Poem (whether Epick or Dramatick) a compleat and perfect Character is the greatest Monster, and of all poetick Fictions not only the least engaging, but the least moral and improving.——Thus much by way of Remark upon poetical TRUTH, and the just Fiction, or artful Lying of the able Poet; according to the Judgment of the Master-Critick. What HORACE expresses of the same Lying Virtue, is of an easier sense, and needs no explanation.

*Atque da mentitur, sic veris falsa remisset;
Primo ne medium, medio ne disjiceret inum.*

De Arte Poet.

mony, and an * Ear, and correct, as far as possible, the harsh Sounds of our Language; in Poetry at least, if not in Prose.

BUT so much are our British Poets taken up, in seeking out that monstrous Ornament which we call † Rhyme, that 'tis no wonder if

The same may be observ'd not only in Heroick Draughts, but in the inferior Characters of Comedy.

Quam similis uterque est sui!

Ter. Phorm. Act. 3. Sc. 2.

See VOL. I. pag. 4, 142, 143, 337, & 351. in the Notes, at the end.

* VOL. I. pag. 217.

† The Reader, if curious in these matters, may see Is. VOSSIUS de viribus Rhythmis; and what he says, withal, of ancient Musick, and the degrees by which they surpass us Moderns (as has been demonstrated by late Mathematicians of our Nation) contrary to a ridiculous Notion some have had, that because in this, as in all other Arts, the Antients study'd Simplicity, and affected it as the highest Perfection in their Performances, they were therefore ignorant of Parts and Symphony. Against this, Is. VOSSIUS, amongst other Authors, cites the antient Peripatetick περί Κόσμου at the beginning of his fifth Chapter. To which he might have added another Passage in Chap. 6. The Suitableness of this antient Author's Thought to what has been often advanc'd in the philosophical Parts of these Volumes, concerning the universal Symmetry, or Union of the Whole, may make it excusable if we add here the two Passages together, in their inimitable Original. "Ἴσως δὲ καὶ τῶν ἐναντιῶν ἢ φύσεις γλιχεται, καὶ ἐκ τῶν ἀποτελεῖν τὸ σίμφωνον, ἐκ ἐκ τῶν ἰσίων ὡσπερ ἀμίχλει τὸ ἀρρῆν συνήγαγε πρὸς τὸ θύλον, καὶ ἐκ ἐκάτερον πρὸς τὸ οὐδύφουλον, καὶ τὴν πρῶτων ἰσίων διὰ τῶν ἐναντιῶν συνήψεν, ἢ διὰ τῶν ἰσίων. Ἔοικε δὲ καὶ ἡ τέχνη τὴν φύσιν μιμημένη, τῷτο ποιῆν. Ἀλογαζία μὲν γὰρ, λευκῶν τε καὶ μελαίνων, ἀχρῶν τε καὶ ἐρυθρῶν χρωμάτων ἐγκατασαμένη φύσεις τὰς ἐκείας τοῖς περιγεμένους ἀπειτέισε σίμφωνος. Μουσικὴ δὲ, ὀξεῖς ἅμα καὶ βαρεῖς, μακρῆς τε καὶ ἐραχθεῖς φθόγους if other Ornaments, and real Graces are unthought of, and left un-attempted. However, since in some Parts of Poetry (especially in the Dramatick) we have been so happy as to triumph over this barbarous Taste; 'tis unaccountable that our Poets, who from this Privilege ought to undertake some further Refinements, shou'd remain still upon the same level as before. 'Tis a shame to our Authors, that in their elegant Style and metred Prose there shou'd not be found a peculiar Grace and Harmony, resulting from a more natural and easy Disengagement of their Periods, and from a careful avoiding the Encounter of the shocking Consonants and jarring Sounds to which our Language is so unfortunately subject.

THEY have of late, 'tis true, reform'd in some measure the gouty Joints and Darning-μίξιμα, ἐν διαφόροις φωναῖς, μίαν ἀπέβλεπον ἀρμονίαν. Γραμματικῇ δὲ ἐκ φωνημάτων καὶ ἀφώνων γραμμάτων κίσειν ποιησαμένη, τὴν ὅλην τέχνην ἀπ' αὐτῶν συνεστῆκε. τ' αὐτοῦ δὲ τὸ τοῦ ἦν καὶ τὸ παρὰ τῷ σκλειπῷ λεγόμενον Ἑρκελάτω. συνάφειας ἔλα καὶ ἔχῃ ἔλα, συμφερόμενοι, καὶ διαφερόμενοι, συνᾶδον καὶ διαδῶν, καὶ ἐκ πάντων ἔν, καὶ ἐξ ἑνὸς πάντα. And in the following Passage, Μίξα δὲ ἐκ πάντων ἀρμονία συναιδῶν καὶ χορευῶν κατὰ τὸν θρανόν, ἐξ ἑνὸς τε γίνεσθαι, καὶ εἰς ἑν ἀπολύγει. Κόσμον δ' ἐτύγχευε τὸ συμπαν, ἀλλ' ἔχ' ἀκοσμίαν ἐνομήσας αὖν. Καθαπερ δὲ ἐκ χορῶν, κερυφαίη κατὰρξάθη, συνηπηνχῆ πᾶς ὁ χορὸς ἀνδρῶν, ἴσθ' ἔτε καὶ γυναικῶν, ἐν διαφόροις φωναῖς ὀξύτεροι καὶ βαρύτεροι, μίαν ἀρμονίαν ἐμμελῆ κεραιούων, ἔτας ἔχει καὶ ἐπι τῷ τὸ σύμπαν διέπειθε Θ Ε Ο Τ. See V O L. II. pag. 214. And above, pag. 180, 3, 4, 5, in the Notes.

work of Whereunto's, Whereby's, Thereof's, Therewith's and the rest of this kind; by which, complicated Periods are so curiously strung, or hook'd on, one to another, after the long-spun manner of the Bar or Pulpit. But to take into consideration no real Accent, or Cadency of Words, no Sound or Measure of Syllables; to put together, at one time, a Set of Compounds, of the longest Greek or Latin Termination; and at another, to let whole Verses, and those too of our heroick and longest sort, pass currently in Monosyllables: is, methinks, no slender Negligence. If single Verses at the head, or in the most emphatical places, of the most considerable Works can admit of such a Structure, and pass for truly harmonious and poetical in this negligent form; I see no reason why more Verses than one or two, of the same formation, shou'd not be as well admitted; or why an uninterrupted Succession of these well-strung Monosyllables might not be allow'd to clatter after one another, like the Hammers of a Paper-Mill, without any breach of Musick, or prejudice to the Harmony of our Language. But if Persons who have gone no farther than a Smith's Anvil to gain an Ear, are yet likely, on fair trial, to find a plain defect in these Ten-Monosyllable Heroicks; it wou'd follow, methinks, that even a Prose-Author, who attempts to write politely, shou'd endeavour to confine himself within those Bounds, which can never, without breach of Harmony, be exceeded in any just Metre, or agreeable Pronunciation.

THUS HAVE I ventur'd to arraign the Authority of those self-privileg'd Writers, who wou'd exempt themselves from Criticism, and save their ill-acquir'd Reputation, by the Derial of an Art, on which the Cause and Interest of Wit and Letters absolutely depend. Be it they themselves, or their great Patrons in their behalf, who wou'd thus arbitrarily support the Credit of ill Writings; the Attempt, I hope, will prove unsuccessful. Be they Moderns or Antients, Foreigners or Natives, ponderous and austere Writers, or airy and of the humorous kind: Whoever takes refuge here, or seeks Protection hence; whoever joins his Party or Interest to this Cause; it appears from the very Fact and Endeavour alone, that there is just ground to suspect some Insufficiency or Imposture at the bottom. And on this account the READER, if he be wise, will the rather redouble his Application and Industry, to examine the Merit of his assuming Author. If, as Reader, and Judge, he dare once assert that Liberty to which we have shewn him justly intitled; he will not easily be threaten'd ten'd or ridicul'd out of the use of his examining Capacity, and natural Privilege of CRITICISM.

'Twas to this Art, so well understood and practis'd heretofore, that the wise Antients ow'd whatever was consummate and perfect in their Productions. 'Tis to the same Art we owe the Recovery of Letters in these latter Ages. To this alone we must ascribe the Recognition of antient Manuscripts, the Discovery of what is spurious, and the Discernment of whatever is genuine of those venerable Remains which have pass'd thro' such dark Periods of Ignorance, and rais'd us to the Improvements we now make in every Science. 'Tis to this Art, that even the Sacred Authors themselves owe their highest Purity and Correctness. So sacred ought the Art it-self to be esteem'd; when from its Supplies alone is form'd that judicious and learned Strength by which the Defenders of our Holy Religion are able so successfully to refute the Heathens, Jews, Seĉtarians, Hereticks, and other Enemies or Opposers of our primitive and antient Faith.

BUT having thus, after our Author's example, asserted the Use of CRITICISM in all literate Works, from the main Frame, or Plan of every Writing, down to the minutest Particle; we may now proceed to exercise this Art upon our Author himself, and by his own Rules examine him in this his last Treatise; reserving still to our-selves the same Privilege of Variation, and Excursion into other Subjects, the same Episodick Liberty, and Right of wandering, which we have maintain'd in the preceding Chapters.

C H A P. II.

Generation and Succession of our national and modern Wit.—Manners of the Proprietors.—Corporation and Joint-Stock—Statute against Criticism. A Coffee-House Committee.—Mr. BAYS.—Other BAYS'S in Divinity.—Censure of our Author's Dialogue-Piece; and of the Manner of Dialogue-Writing, us'd by Reverend Wits.

ACCORDING to the common Course of Practice in our Age, we seldom see the Character of Writer and that of Critick united in the same Person. There is, I know, a certain Species of Authors who subsist wholly by the criticizing or commenting Practice upon others, and can appear in no other Form besides what this Employment authorizes them to assume. They have no original Character, or first Part; but wait for something which may be call'd a Work, in order to graft upon it, and come in, for Sharers, at second hand.

THE Pen-men of this Capacity and Degree, are, from their Function and Employment, distinguish'd by the Title of ANSWERERS. For it happens in the World, that there are Readers of a Genius and Size just fitted to these answering Authors. These, if they teach 'em nothing else, will teach 'em, they think, to criticize. And tho' the new practising Criticks are of a sort unlikely ever to understand any original Book or Writing; they can understand, or at least remember, and quote the subsequent Reflections, Flouts, and Jeers, which may accidentally be made on such a Piece. Wherever a Gentleman of this sort happens, at any time, to be in company, you shall no sooner hear a new Book spoken of, than 'twill be ask'd, "Who has answer'd it?" or "When is there an Answer to come out?"——Now the Answer, as our Gentleman knows, must needs be newer than the Book. And the newer a thing is, the more fashionable still, and the genteeler the Subject of Discourse. For this the Bookseller knows how to fit our Gentleman to a nicety: For he has commonly an Answer ready bespoke, and perhaps finish'd, by the time his new Book comes abroad. And 'tis odds but our fashionable Gentleman, who takes both together, may read the latter first, and drop the other for good and all.

BUT

BUT of these answering WITS, and the manner of Rejoinders, and reiterate Rephys, we have said what is sufficient * in a former MISCELLANY. We need only remark in general, “ That ‘tis necessary a writing CRITICK shou’d understand how to write. And tho every Writer is not bound to shew himself in the capacity of CRITICK, every writing Critick is bound to shew himself capable of being a WRITER. For if he be apparently impotent in this latter kind, he is to be deny’d all Title or Character in the other.”

To censure merely what another Person writes; to twitch, snap, snub up, or banter; to torture Sentences and Phrases, turn a few Expressions into Ridicule, or write what is now-a-days call’d an Answer to any Piece, is not sufficient to constitute what is properly esteem’d a WRITER, or AUTHOR in due form. For this reason, tho there are many ANSWERERS seen abroad, there are few or no CRITICKS or SATIRISTS. But whatever may be the State of Controversy in our Religion, or politick Concerns; ‘tis certain that in the mere literate World Affairs are manag’d with a better Understanding between the principal Partys concern'd. The WRITERS or AUTHORS in possession, have an easier time than any Ministry, or religious Party, which is uppermost. They have found a way, by decrying all CRITICISM in general, to get rid of their Dissenters, and prevent all Pretences to further Reformation, in their State. The CRITICK is made to appear distinct, and of another Species; wholly different from The Writer. None who have a GENIUS for Writing, and can perform with any Success, are presum'd so ill-natur'd or illiberal as to endeavour to signalize themselves in CRITICISM.

* Viz. Supra, MISC. I. chap. 2.

'TIS not difficult, however, to imagine why this practical Difference between Writer and Critick has been so generally establish'd amongst us, as to make the Provinces seem wholly distinct, and irreconcilable. The forward WITS, who without waiting their due time, or performing their requisite Studys, start up in the World as AUTHORS, having with little Pains or Judgment, and by the strength of Fancy merely, acquir'd a Name with Mankind, can on no account afterwards, submit to a Decrial or Disparagement of those raw Works to which they ow'd their early Character and Distinction. Ill wou'd it fare with 'em, indeed, if on these tenacious Terms, they shou'd venture upon CRITICISM,

CRITICISM, or offer to move that Spirit which wou'd infallibly give such Disturbance to their establish'd Title.

NOW we may consider, That in our Nation, and especially in our present Age, whilst Wars, Debates, and publick Convulsions turn our Minds so wholly upon Business and Affairs; the better Genius's being in a manner necessarily involv'd in the active Sphere, on which the general Eye of Mankind is so strongly fixt; there must remain in the Theater of Wit, a sufficient Vacancy of Place: and the quality of Actor upon that Stage, must of consequence be very easily attainable, and at a low Price of Ingenuity or Understanding.

THE Persons therefore who are in possession of the prime Parts, in this deserted Theatre, being suffer'd to maintain their Ranks and Stations in full Ease, have naturally a good Agreement and Understanding with their Fellow-Wits. Being indebted to the Times for this Happiness, that with so little Industry or Capacity they have been able to serve the Nation with Wit, and supply the Place of real Dispensers and Ministers of the MUSES Treasures; they must, necessarily, as they have any Love for themselves, or fatherly Affection for their Works, conspire with one another, to preserve their common Interest

Interest of Indolence, and justify their Remifness, Uncorrectness, Infipidness, and downright Ignorance of all literate Art, or just poetick Beauty.

* Magna inter molles Concordia.

FOR this reason you see 'em mutually courteous, and benevolent; gracious and obliging, beyond measure; complimenting one another interchangeably, at the head of their Works, in recommendatory Verses, or in separate Panegyrics, Essays, and Fragments of Poetry; such as in the Miscellaneous Collections (our yearly Retail of Wit) we see curiously compacted, and accommodated to the Relish of the World. Here the Tyrocinium of Genius's is annually display'd. Here, if you think fit, you may make acquaintance with the young Offspring of WITS, as they come up gradually under the old; with due Courtship, and Homage, paid to those high Predecessors of Fame, in hope of being one day admitted, by turn, into the noble Order, and made WITS by Patent and Authority.

THIS is the young Fry which you may see busily furrounding the grown Poet, or chief Play-house Author, at a Coffee-House. They are his Guards; ready to take up Arms for him; if by some presumptuous Critick he is at any time attack'd. They are indeed the very Shadows of their immediate Predecessor, and represent the same Features, with some small Alteration perhaps for the worse. They are sure to aim at nothing above or beyond their Master; and would on no account give him the least Jealousy of their aspiring to any Degree or Order of writing above him. From hence that Harmony and reciprocal Esteem, which, on such a bottom as this, cannot fail of being perfectly well establish'd among our Poets: The Age, mean while, being after this manner hopefully provided, and secure of a constant and like Succession of meritorious Wits, in every kind!

* Juven. Sat. 2. ver. 47.

IF by chance a Man of Sense, un-appriz'd of the Authority of these high Powers, shou'd venture to accost the Gentlemen of this Fraternity, at some Coffee-house Committee, whilst they were taken up, in mutual Admiration, and the usual Praise of their national and co-temporary Wits; 'tis possible he might be treated with some Civility, whilst he inquir'd, for Satisfaction sake, into the Beautys of those particular Works so unanimously extoll'd. But shou'd he presume to ask, in general, " Why " is our Epick or Dramatick, our Essay, or common

“ mon Prose no better executed?” Or, “ Why
 “ in particular does such or such a reputed “ Wit write so incorrectly, and with so little “ regard to Justness of Thought or Language?”
 The Answer wou’d presently be given, “ That “ we Englishmen are not ty’d up to such rigid “ Rules as those of the antient Grecian, or “ modern French Criticks.”

“ BE it so, (Gentlemen!) ’Tis your good “ Pleasure. Nor ought any-one to dispute it “ with you. You are Masters, no doubt, in “ your own Country. But (Gentlemen!) the “ Question here, is not What your Authority
 “ may be over your own Writers. You may “ have them of what Fashion or Size of Wit
 “ you please; and allow them to entertain
 “ you at the rate you think sufficient, and sa“ tisfactory. But can you, by your good Plea“ sure, or the Approbation of your highest “ Patrons, make that to be either Wit, or Sense,
 “ which wou’d otherwise have been Bombast
 “ and Contradiction? If your Poets are still “ * Mr BAYS’s, and your Prose-Authors Sir
 ROGERS,

* To see the Incurribleness of our Poets in their pedantick Manner, their Vanity, Defiance of Criticism, their Rhodomontade, and poetical Bravado; we need only turn to our famous Poet-Laureat (the very Mr. BAYS himself) in one of his latest and most valu’d Pieces, writ many

“ ROGERS, without offering at a better Man“ ner; must it follow that the Manner itself is “ good, or the Wit genuine?—What say
 “ you (Gentlemen!) to this new Piece?—
 “ Let us examine these Lines which you “ shining! This String of Sentences which you “ call clever! This Pile of Metaphors which “ you call sublime!—Are you unwilling “ (Gentlemen!) to stand the Test? Do you “ despise the Examination?

years after the ingenious Author of the Rehearsal had drawn his Picture.
 “ I have been littening (says our Poet, in his Preface to Don Sebastian)
 “ what Objections had been made against the Conduct of the Play, but “ found them all so trivial, that if I shou’d name them, a true Critick “ wou’d imagine that I play’d booty—Some are pleas’d to say the “ Writing is dull. But etatem habet, de se loquatur. Others, that the “ double Poison is unnatural. Let the common receiv’d Opinion, and “ Ausonius’s famous Epigram answer that. Lastly, a more ignorant sort “ of Creatures than either of the former, maintain that the Character of “ DORAX is not only unnatural, but inconsistent with it-self. Let them “ read the Play, and think again.—A longer Reply is what those Ca-“ villers deserve not. But I will give them and their Fellows to under“ stand, that the Earl of * * * was pleas’d to read the Tragedy twice over “ before it was acted, and did me the favour to send me word, that I had “ written beyond any of my former Plays, and that he was displeas’d “ any thing shou’d be cut away. If I have not reason to prefer his sin“ gle Judgment to a whole Faction, let the World be judge: For the “ Opposition is the same with that of LUCAN’S Hero against an Army, “ concurrere Bellum atque Virum. I think I may modestly conclude, &c.”
 Thus he goes on, to the very end, in the self-same Strain. Who, after this, can ever say of the Rehearsal-Author, that his Picture of our Poet was over-charg’d, or the national Humour wrong describ’d?

“ SIR!—Since you are pleas’d to take “ this Liberty with us; May we presume to “ ask you a Question? O Gentlemen!
 “ as many as you please: I shall be highly “ honour’d. Why then (pray Sir!) in“ form us, Whether you have ever writ?
 “ Very often (Gentlemen!) especially on a “ Post-night. But have you writ (for in“ stance, Sir!) a Play, a Song, an Essay, or a “ PAPER, as, by way of Eminence, the cur“ rent Pieces of our Weekly Wits are generally “ styl’d? Something of this kind I may “ perhaps (Gentlemen!) have attempted, tho
 “ without publishing my Work. But pray “ (Gentlemen!) what is my writing, or not “ writing to the question in hand? Only “ this, (Sir!) and you may fairly take our “ words for it: That, whenever you publish,
 “ you will find the Town against you. Your “ Piece will infallibly be condemn’d.
 “ So let it. But for what reason, Gentle“ men? I am sure, you never saw the Piece.
 “ No, Sir, But you are a CRITICK.
 “ And we know by certain Experience, that,
 “ when a Critick writes according to Rule and “ Method, he is sure never to hit the English “ Taste. Did not Mr. R——, who criticiz’d
 “ our English Tragedy, write a sorry one of “ his own? If he did (Gentlemen!) ’twas “ his

“ his own fault, not to know his Genius better. But is his Criticism the less just on this account? If a Musician performs his Part well in the hardest Symphonys, he must necessarily know the Notes, and understand the Rules of Harmony and Musick. But must a Man, therefore, who has an Ear, and has study'd the Rules of Musick, of necessity have a Voice or Hand? Can no one possibly judge a Fiddle, but who is himself a Fiddler? Can no one judge a Picture, but who is himself a Layer of Colours?” —

THUS far our rational Gentleman perhaps might venture, before his Coffee-house Audience. Had I been at his Elbow to prompt him as a Friend, I shou'd hardly have thought fit to remind him of any thing further. On the contrary, I shou'd have rather taken him aside, to inform him of this Cabal, and establish'd Corporation of Wit; of their declar'd Aversion to Criticism, and of their known Laws and Statutes in that Case made and provided. I shou'd have told him, in short, that learned Arguments wou'd be mispent on such as these: And that he wou'd find little Success, tho he shou'd ever so plainly demonstrate to the Gentlemen of this Size of Wit and Understanding. “ That the greatest Masters of Art, in every kind of Writing, were eminent in the critical “tical Practice.” But that they really were so, witness, among the Antients, their greatest * PHILOSOPHERS, whose critical Pieces lie intermix'd with her profound philosophical Works, and other politer Tracts ornamentally writ † for publick use. Witness in History and Rhetorick, ISOCRATES, DIONYSIUS HALICARNASSEUS, PLUTARCH, and the corrupt LUCIAN himself; the only one perhaps of these Authors whom our Gentlemen may, in some modern Translation, have look'd into, with any Curiosity or Delight. To these among the Romans we may add CICERO, VARRO, HORACE, QUINTILIAN, PLINY, and many more.

AMONG the Moderns, a BOILEAU and a CORNEILLE are sufficient Precedents in the Case before us. They apply'd their Criticizm with just Severity, even to their own Works. This indeed is a Manner hardly Practicable with the Poets of our own Nation. It wou'd be unreasonable to expect of 'em that they shou'd bring such Measures in use, as being apply'd to their Works, wou'd discover 'em to be wholly deform'd and disproportionable. 'Tis no wonder therefore if we have so little of this critical Genius extant, to guide us in our Taste. 'Tis no wonder if what is generally current in this kind, lies in a manner bury'd, and in disguise under Burlesque, as particularly in the * witty Comedy of a noble Author of this last Age. To the Shame, however, of our profess'd Wits and Enterprizers in the higher Spheres of Poetry, it may be observ'd, that they have not wanted good Advice and Instruction of the graver kind, from as high a Hand in respect of Quality and Character: Since one of the justest of our modern Poems, and so confess'd even by our Poets themselves, is a short Criticism, AN ART of POETRY; by which, if they themselves were to be judg'd, they must in general appear no better than mere Bunglers, and void of all true Sense and Knowledge in their Art. But if in reality both Critick and Poet, confessing the Justice of these Rules of Art, can afterwards, in Practice, condemn and approve, perform and judge, in a quite different manner from what they acknowledge just and true: it plainly shews, That, tho perhaps we are not indigent in Wit; we want what is of more consequence, and can alone raise Wit to any Dignity or Worth; even plain HONESTY, MANNERS, and a Sense of that MORAL TRUTH, on which (as has been often express'd in these * Volumes) poetick TRUTH and Beauty must naturally depend.

* Viz. PLATO, ARISTOTLE. See, in particular, the PHAEDRUS of the former; where an entire Piece of the Orator LYSIAS is criticiz'd in form.

† The distinction of Treatises was into the ἀπορομηνίδι, and ἐξαιρέσιδι.

The Rehearsal. See VOL. I. pag. 259. and just above, pag. 277 in the Notes.

† Qui didicit Patriæ quid debeat, et quid Amicis,
Quo fit amore parens, quo frater amandus et hospes, Quod sit Conscripti, quod Judicis officium,——
 —————ille profecto
Reddere personæ scit convenientia cuique.

As for this Species of Morality which distinguishes the Civil Offices of Life, and describes each becoming Personage or Character in this Scene; so necessary it is for the Poet and polite Author to be appriz'd of it, that even the Divine himself may with juster pretence be exempted from the knowledge of this sort. The Composer of religious Discourses has the advantage of that higher Scene of Mystery, which is above the level of human Commerce. 'Tis not so much his Concern, or Business, to be agreeable. And often when he wou'd endeavour it, he becomes more than ordinarily displeasing. His Theater, and that of the polite World, are very different: Infomuch that in a Reverend AUTHOR, or DECLAIMER of this fort, we naturally excuse the Ignorance of ordinary Decorum, in what relates to the Affairs of our inferior temporal World. But for the POET or gentle WRITER, who is of this World merely, 'tis a different Case. He must be perfect in this moral Science. We can easily bear the loss of indifferent POETRY or ESSAY. A good Bargain it were, cou'd we get rid of every moderate Performance in this kind. But were we oblig'd to hear only excellent SERMONS, and to read nothing, in the way of Devotion, which was not well writ; it might possibly go hard with many Christian People, who are at present such attentive Auditors and Readers. Establish'd Pastors have a right to be indifferent. But voluntary Discourses and Attempters in Wit or Poetry, are as intolerable, when they are indifferent, as either Fiddlers or Painters:

* Viz. VOL. I. pag. 207, 208. and 277, 278. and 336, &c. So above, pag. 260. and in the Notes.

† Horat. de Arte Poet. ver. 312, &c.

*—Poterat duci quia Cæna sine istis.

Other BAYS's and Poetasters may be lawfully baited; tho we patiently submit to our BAYS's in Divinity.

Hor. Ars Poet. ver. 376.

HAD the Author of our * Subject-Treatises consider'd thorowly of these literate Affairs, and found how the Interest of Wit stood at present in our Nation, he wou'd have had so much regard surely to his own Interest, as never to have writ unless either in the single Capacity of mere CRITICK, or that of AUTHOR in form. If he had resolv'd never to produce a regular or legitimate Piece, he might pretty safely have writ on still after the rate of his first Volume, and mixt manner. He might have been as critical, as satirical, or as full of Raillery as he had pleas'd. But to come afterwards as a grave Actor upon the Stage, and expose himself to Criticism in his turn, by giving us a Work or two in form, after the regular manner of Composition, as we see in his second Volume; this I think, was no extraordinary Proof of his Judgment or ability, in what related to his own Credit and Advantage.

ONE of these formal Pieces (the INQUIRY already examin'd) we have found to be wholly after the Manner, which in one of his critical Pieces he calls the Methodick. But his next Piece (the MORALISTS, which we have now before us) must, according to his own * Rules, be reckon'd as an Undertaking of greater weight. 'Tis not only at the bottom, as systematical, didactick and preceptive, as that other Piece of formal Structure; but it assumes withal another Garb, and more fashionable Turn of Wit. It conceals what is scholastical, under the appearance of a polite Work. It aspires to Dialogue, and carries with it not only those poetick Features of the Pieces antiently call'd MIMES; but it attempts to unite the several Personages and Characters in ONE Action, or Story, within a determinate Compass of Time, regularly divided, and drawn into different and proportion'd Scenes: And this, too, with variety of STYLE; the simple, comick, rhetorical, and even the poetick or sublime; such as is the aptest to run into Enthusiasm and Extravagance. So much is our Author, by virtue of this Piece †, a POET in due form, and by a more

* Supra, pag. 135, 189.

* VOL. I. pag. 193, &c. and pag. 257.

† That he is conscious of this, we may gather from that Line or two of Advertisement, which stands at the beginning of his first Edition. "As for the Characters, and Incidents, they are neither wholly feign'd (says he) nor wholly true: but according to the Liberty allow'd in the way of DIALOGUE, the principal Matters are founded upon Truth; and the rest as near resembling as may be. 'Tis a Sceptick recites: and the Hero of the Piece passes for an Enthusiast. If a perfect Character be wanting; 'tis the same Case here, as with the Poets in some of the best Pieces. And this surely is a sufficient Warrant for the more apparent claim, than if he had writ a PLAY, or dramatick Piece, in as regular a manner, at least, as any known at present on our Stage.

IT appears, indeed, that as high as our Author, in his critical Capacity, wou'd pretend to carry the refin'd Manner and accurate SIMPLICITY of the Antients; he dares not,

“ the Author of a PHILOSOPHICAL ROMANCE ”——Thus our Author himself; who to conceal, however, his strict Imitation of the antient poetick DIALOGUE, has prefix'd an auxiliary Title to his Work, and given it the Surname of RHAPSODY: As if it were merely of that Essay or mix'd kind of Works, which come abroad with an affected Air of Negligence and Irregularity. But whatever our Author may have affected in his Title-Page, 'twas so little his Intention to write after that Model of incoherent Workmanship, that it appears to be forely against his Will, if this Dialogue-Piece of his has not the just Character, and correct Form of those antient Poems describ'd. He wou'd gladly have constituted ONE single Action and Tune, suitable to the just Simplicity of those Dramatick Works. And this, one wou'd think, was easy enough for him to have done. He needed only to have brought his first Speakers immediately into Action, and sav'd the narrative or recitative Part of PHILOCLES to PALEMEN, by producing them as speaking Personages upon his Stage. The Scene all along might have been the Park. From the early Evening to the late Hour of Night, that the two Galants withdrew to their Town-Apartments, there was sufficient time for the Narrator PHILOCLES, to have recited the whole Transaction of the second and third Part; which wou'd have stood thro'out as it now does: only at the Conclusion, when the narrative or recitative Part had ceas'd, the simple and direct DIALOGUE wou'd have again return'd, to grace the Exit. By this means the temporal as well as local Unity of the Piece had been preserv'd. Nor had our Author been necessitated to commit that Anachronism, of making his first Part, in order, to be last in time.

in his own Model and principal Performance, attempt to unite his Philosophy in one solid and uniform Body, nor carry on his Argument in one continu'd Chain or Thread. Here our Author's Timorousness is visible. In the very Plan or Model of his Work, he is apparently put to a hard shift, to contrive how or with what probability he might introduce Men of any Note or Fashion, * reasoning expressly and purposely, without play or trifling, for two or three hours together, on mere PHILOSOPHY and MORALS. He finds these Subjects (as he confesses) so wide of common Conversation, and, by long Custom, so appropriated to the School, the University-Chair or Pulpit, that he thinks it hardly safe or practicable to treat of them elsewhere, or in a different Tone. He is forc'd therefore to raise particular Machines, and constrain his principal Characters, in order to carry a better Face, and bear himself out, against the appearance of Pedantry. Thus his Gentleman-Philosopher THEOCLES, before he enters into his real Character, becomes a feign'd Preacher. And even when his real Character comes on, he hardly dares stand it out; but to deal the better with his Sceptick-Friend, he falls again to personating, and takes up the Humour of the Poet and En- thuyfast. PALEMÓN the Man of Quality, and who is first introduc'd as Speaker in the Piece, must, for fashion-sake, appear in Love, and under a kind of Melancholy produc'd by some Mis-adventures in the World. How else shou'd he be suppos'd so serious? PHILOCLES his Friend (an airy Gentleman of the World, and a thorow Raillyer) must have a home-Charge upon him. and feel the Anger of his grave Friend before he can be suppos'd grave enough to enter into a philosophical Discourse. A quarter of an hour's reading must serve to represent an hour or two's Debate. And a new Scene presenting it-self, ever and anon, must give Refreshment, it seems, to the faint Reader, and remind him of the Characters and Business going on.

* VOL. I. pag. 202, &c.

'TIS in the same view that we MISCELLANARIAN Authors, being fearful of the natural Lassitude and Satiety of our indolent Reader, have prudently betaken our-selves to the way of Chapters and Contents; that as the Reader proceeds, by frequent Intervals of Repose, contriv'd on purpose for him, he may from time to time be advertis'd of what is yet to come, and be tempted thus to renew his Application.

THUS in our modern Plays we see, almost in every other Leaf, Descriptions or Illustrations tions of the Action, not in the Poem it-self, or in the mouth of the Actors; but by the Poet, in his own Person; in order, as appears, to help out a Defect of the Text, by a kind of marginal Note, or Comment, which renders these Pieces of a mix'd kind between the narrative and dramatick. 'Tis in this fashionable Style, or manner of dumb Shew, that the Reader finds the Action of the Piece more amazingly express'd than he possibly cou'd by the Lines of the Drama it-self; where the Partys alone are suffer'd to be Speakers.

'TIS out of the same regard to Ease, both in respect of Writer and Reader, that we see long Characters and Descriptions at the head of most dramattick Pieces, to inform us of the Relations, Kindred, Interests and Designs of the Dramatis Personæ: This being of the highest importance to the Reader, that he may the better understand the Plot, and find out the principal Characters and Incidents of the Piece; which otherways cou'd not possibly discover themselves, as they are read in their due order. And to do justice to our Play-Readers, they seldom fail to humour our Poets in this respect, and read over the Characters with strict application, as a sort of Grammar, or Key, before they enter on the Piece it-self. I know not whether

whether they wou'd do so much for any philosophical Piece in the world. Our Author seems very much to question it; and has therefore made that part easy enough, which relates to the distinction of his Characters, by making use of the narrative Manner. Tho he had done, as well, perhaps, not to have gone out of the natural plain way, on this account. For with those to whom such philosophical Subjects are agreeable, it cou'd be thought no laborious Task to give the same attention to Characters in Dialogue, as is given at the first entrance by every Reader to the easiest Play, compos'd of fewest and plainest Personages. But for those who read these Subjects with mere Supineness, and Indifference; they will as much begrudge the pains of attending to the Characters thus particularly pointed out, as if they had only been discernible by Inference and Deduction from the mouth of the speaking Partys themselves.

MORE REASONS are given by our * Author himself, for his avoiding the direct way of DIALOGUE; which at present lies so low, and is us'd only now and then, in our Party-Pamphlets, or new-fashion'd theological Essays.

* VOL. II. pag. 187, 188.

For of late it seems, the Manner has been introduc'd into Church-Controversy, with an Attempt of Raillery and Humour, as a more successful Method of dealing with Heresy and Infidelity. The Burlesque-Divinity grows mightily in vogue. And the cry'd-up Answers to heterodox Discourses are generally such as are written in Drollery, or with resemblance of the facetious and humourous Language of Conversation.

JOY to the reverend Authors who can afford to be thus gay, and condescend to correct us, in this Lay-Wit. The Advances they make in behalf of Piety and Manners, by such a popular Style, are doubtless found, upon experience, to be very considerable. As these Reformers are nicely qualify'd to hit the Air of Breeding and Gentility, they will in time, no doubt, refine their Manner, and improve this jocular Method, to the Edification of the polite World; who have been so long seduc'd by the way of Raillery and Wit. They may do wonders by their comick MUSE, and may thus, perhaps, find means to laugh Gentlemen into their Religion, who have unfortunately been laugh'd out of it. For what reason is there to suppose that Orthodoxy shou'd not be able to laugh as agreeably, and with as much Refinedness, as Heresy or Infidelity?

AT present, it must be own'd, the Charaēters, or Personages, employ'd by our new orthodox Dialogists, carry with 'em little Proportion or Coherence; and in this respect may be said to fute perfectly with that figurative metaphorical Style and rhetorical Manner, in which their Logick and Arguments are generally couch'd. Nothing can be more complex or multiform than their moral Draughts or Sketches of Humanity. These, indeed, are so far from representing any particular MAN, or Order of MEN, that they scarce resemble any thing of the Kind. 'Tis by their Names only that these Charaēters are figur'd. Tho' they bear different Titles, and are set up to maintain contrary Points; they are found, at the bottom, to be all of the same side; and, notwithstanding their seeming Variance, to co-operate in the most officious manner with the Author, towards the display of his own proper Wit, and the establishment of his private Opinion and Maxims. They are indeed his very legitimate and obsequious Puppets; as like real Men in Voice, Action, and Manners, as those wooden or wire Engines of the lower Stage. PHILOTHEUS and PHILATHEUS, PHILAUTUS and PHILALETHES are of one and the same Order; Just Tallys to one another: Questioning and Answering in concert, and with such a sort of Alternative as is known in a vulgar Play, where one Person lies down blindfold, and presents himself, as fair as may be, to another, who by favour of the Company, or the assistance of his Good-fortune, deals his Companion many a sound Blow, without being once challeng'd or brought into his Turn of lying down.

THERE is the same curious Mixture of Chance, and elegant Vicissitude, in the Style of these Mock-Perfonages of our new Theological Drama: with this difference only, “ That after the poor Phantom or Shadow of an Adversary has said as little for his Cause as can be imagin'd, and given as many Opens and Advantages as cou'd be desir'd, he lies down for good and all, and passively submits to the killing Strokes of his unmerciful Conqueror.”

HARDLY, as I conceive, will it be objected to our MORALIST (the Author of the philosophick Dialogue above) “ That the Perfonages who sustain the sceptical or objecting Parts, are over tame and tractable in their Disposition.” Did I perceive any such foul Dealing in his Piece; I shou'd scarce think it worthy of the Criticism here bestow'd. For in this sort of Writing, where Perfonages are exhibited, and natural tural Conversation set in view; if Characters are neither tolerably preserv'd, nor Manners with any just Similitude describ'd; there remains nothing but what is too gross and monstrous for Criticism or Examination.

'TWILL be alledg'd, perhaps, in answer to what is here advanc'd, "That shou'd A DIALOGUE be wrought up to the Exactness of these Rules; it ought to be condemn'd, as the worse Piece, for affording the Infidel or Sceptick such good Quarter, and giving him the full advantage of his Argument and Wit."

BUT to this I reply, That either DIALOGUE shou'd never be attempted; or, if it be, the Partys shou'd appear natural, and such as they really are. If we paint at all; we shou'd endeavour to paint like Life, and draw Creatures as they are knowable, in their proper Shapes and better Features; not in Metamorphosis, not mangled, lame, distorted, aukard Forms, and impotent Chimeras. Atheists have their Sense and Wits, as other Men; or why is ATHEISM so often challeng'd in those of the better Rank? Why charg'd so often to the account of Wit and subtle Reasoning?

WERE I to advise these Authors, towards whom I am extremely well-affected on account of their good humour'd Zeal, and the seeming Sociableness of their Religion; I shou'd say to 'em, " Gentlemen! Be not so cautious of furnishing your representative SCEPTICK with " too good Arguments, or too shreud a Turn of " Wit or Humour. Be not so fearful of giving " quarter. Allow your Adversary his full Reason, his Ingenuity, Sense, and Art. Trust " to the chief Character or HERO of your Piece. " Make him as dazling bright, as you are able. " He will undoubtedly overcome the utmost " Force of his Opponent, and dispel the Darkness or Cloud, which the Adversary may " unluckily have rais'd. But if when you have " fairly wrought up your Antagonist to his due " Strength and cognizable Proportion, your chief Character cannot afterwards prove a match " for him, or shine with a superior Brightness; " Whose Fault is it?—The Subjects?—This, I " hope, you will never allow.—Whose, therefore, beside your own?—Beware then; and " consider well your Strength and Mastership " in this manner of Writing, and in the qualifying Practice of the polite World, ere you " attempt these accurate and refin'd Limnings " or Portraitures of Mankind, or offer to bring “ Gentlemen on the Stage. For if real Gentlemen “ feduc’d, as you pretend, and made erroneous

 “ in their Religion or Philosophy, discover not “ the least Feature of their real Faces in your “ Looking-glass, nor know themselves, in the “ least, by your Description; they will hardly “ be apt to think they are refuted. How wit“ tily soever your Comedy may be wrought “ up, they will scarce apprehend any of that “ Wit to fall upon themselves. They may laugh “ indeed at the Diversion you are pleas’d to give “ em: But the Laugh perhaps may be different “ from what you intend. They may smile se“ cretly to see themselves thus encounter’d;
 “ when they find, at last, your Authority laid “ by, and your scholastick Weapons quitted, in “ favour of this weak Attempt, To master them by “ their own Arms, and proper Ability.”

THUS WE have perform’d our critical Task, and try’d our Strength, both on our Author, and those of his Order, who attempt to write in Dialogue, after the active dramattick, * mimi- cal or personating Way; according to which a Writer is properly poetical.

WHAT remains, we shall examine in our succeeding and last Chapter.

* See VOL. I. pag. 193, &c.

C H A P. III.

Of Extent or Latitude of Thought,---Free-Thinkers.---Their Cause, and Character.---Dishonesty, a Half-Thought.---Short-Thinking, Cause of Vice and Bigotry.---Agreement of Slavery and Superstition.---LIBERTY, civil, moral, spiritual.---Free-thinking Divines.---Representatives incognito.---Embassadors from the Moon.---Effectual Determination of Christian Controversy and Religious Belief.

BEING now come to the Conclusion of my Work; after having defended the Cause of Criticks in general, and employ'd what Strength I had in that Science upon our adventurous Author in particular; I may, according to Equity, and with the better grace, attempt a line or two, in defence of that Freedom of Thought which our Author has us'd, particularly in one of the Personages of his last Dialogue-Treatise.

THERE is good reason to suppose, that however equally fram'd, or near alike the Race of Mankind may appear, in other respects, they are not always equal Thinkers, or of a like Ability in the Management of this natural Talent which we call THOUGHT. The Race, on this account, may therefore justly be distinguish'd, as they often are, by the Appellation of the Thinking, and the Unthinking sort. The mere Unthinking are such as have not yet arriv'd to that happy Thought by which they shou'd observe, "How necessary Thinking is, and how "fatal the want of it must prove to 'em." The Thinking part of Mankind, on the other side, having discover'd the Assiduity and Industry requisite to right-Thinking, and being already commenc'd THINKERS upon this Foundation; are, in the progress of the Affair, convinc'd of the necessity of thinking to good purpose, and carrying the Work to a thorow Issue. They know that if they refrain or stop once, upon this Road, they had done as well never to have set out. They are not so supine as to be with-held by mere Laziness; when nothing lies in the way to interrupt the free Course and Progress of their Thought.

SOME Obstacles, 'tis true, may, on this occasion, be pretended. Speēlers may come a-crofs; and and Shadows of Reason rise up against REASON it-self. But if Men have once heartily espous'd the reasoning or thinking Habit; they will not easily be induc'd to lay the Practice down; they will not at an instant be arrested, or made to stand, and yield themselves, when they come to such a certain Boundary, Land-Mark, Post, or Pillar, erected here or there (for what reason may probably be guess'd) with the Inscription of a Ne plus ultra.

'Tis not, indeed, any Authority on Earth, as we are well assur'd, can stop us on this Road, unless we please to make the Arrest, or Restriction, of our own accord. 'Tis our own Thought which must restrain our Thinking. And whether the restraining Thought be just, how shall we ever judge, without examining it freely, and out of all constraint? How shall we be sure that we have justly quitted REASON, as too high and dangerous, too aspiring or presumptive; if thro' Fear of any kind, or submitting to mere Command, we quit our very examining Thought, and in the moment stop short, so as to put an end to further Thinking on the matter? Is there much difference between this Case, and that of the obedient Beasts of Burden, who stop precisely at their appointed Inn, or at whatever Point the Charioteer, or Governour of the Reins, thinks fit to give the signal for a Halt?

I CANNOT but from hence conclude, That of all Species of Creatures said commonly to have Brains; the most insipid, wretched and preposterous are those, whom in just Propriety of Speech, we call Half-thinkers.

I HAVE often known Pretenders to Wit break out into admiration, on the sight of some raw, heedless, unthinking Gentleman; declaring on this occasion, That they esteem'd it the happiest Case in the World, "Never to " think, or trouble one's Head with Study or " Consideration." This I have always look'd upon as one of the highest Airs of Distinction, which the self-admiring Wits are us'd to give themselves, in publick Company. Now the Echo or Antiphony which these elegant Exclaimers hope, by this Reflection, to draw necessarily from their Audience, is, "That they " themselves are over-freighted with this Merchandize of THOUGHT; and have not only enough for Ballest, but such a Cargo over " and above, as enough to sink 'em by its " Weight." I am apt however to imagine of these Gentlemen, That it was never their over-thinking which oppress'd them, and that if their Thought had ever really become oppressive to
'em

'em, they might thank themselves, for having under-thought, or reason'd short, so as to rest satisfy'd with a very superficial Search into Matters of the first and highest Importance.

IF, for example, they over-look'd the chief Enjoyments of Life, which are founded in Honesty and a good Mind; if they presum'd mere Life to be fully worth what its tenacious Lovers are pleas'd to rate it at; if they thought publick Distinction, Fame, Power, an Estate, or Title to be of the same value as is vulgarly conceiv'd, or as they concluded, on a first Thought, without further Scepticism or Aster-Deliberation; 'tis no wonder, if being in time become such mature Dogmatists, and well-practis'd Dealers in the Affairs of what they call a Settlement or Fortune, they are so hardly put to it, to find ease or rest within themselves.

THESE are the deeply-loaded and over-pensive Gentlemen, who esteeming it the truest Wit to pursue what they call their Interest, wonder to find they are still as little at ease when they have succeeded, as when they first attempted to advance.

THERE can never be less Self-enjoyment than in these suppos'd wise Characters, these selfish Computers of Happiness and private Good; whose whose Pursuits of Interest, whether for this World or another, are attended with the same steddly Vein of cunning and low Thought, fordid Deliberations, perverse and crooked Fancys, ill Dispositions, and false Relishes of Life and Manners. The most negligent undesigning thoughtless Rake has not only more of Sociableness, Ease, Tranquillity, and Freedom from worldly Cares, but in reality more of Worth, Virtue, and Merit, than such grave Plodders, and thoughtful Gentlemen as these.

IF it happens, therefore, that these graver, more circumspect, and deeply interested Gentlemen, have, for their Soul's sake, and thro' a careful Provision for Hereafter, engag'd in certain Speculations of RELIGION; their Taste of VIRTUE, and Relish of LIFE is not the more improv'd, on this account. The Thoughts they have on these new Subjects of Divinity are so bias'd, and perplex'd, by those Half-Thoughts and raw Imaginations of Interest, and worldly Affairs; that they are still disabled in the rational Pursuit of Happiness and Good: And being necessitated thus to remain Short-Thinkers, they have the Power to go no further than they are led by those to whom, under such Disturbances and Perplexitys, they apply themselves for Cure and Comfort.

IT HAS been the main Scope and principal End of these Volumes. “ To assert the Reality of a BEAUTY and CHARM in moral as well as natural Subjects; and to demonstrate the Reasonableness of a proportionate TASTE, and determinate CHOICE, in Life and Manners.” The STANDARD of this kind, and the noted Character of Moral TRUTH appear so firmly establish’d in Nature it-self, and so widely display’d thro’ the intelligent World, that there is no Genius, Mind, or thinking Principle, which (if I may say so) is not really conscious in the case. Even the most refractory and obstinate Understandings are by certain Reprises or Returns of Thought, on every occasion, convinc’d of this Existence, and necessitated, in common with others, to acknowledge the actual RIGHT and WRONG.

’TIS evident that whensoever the Mind, influenc’d by Passion or Humour, consents to any Action, Measure, or Rule of Life contrary to this governing STANDARD and primary MEASURE of Intelligence, it can only be thro’ a weak Thought, a Scantiness of Judgment, and a Defect in the application of that unavoidable Impression and first natural Rule of Honesty and Worth; against which, whatever is advanc’d vanc'd, will be of no other moment than to render a Life distracted, incoherent, full of Irresolution, Repentance, and Self-disapprobation.

THUS every Immorality and Enormity of Life can only happen from a partial and narrow View of Happiness and Good. Whatever takes from the Largeness or Freedom of Thought, must of necessity detract from that first Relish or TASTE, on which Virtue and Worth depend.

FOR instance, when the Eye or Appetite is eagerly fix'd on Treasure, and the money'd Blifs of Bags and Coffers; 'tis plain there is a kind of Fascination in the case. The sight is instantly diverted from other Views of Excellence or Worth. And here, even the Vulgar, as well as the more liberal part of Mankind, discover the contracted Genius, and acknowledge the Narrowness of such a Mind.

IN Luxury and Intemperance we easily apprehend how far Thought is oppress'd, and the Mind debar'd from just Reflection, and from the free Examination and Censure of its own Opinions or Maxims, on which the Conduct of a Life is form'd.

EVEN in that complicated Good of vulgar kind, which we commonly call INTEREST,
in

in which we comprehend both Pleasure, Riches, Power, and other exterior Advantages; we may discern how a fascinated Sight contracts a Genius, and by shortning the View even of that very Interest which it seeks, betrays the KNAVE, and necessitates the ablest and wittiest Profelyte of the kind, to expose himself on every Emergency and sudden Turn.

BUT above all other enslaving Vices, and Restrainers of Reason and just Thought, the most evidently ruinous and fatal to the Understanding is that of SUPERSTITION, BIGOTRY and vulgar ENTHUSIASM. This Passion, not contented like other Vices to deceive, and tacitly supplant our Reason, professes open War, holds up the intended Chains and Fetters, and declares its Resolution to enslave.

THE artificial Managers of this human Frailty declaim against Free-Thought, and Latitude of Understanding. To go beyond those Bounds of thinking which they have prescrib'd, is by them declar'd a Sacrilege. To them, FREEDOM of Mind, a MASTERY of Sense, and a LIBERTY in Thought and Action, imply Debauch, Corruption, and Depravity.

IN consequence of their moral Maxims, and political Establishments, they can indeed advance vance no better Notion of human Happiness and Enjoyment, than that which is in every respect the most opposite to Liberty. 'Tis to them doubtless that we owe the Opprobriousness and Abuse of those naturally honest Appellations of Free-Livers, Free-Thinkers, Latitudinarians, or whatever other Character implies a Largeness of Mind, and generous Use of Understanding. Fain wou'd they confound Licentiousness in Morals, with Liberty in Thought and Action; and make the Libertine, who has the least Mastery of himself, resemble his direct Opposite. For such indeed is the Man of resolute Purpose and immovable Adherence to REASON, against every thing which Passion, Prepossession, Craft, or Fashion can advance in favour of ought else. But here, it seems, the Grievance lies. 'Tis thought dangerous for us to be over-rational, or too much Masters of our-selves, in what we draw, by just Conclusions, from Reason only. Seldom therefore do these Expositors fail of bringing the Thought of LIBERTY into disgrace. Even at the expence of Virtue, and of that very Idea of GOODNESS on which they build the Mysteries of their profitable Science, they derogate from Morals, and reverse all true Philosophy; they refine on Selfishness, and explode Generosity; promote a slavish Obedience in the room of voluntary Duty, and free Service; exalt blind

Ignorance

*Ignorance for Devotion, recommend low Thought, decry Reason, extol * Voluptuousness, Wilfulness, Vindicativeness, Arbitrariness, Vain-Glory; and even † deify those weak Passions which are the Disgrace rather than Ornament of human Nature.*

BUT so far it is from the Nature of ‡ LIBERTY to indulge such Passions as these, that whoever acts at any time under the power of any single-one, may be said to have already provided for himself an absolute Master, And he who lives under the power of a whole Race (since 'tis scarce possible to obey one without the other) must of necessity undergo the worst of Servitudes, under the most capricious and domineering Lords.

THAT this is no Paradox, even the Writers for Entertainment can inform us; however others may moralize who discourse or write (as they pretend) for Profit and Instruction. The POETS even of the wanton sort, give ample Testimony of this Slavery and Wretchedness of Vice. They may extol Voluptuousness to the Skys, and point their Wit as sharply as they are able against a virtuous State. But

* VOL. II. pag. 256. And below, pag. 310.

† VOL. I. pag. 38.

‡ VOL. II. pag. 252, 432.

when they come afterwards to pay the necessary Tribute to their commanding Pleasures; we hear their pathetick Moans, and find the inward Discord and Calamity of their Lives. Their example is the best of Precepts; since they conceal nothing, are sincere, and speak their Passion out aloud. And 'tis in this that the very worst of Poets may justly be prefer'd to the generality of modern Philosophers, or other formal Writers of a yet more specious name. The MUSES Pupils never fail to express their Passions, and write just as they feel. 'Tis not, indeed, in their nature to do otherwise; whilst they indulge their Vein, and are under the power of that natural Enthusiasm which leads 'em to what is highest in their Performance. They follow Nature. They move chiefly as she moves in 'em; without Thought of disguising her free Motions, and genuine Operations, for the sake of any Scheme or Hypothesis, which they have form'd at leisure, and in particular narrow Views. On this account, tho at one time they quarrel perhaps with VIRTUE, for restraining 'em in their forbidden Loves, they can at another time make her sufficient amends; when with indignation they complain, "That " MERIT is neglected, and their * worthless
 " Rival prefer'd before them."

* VOL. I. pag. 141.

* Contrane lucrum nil valere candidum Pãuperis ingenium?

And thus even in common Elegiack, in Song, Ode, or Epigram, consecrated to Pleasure itself, we may often read the dolorous Confession in behalf of Virtue, and see, at the bottom, how the Case stands :

Nam veræ Voces tum demum pœlore ab imo Eliciuntur.

The airy Poets, in these Fits, can, as freely as the Tragedian, condole with VIRTUE, and bemoan the case of suffering MERIT ;

Th' Oppressor's Wrong, the proud Man's Contumely,
The Insolence of Office, and the Spurns
That patient MERIT of th' Unworthy takes.

THE Poetick Chiefs may give what reason they think fit for their Humour of representing our mad Appetites (especially that of LOVE) under the shape of Urchins and wanton Boys, scarce out of their State of Infancy. The original Design, and Moral of this Fiction, I am persuaded, was to shew us, how little there was of great and heroick in the Government of these Pretenders, how truly weak and childish they were in themselves, and how much lower than mere Children we then became, when we submitted our-selves to their blind Tutorage. There was no fear left in this Fiction the boyish Nature shou'd be misconstru'd as innocent and gentle. The Storms of Passion, so well known in every kind, kept the tyrannick Quality of this wanton Race sufficiently in view. Nor cou'd the poetical Description fail to bring to mind their mischievous and malignant Play. But when the Image of imperious Threatning, and absolute Command, was joined to that of Ignorance, Puerility and Folly; the Notion was compleated, of that wretched slavish State, which modern Libertines, in conjunction with some of a graver Character, admire, and represent, as the most eligible of any. — “Happy Condition! (says one) “Happy Life, that of the indulg'd PASSIONS; “might we pursue it! — Miserable Condition! Miserable Life, that of REASON and VIRTUE, which we are *bid pursue!”

* HERRAT. Epod. 11.

'TIS the same, it seems, with Men, in Morals, as in Politicks. When they have been unhappily born and bred to SLAVERY, they are so far from being sensible of their slavish Course of Life, or of that ill Usage, Indignity and

* VOL. II. pag. 256.

Misery they sustain; that they even admire their own Condition: and being us'd to think short, and carry their Views no further than those Bounds which were early prescrib'd to 'em; they look upon TYRANNY as a natural Case, and think Mankind in a sort of dangerous and degenerate State, when under the power of Laws, and in the possession of a free Government.

WE may by these Reflections come easily to apprehend What Men they were who first brought Reason and Free-Thought under disgrace, and made the noblest of Characters (that of a Free-Thinker) to become invidious. 'Tis no wonder if the same Interpreters wou'd have those also to be esteem'd free in their Lives, and Masters of good Living, who are the least Masters of themselves, and the most impotent in Passion and Humour, of all their Fellow-Creatures. But far be it, and far surely will it ever be, from any worthy Genius, to be consenting to such a treacherous Language, and Abuse of Words. For my own part, I thorowly confide in the good Powers of REASON, "That LIBERTY and FREEDOM shall " never, by any Artifice or Delusion, be made " to pass with me as frightful Sounds, or as
 " reproachful, or invidious, in any sense."

I CAN no more allow that to be Free-living, where unlimited Passion, and unexamin'd Fancy govern, than I can allow that to be a Free Government where the mere People govern, and not the LAWS. For no People in a Civil State can possibly be free, when they are otherwise govern'd than by such Laws as they themselves have constituted, or to which they have freely given consent. Now to be releas'd from these, so as to govern themselves by each Day's Will or Fancy, and to vary on every Turn the Rule and Measure of Government, without respect to any antient Constitutions or Establishments, or to the stated and fix'd Rules of Equity and Justice; is as certain Slavery, as it is Violence, Distraction and Misery; such as in the Issue must prove the Establishment of an irretrievable State of Tyranny and absolute Dominion.

IN the Determinations of Life, and in the Choice and Government of Actions, he alone is free who has within himself no Hinderance, or Controul, in acting what he himself, by his best Judgment, and most deliberate Choice, approves. Could VICE agree possibly with it-self; or could the vicious any way reconcile the various Judgments of their inward Counsellors; they might with Justice perhaps assert their Liberty and Independency. But whilst they are neces-

necessitated to follow least, what, in their sedate hours, they most approve; whilst they are passively assign'd, and made over from one Possessor to * another, in contrary Extremes, and to different Ends and Purposes, of which they are themselves wholly ignorant; 'tis evident That the more they turn † their Eyes (as many times they are oblig'd) towards Virtue and a free Life, the more they must confess their Misery and Subjection. They discern their own Captivity, but not with Force and Resolution sufficient to redeem themselves, and become their own. Such is the real Tragick State, as the old ‡ Tragedian represents it :

—Video meliora proboque.
Deteriora sequor.

And thus the highest Spirits, and most refractory Wills, contribute to the lowest Servitude and most submissive State. Reason and Virtue alone can bestow LIBERTY. Vice is unworthy,

* Hucine an hunc sequeris? Subeas alterius oportet
Accipiti obsequio Dominos.———Perf. Sat. 5.

See V O I. l. pag. 285, 309, 323, &c.

† Magne Pater divum, sævos punire Tyrannos
Haud alia ratione velis, cum dira libido
Moverit ingenium ferventi tinella veneno,
Virtutem videant, instabescantque relicta.

Perf. Sat. 3.

‡ Καὶ μάθάνω μὴ διαπομπῶσιν κακῶ. θυμὸς δὲ κρείσσον τῶν ἐμῶν ἑλευνημα-
 7-9.

Eurip. Med. Act. 4.

and unhappy, on this account only, "That
" it is slavish and debasing."

THUS HAVE we pleaded the Cause of LIBERTY in general; and vindicated, withal, our Author's particular Freedom, in taking the Person of a Sceptick, as he has done in this *last Treatise, on which we have so largely paraphras'd. We may now perhaps, in compliance with general Custom, justly presume to add something in defence of the same kind of Freedom we our-selves have assum'd in these latter Miscellaneous Comments; since it wou'd doubtless be very unreasonable and unjust, for those who had so freely play'd the Critick, to expect any thing less than the same free Treatment, and thorow Criticism in return.

As for the STYLE or Language us'd in these Comments; 'tis very different we find; and varies in proportion with the Author commented, and with the different Charaēters and Persons frequently introduc'd in the original Treatises. So that there will undoubtedly be Scope sufficient for Censure and Correction.

As for the Observations on ANTIQUITY;

* Viz. THE MORALISTS, or Philosophick Dialogue, recited in the Person of a Sceptick, under the name of PHILOCTES. See Treatise V. VOL. II. pag. 206, 207, &c.

we have in most Passages, except the very common and obvious, produc'd our Vouchers and Authoritys in our own behalf. What may be thought of our Judgment or Sense in the Application of these Authoritys, and in the Deductions and Reasonings we have form'd from such learned Topicks, must be submitted to the Opinion of the Wise and Learned.

IN MORALS, of which the very force lies in a love of Discipline, and in a willingness to redress and rectify false Thought, and erring Views; we cannot but patiently wait Redress and amicable Censure from the sole competent Judges, the Wise and Good; whose Interest it has been our whole Endeavour to advance.

THE only Subject on which we are perfectly secure, and without fear of any just Censure or Reproach, is that of FAITH, and Orthodox BELIEF. For in the first place, it will appear, that thro' a profound Respect, and religious Veneration, we have forborn so much as to name any of the sacred and solemn Mysteries of * Revelation. And, in the next place, as we can with confidence declare, that we have never in any Writing, publick or private, attempted such high Researches, nor have ever in Practice acquitted our-selves otherwise than as just Con- formists to the lawful Church; so we may, in a proper Sense, be said faithfully and dutifully to embrace those holy Mysteris, even in their minutest Particulars, and without the least Exception on account of their amazing Depth. And tho we are sensible that it wou'd be no small hardship to deprive others of a liberty of examining and searching, with due Modesty and Submission, into the nature of those Subjects; yet as for our-selves, who have not the least scruple whatsoever, we pray not any such Grace or Favour in our behalf: being fully assur'd of our own steddy Orthodoxy, Resignation, and intire Submission to the truly Christian and Catholic Doctrines of our Holy Church, as by Law establiſh'd.

* Supra, pag. 70, 71.

'TIS true, indeed, that as to * CRITICAL Learning, and Examination of Originals, Texts, Glosses, various Readings, Styles, Compositions, Manuscripts, Complements, Editions, Publications, and other Circumstances, such as are common to the Sacred Books with all other Writings and Literature; this we have confidently asserted to be a just and lawful Study. We have even represented this Species of Criticism as necessary to the Preservation and Purity of Scripture: that Sacred Scripture, which has been so miraculouſly preserv'd in its ſucceſſive Copys and Transcriptions, under the Eye (as we must needs suppose) of holy and learned Criticks, thro' so many dark Ages of Christianity, to these latter times; in which Learning has been happily reviv'd.

* VOL. I. pag. 146, 147.

BUT if this critical Liberty raises any jealousy against us, we shall beg leave of our offended Reader to lay before him our Case, at the very worst: That if on such a naked Exposition, it be found criminal, we may be absolutely condemn'd; if otherwise, acquitted, and with the same favour indulg'd, as others in the same Circumstances, have been before us.

ON this occasion therefore, we may be allow'd to borrow something from the Form or Manner of our Dialogue Author, and represent a Conversation of the same free nature as that recited by him in his * Night-Scene; where the suppos'd SCEPTICK or Free-Thinker delivers his Thoughts, and reigns in the Discourse.

'T WAS IN a more considerable Company, and before a more numerous Audience, that not long since, a Gentleman of some Rank, (one who was generally esteem'd to carry a sufficient Caution and Reserve in religious Subjects of Discourse, as well as an apparent Deference to Religion, and in particular to the national and establish'd Church) having been provok'd by an impertinent Attack of a certain violent bigotted Party, was drawn into an open and free Vindication not only of Free-Thinking, but Free-Professing, and Discoursing, in Matters relating to Religion and Faith.

* VOL. II. pag. 321, 2, 3, 4, &c.

SOME of the Company, it seems, after having made bold with him, as to what they fancy'd to be his Principle, began to urge "The " Necessity of reducing Men to one Profession
" and Belief." And several Gentlemen, even of those who pass'd for moderate in their way, seem'd so far to give into this Zealot-Opinion as to agree, " That notwithstanding the right
" Method was not yet found, 'twas highly re" quisite that some way should be thought on,
" to reconcile Differences in Opinion; since
" so long as this Variety shou'd last, RELIGI-" ON, they thought, cou'd never be successful" ly advanc'd."

To this our Gentleman, at first, answer'd coldly, That " What was impossible to be done,
" cou'd not, he thought, be properly pursu'd,
" as necessary to be done." But the Raillery being ill taken, he was forc'd at last to defend himself the best he cou'd, upon this Point; "That
Variety

“ Variety of Opinion was not to be cur’d.” And “ That ’twas impossible All shou’d be of one “ Mind.”

I WELL know, said he, “ That many pi“ ous Men, seeing the Inconveniencies which
 “ the Dis-union of Persuasions and Opinions “ accidentally produces, have thought them“ selves oblig’d to stop this Inundation of “ Mischiefs, and have made Attempts accord“ ingly. Some have endeavour’d to unite
 “ these Fractions by propounding such a “ GUIDE, as they were all bound to follow; “ hoping that the Unity of a Guide, wou’d have “ produc’d Unity of Minds. But who this “ GUIDE shou’d be, after all, became such a “ Question, that ’twas made part of that Fire
 “ it-self which was to be extinguish’d. Others “ thought of a RULE.—This was to be the “ effectual Means of Union! This was to do
 “ the Work, or nothing cou’d!—But sup“ posing all the World had been agreed on this “ RULE, yet the Interpretation of it was so full “ of variety, that this also became part of the “ Disease.”

THE Company, upon this Preamble of our Gentleman, press’d harder upon him, than before; objecting the Authority of Holy Scripture against him, and affirming this to be of itself self a sufficient Guide and Rule. They urg'd again and again that known Saying of a fam'd Controversial Divine of our Church against the Divines of another, "That the Scripture, "the Scripture was the Religion of Protestants."

To this our Gentleman, at first, reply'd only, by desiring them to explain their word SCRIPTURE, and by inquiring into the Original of this Collection of antienter and later Tracts, which in general they comprehended under that Title: Whether it were the apocryphal SCRIPTURE, or the more canonical? The full or the half-authoriz'd? The doubtful, or the certain? The controverted, or uncontroverted? The singly-read, or that of various Reading? The Text of these Manuscripts, or of those? The Transcripts, Copys, Titles, Catalogues of this Church and Nation, or of that other? of this Sect and Party, or of another? of those in one Age call'd ORTHODOX, and in possession of Power, or of those who in another overthrew their Predecessors Authority, and in their turn also assum'd the Guardianship and Power of holy Things? For how these sacred Records were guarded in those Ages, might easily (he said) be imagin'd by any one who had the least Insight into the History of those TIMES which we call'd primitive, and those CHARACTERS of Men, whom we styl'd FATHERS of the Church.

we

“ IT must be confess'd (continu'd he) 'twas
 “ a strange Industry and unlucky Diligence “ which was us'd, in this respect, by these “ Ecclesiastical Fore-FATHERS. Of all those “ Heresys which gave them Imployment, we “ have absolutely no Record, or Monument.
 “ but what themselves who were Adversarys “ have transmitted to us; and we know that “ Adversarys, especially such who observe all “ Opportunitys to discredit both the Persons
 “ and Doctrines of their Enemy. are not al“ ways the best Recorders or Witnessess of such “ Transactions.” We see it (continu'd he, in a very emphatical, but somewhat embarass'd Style) “ We see it now in this very Age, in
 “ the present Distemperatures, that Partys are “ no good Registers of the Actions of the ad“ verse Side: And if we cannot be confident
 “ of the Truth of a Story now, (now, I say,
 “ that it is possible for any Man, especially for the “ interested Adversary, to discover the Impos“ ture) it is far more unlikely, that After-Ages “ shou'd know any other Truth than such as “ serves the ends of the Representers.”

OUR Gentleman by these Expressions had already given considerable Offence to his Zealot-Auditors. They ply'd him faster with passionate Reproaches, than with Arguments or rational Answers. This, however, serv'd only to animate him the more, and made him proceed the more boldly, with the same assum'd Formality, and air of Declamation, in his general CRITICISM of Holy Literature.

“ THERE are, said he, innumerable Places
 “ that contain (no doubt) great Mysterys, but
 “ so wrap'd in Clouds, or hid in Umbrages,
 “ so heighten'd with Expressions, or so cover'd
 “ with Allegorys and Garments of Rhetorick;
 “ so profound in the matter, or so alter'd and “ made intricate in the manner; that they “ may seem to have been left as Trials of our “ Industry, and as Occasions and Opportunitys
 “ for the exercise of mutual Charity and To“ leration, rather than as the Repositorys of “ FAITH, and Furniture of Creeds. For when “ there are found in the Explications of “ these Writings, so many Commentarys; so “ many Senses and Interpretations; so many “ Volumes in all Ages, and all like Men's “ Faces, no one exactly like another: either
 “ this Difference is absolutely no fault at all;
 “ or if it be, it is excusable. There are, be“ sides,

“ fides, fo many thousands of Copys that were “ writ by Perfons of feveral Interests and Per- “ fuafions, fuch different Underftandings and “ Tempers, fuch diftinct Abilitys and Weak“ nesses, that ’tis no wonder there is fo great “ variety of Readings:——whole Verfes in one,
 “ that are not in another:——whole Books
 “ admitted by one Church or Communion, “ which are rejected by another: and whole “ Storys and Relations admitted by some Fa“ thers, and rejected by others.—I confider “ withal, that there have been many Designs
 “ and Views in expounding thefe Writings:
 “ many Senses in which they are expounded;
 “ and when the Grammatical Sense is found out,
 “ we are many times never the nearer. Now
 “ there being fuch variety of Senses in Scrip“ ture, and but few Places fo mark’d out, as “ not to be capable of more than one; if “ Men will write Commentarys by Fancy,
 “ what infallible Criterion will be left to judge “ of the certain Sense of fuch Places as have “ been the matter of Question? I confider
 “ again, that there are indeed divers Places
 “ in thefe facred Volumes, containing in them
 “ Myfterys; and Questions of great Concern-“ ment; yet fuch is the Fabrick and Confi- “ tution of the Whole, that there is no cer“ tain Mark to determine whether the Sense
 “ of thefe Passages fhould be taken as literal
 “ or

“ or figurative. There is nothing in the na“ ture of the thing to determine the Sense or “ Meaning: but it must be gotten out as it “ can. And therefore ’tis unreasonably re“ quir’d, That what is of it-self ambiguous, “ shou’d be understood in its own prime Sense
 “ and Intention, under the pain of either a “ Sin, or an Anathema. Very wise Men, even “ the antient Fathers, have expounded things “ allegorically, when they shou’d have expound“ ed them literally. Others expound things “ literally, when they shou’d understand them
 “ in Allegory. If such great Spirits cou’d be “ deceiv’d in finding out what kind of Senses
 “ were to be given to Scriptures, it may well
 “ be endur’d that we, who sit at their Feet, “ shou’d be subject at least to equal Failure.
 “ If we follow any ONE Translation, or any “ ONE Man’s Commentary, what Rule or Direc“ tion shall we have, by which to chuse that “ ONE aright? Or is there any one Man, that “ hath translated perfectly, or expounded infal- “ libly? If we resolve to follow any one as far “ only as we like, or fancy; we shall then “ only do wrong or right by Chance. If we “ resolve absolutely to follow any-one, whither-“ soever he leads, we shall probably come at “ last, where, if we have any Eyes left, we “ shall see our-selves become sufficiently ridi“ culous.”

you; however it may happen, that, in your great Wisdom, you think it proper to conceal these Matters from such Persons as you are pleas'd to style the Vulgar.

'Tis true, withal, Gentlemen! (continu'd he) I will confes to you, That the words you have heard repeated, are not my own. They are no other than what have been publickly and solemnly deliver'd, even by * one of the Episcopal Order, a celebrated Churchman, and one of the highest fort; as appears by his many de-

* The pious and learned Bishop TAYLOR, in his Treatise on the Liberty of Prophefying, printed in his Collection of Polemical and Moral Discourses, Anno 1657. The Pages answering to the Places above-cited are 401, 402, (and in the Epistle-Dedicatory, three or four leaves before) 438, 439—444, 451, 452. After which in the succeeding Page, he sums up his Sense on this Subject of sacred Literature, and the Liberty of Criticism, and of private Judgment and Opinion in these Matters, in the following words: " Since there are so many Copys, with " infinite Varietys of Reading; since a various Interpunction, a Paren-
 " thesis, a Letter, an Accent may much alter the Sense; since some Places
 " have divers literal Senses, many have spiritual, mystical, and allego-
 " rical Meanings; since there are so many Tropes, Metonymys, Ironys,
 " Hyperboles, Proprietys and Improrietys of Language, whose un" derstanding depends upon such Circumstances, that it is almost im" possible to know the proper Interpretation, now that the knowledge
 " of such Circumstances and particular Storys is irrecoverably lost: since
 " there are some Myfterys, which at the best Advantage of Expression,
 " are not easy to be apprehended, and whose Explication, by reason of " our Imperfections, must needs be dark, sometimes weak, sometimes un-
 " intelligible: And lastly, since those ordinary means of expounding
 " Scripture, as searching the Originals, Conference of Places, Parity
 " of Reason, and Analogy of Faith, are all dubious, uncertain, and devotional Works, which carry the Rites, Ceremonys and Pomp of Worship, with the Honour and Dignity of the Priestly and Episcopal Order, to the highest Degree. In effect, we see the Reverend Doctor's Treatises standing, as it were, in the Front of this Order of Authors, and as the foremost of those Good-Books us'd by the politest and most refin'd De-

“ very fallible: he that is the wisest, and by consequence the likeliest
 “ to expound truest, in all probability of Reason, will be very far from “ Confidence; because every one of these, and many more, are like so “ many degrees of Improbability and Incertainty, all depressing our “ Certainty of finding out Truth, in such Mysterys, and amidst so many “ Difficultys. And therefore a wise Man that considers this, wou'd not “ willingly be preferib'd to by others; for it is best every Man shou'd
 “ be left in that liberty, from which no Man can justly take him, un“ less he cou'd secure him from Error.” The Reverend Prelate had but a few Pages before (viz. pag. 427,) acknowledg'd, indeed, “ That we had an Apostolical Warrant to contend earnestly for the Faith.
 “ But then,” (says the good Bishop, very candidly and ingenuously)
 “ As these Things recede farther from the Foundation, our Certainty “ is the less.———And therefore it were very fit that our Confidence “ shou'd be according to our Evidence, and our Zeal according to our “ Confidence.” He adds, pag. 507. “ All these Disputes con“ cerning Tradition, Councils, Fathers, &c. are not Arguments against or “ besides Reason, but Contestations and Pretences of the best Arguments, “ and the most certain Satisfaction of our Reason. But then all these “ coming into question, submit themselves to Reason, that is, to be “ judg'd by human Understanding, upon the best Grounds and Informa“ tion it can receive. So that Scripture, Tradition, Councils and “ Fathers, are the Evidence in a Question, but Reason is the Judge:
 “ That is, we being the Persons that are to be persuaded, we must see “ that we be persuaded reasonably; and it is unreasonable to assent to “ a lesser Evidence, when a greater and clearer is propounded: but of “ that every Man for himself is to take cognizance, if he be able to “ judge; if he be not, he is not bound under the tye of necessity to “ know any thing of it.”

votes of either Sex. They maintain the principal Place in the Study of almost every elegant and high Divine. They stand in Folio's and other Volumes, adorn'd with variety of Pictures, Gildings, and other Decorations, on the advanc'd Shelves or Glas-Cupboards of the Lady's Closets. They are in use at all Seasons, and for all Places, as well for Church-Service as Closet-Preparation; and, in short, may vie with any devotional Books in British Christendom. And for the Life and Character of the Man himself; I leave it to you, Gentlemen (you, I mean, of the Zealot-kind) to except against it; if you think proper. 'Tis your Manner, I know, and what you never fail to have recourse to, when any Authority is produc'd against you. Personal Reflection is always reasonable, and at hand, on such an occasion. No matter what Virtue, Honesty or Sanctity may lie in the Character of the Person cited. No matter tho' he be ever so much, in other respects, of your own Party, and devoted to your Interest. If he has indiscreetly spoken some Home-Truth, or discover'd some Secret which strikes at the temporal Interests of certain spiritual Societys; he is quickly doom'd to Calumny and Defamation.

I SHALL try this Experiment, however, once more (continu'd our Gentleman) and as a Conclusion to this Discourse, will venture to produce to you a further Authority of the same kind. You shall have it before you, in the exact Phrase and Words of the great Author, in his theological Capacity; since I have now no further occasion to conceal my Citations, and accommodate them to the more familiar Style and Language of Conversation.

OUR excellent * Archbishop, and late Father of our Church, when expressly treating that very Subject of a RULE in matters of Belief, in opposition to Mr. S.... and Mr. R.... his Romish Antagonists, shews plainly how great a shame it is, for us Protestants at least (whatever the Case may be with Romanists) to disallow Difference of Opinions, and forbid private Examination, and Search into matters of antient RECORD, and scriptural TRADITION; when, at the same time, we have no pretence to oral or verbal; no Claim to any absolute superior Judge, or decisive Judgment in the Case; no Polity, Church, or Community; no particular Man, or number of Men, who are not, even by our own Confession, plainly fallible, and subject to Error and Mistake.

* Viz. Archbishop TILLOTSON in his Rule of Faith, pag. 677.

“THE Protestants” (says his Grace, speaking in the Person of Mr. S . . . and the Romanists) “cannot know how many the Books of Scripture ought to be; and Which of the many controverted ones may be securely put in that Catalogue; Which not.—But I shall tell him (replies his Grace) That we know that just so many ought to be receiv’d as uncontroverted Books, concerning which it cannot be shewn there was ever any Controversy.” It was not incumbent perhaps on my Lord Archbishop to help Mr. S . . . so far in his Objection, as to add, That in reality the burning, suppressing, and interpolating Method, so early in fashion, and so tightly practis’d on the Epistles, Comments, Histories, and Writings of the Orthodox and Hereticks of old, made it impossible to say with any kind of Assurance, “What Books, Copys, or Transcripts those were, concerning which there was never any Controversy at all.” This indeed wou’d be a Point not so easily to be demonstrated. But his Grace proceeds, in shewing the Weakness of the Romish Pillar, TRADITION. “For it must either (says he) acknowledge some Books to have been controverted, or not. If not, why doth he

“ he make a Supposition of controverted Books?
 “ If Oral Tradition acknowledges some Books
 “ to have been controverted; then it cannot “ assure us that they have not been controvert“ ed, nor consequently that they ought to be “ receiv’d as never having been controverted;
 “ but only as such, concerning which those Churches
 “ who did once raise a Controversy about them, have “ been since satisfy’d that they are * Canonical.—
 “ Where is then the Infallibility of oral Tradi“ tion? How does the living Voice of the present “ Church assure us, that what Books are now re“ ceiv’d by Her, were ever receiv’d by Her? And “ if it cannot do this, but the matter must come “ to be try’d by the best Records of former Ages “ (which the Protestants are willing to have “ the Catalogue try’d by) then it seems the Pro“ testants have a better way to know what “ Books are Canonical, than is the infallible

* His Grace subjoins immediately: “ The Traditionary Church now, “ receives the Epistle to the Hebrews as Canonical. I ask, Do they “ receive it as ever deliver’d for such? That they must, if they receive
 “ it from oral Tradition, which conveys Things to them under this “ Notion as ever deliver’d; and yet St. Hierom (speaking not as a Spe- “ culator, but a Testifier) says expressly of it, That the Custom of the Latin “ Church doth not receive it among the Canonical Scriptures. What saith “ Mr. S to this; It is clear from this Testimony, that the Roman “ Church in St. Hierom’s time did not acknowledge this Epistle for “ Canonical; and ’tis as plain, that the present Roman Church doth re“ ceive it for Canonical.”

“ way of oral Tradition. And so long as 'tis “ better, no matter tho it be not call'd In“ fallible.”——

THUS the free and generous Archbishop. For, indeed, what greater Generosity is there, than in owning TRUTH frankly and openly, even where the greatest Advantages may be taken by an Adversary? According, our worthy Archbishop speaking again immediately in the Person of his Adversary, “ The Prote“ stants, says * he, cannot know that the very “ Original, or a perfectly true Copy of these Books, “ hath been preserv'd. Nor is it necessary “ replies the Archbishop) that they shou'd know “ either of these. It is sufficient that they know “ that those Copys which they have, are not “ materially corrupted.—But how do the “ Church of Rome know that they have perfect- “ ly true Copys of the Scriptures in the original “ Languages? They do not pretend to know
 “ this. The learned Men of that Church ac“ knowledge the various Readings as well as we,
 “ and do not pretend to know, otherwise than
 “ by probable Conjecture (as we also may do)
 “ Which of those Readings is the true-one †.”——

* Pag. 678.

† The Reader perhaps may find it worth while to read after this, what the Archbishop represents (pag. 716, &c.) of the plausible Intro-

AND thus (continu'd our Lay-Gentleman) I have finish'd my Quotations, which I have been necessitated to bring in my own Defence; to prove to you That I have asserted nothing on this Head of Religion, Faith, or the Sacred Mysterys, which has not been justify'd and confirm'd by the most celebrated Church-Men and respect-ed Divines. You may now proceed in your Invectives; bestowing as free Language of that kind, as your Charity and Breeding will permit. And You (Reverend SIRs!) who have assum'd a Character which sets you above that of the mere duction of the grossest Article of Belief, in the times when the Habit of making Creeds came in fashion. And accordingly it may be understood, of what Effect the dogmatizing Practice in Divinity has ever been. " We will suppose then, that about the time, when universal Ignorance, " and the genuine Daughter of it (call her Devotion or Superstition) had " overspread the World, and the generality of People were strongly " inclin'd to believe strange things; and even the greatest Contradictions " were recommended to them under the notion of MYSTERYS, " being told by their Priests and Guides, That the more Contradictious " any thing is to Reason, the greater merit there is in believing it: I " say, let us suppose, that in this state of things, one or more of the " most Eminent then in the Church, either out of Design, or out of su- " perstitious Ignorance and Mistake of the Sense of our Saviour's Words " used in the Consecration of the Sacrament, should advance this new " Doctrine, that the Words of Consecration, &c. * * * Such a Doc- " trine as this was very likely to be advanc'd by the ambitious Clergy " of that time, as a probable means to draw in the People to a greater " Veneration of them. * * * Nor was such a Doctrine less likely to " take and prevail among the People in an Age prodigioussly ignorant " and strongly inclin'd to Superstition, and thereby well-prepar'd to receive

mere Gentleman, and releases you from those Decorums, and conftraining Measures of Behaviour to which we of an inferior sort are bound; You may liberally deal your religious Compliments and Salutations in what Dialect you think fit; since for my own part, neither the Names of HETERODOX, SCHISMATICK, HERETICK, SCEP-TICK, nor even INFIDEL, or ATHEIST it-self, will in the least scandalize me, whilst the Sen-tence comes only from your mouths. On the contrary, I rather strive with myself to suppress whatever Vanity might naturally arise in me, from such Favour bestow'd. For whatever may, in the bottom, be intended me, by such a Treatment; 'tis impossible for me to term it “ receive the grossest Absurdities under the notion of Mysterys. * * *

“ Now supposing such a Doctrine as this, so fitted to the Humour and “ Temper of the Age, to be once asserted either by chance or out of “ design, it would take like Wild-fire; especially if by some one or “ more who bore sway in the Church, it were but recommended with “ convenient Gravity and Solemnity. * * * * And for the Contradictions “ contain'd in this Doctrine, it was but telling the People then (as they “ do in effect now) That Contradictions ought to be no Scruple in the “ way of Faith; That the more impossible any thing is, 'tis the fitter to “ be believ'd; That it is not Praise-worthy to believe plain Possibilities,

“ but this is the Gallantry and heroical Power of Faith, this is the way

“ to oblige God Almighty for ever to us, to believe flat and downright “ Contradictions. * * * The more absurd and unreasonable any thing

“ is, it is for that very reason the more proper matter for an Article of “ Faith. And if any of these Innovations be objected against, as con“ trary to former Belief and Practice, it is but putting forth a lusty Act

“ of Faith, and believing another Contradiction, That tho they be con“ trary, yet they are the same.” Above, pag. 80, 1, 2.

other

other than Favour; ſince there are certain Enmities which it will be ever eſteem'd a real Honour to have merited.

IF, contrary to the Rule and Meaſure of Converſation, I have drawn the Company's Attention towards me thus long, without affording them an Intermiſſion, during my Recital; they will, I hope, excuſe me, the rather, becauſe they heard the other Recitals, and were Witneſſes to the heavy Charge and perſonal Reflection, which without any real Provocation was made upon me in publick, by theſe
Zealot-Gentlemen, to whom I have thus reply'd.
And notwithſtanding they may, after ſuch
Breaches of Charity as are uſual with them, preſume me equally out of Charity, on my own ſide; I will take upon me however to give them this good Advice, at parting: " That
" ſince they have of late been ſo elated by ſome
" ſeeming Advantages, and a Proſperity, which " they are ill fitted to bear; they wou'd at
" leaſt beware of accumulating too haſtily thoſe
" high Characters, Appellations, Titles, and " Enſigns of Power, which may be Tokens,
" perhaps, of what they expect hereafter, but " which, as yet, do not anſwer the real Power
" and Authority beſtow'd on them." The Garb and Countenance will be more graceful, when

when the Thing it-self is secur'd to 'em, and in their actual possession. Mean while, the Anticipation of high Titles, Honours, and nominal Dignitys, beyond the common Style and antient Usage; tho it may be highly fashionable at present, may not prove beneficial or advantageous in the end.

I WOU'D, in peticular, advise my elegant Antagonists of this Zealot-kind; That among the many Titles they assume to themselves, they wou'd be rather more sparing in that high-one of EMBASSADOR, till such time as they have just Means and Foundation to join that of PLENIPOTENTIARY together with it. For as matters stand hitherto in our British World, neither their Commission from the Sovereign, nor that which they pretend from Heaven, amounts to any absolute or determining Power.

THE first holy MESSENGERS (for That I take to be the highest apostolick Name) brought with them their proper Testimonials in their Lives, their Manners and Behaviour; as well as in powerful Works, MIRACLES, and SIGNS from Heaven. And tho indeed it might well be esteem'd a Miracle in the kind, shou'd our present MESSENGERS go about to represent their Pre-

Predecessors in any part of their Demeanour or Conversation; yet there are further Miracles remaining for 'em to perform, ere they can in modesty plead the Apostolick or Messenger-Authority. For tho' in the torrent of a sublime and figurative Style, a holy Apostle may have made use, perhaps of such a Phrase as that of EMBASSY or EMBASSADOR, to express the Dignity of his Errand; 'twere to be wish'd that some who were never sent of any Errand or Message at all from GOD himself, wou'd use a modester Title to express their voluntary Negotiation between US and HEAVEN.

I MUST confess for my own part, that I think the Notion of an EMBASSY from thence to be at best somewhat high-strain'd, in the metaphorical way of Speech. But certain I am, that if there be any such Residentship or Agentship now establish'd; 'tis not immediately from GOD himself, but thro' the Magistrate, and by the Prince or Sovereign Power here on Earth, that these Gentlemen-Agents are appointed, distinguish'd and set over us. They have undoubtedly a * legal CHARTER, and Character, legal Titles, and Precedencys, legal Habits, Coats of Arms, Colours, Badges. But they may do well to confider, That a thoufand Badges or Liverys beftow'd by MEN merely, can never be fufficient to entitle 'em to the fame Authority as Theirs who bore the immediate Testimony and MIRACULOUS SIGNS of Power, from ABOVE. For in this cafe, there was need only of Eyes, and ordinary Senfes, to diftinguifh the COMMISSION, and acknowledge the EMBASSY or MESSAGE as divine.

BUT allowing it ever fo certain a Truth, “ That there has been a thoufand or near two “ thoufand Years Succession in this Commif“ fion of EMBASSY:” Where fhall we find this Commission to have lain?—How has it been fupply'd ftill, or renew'd?—How often dormant?—How often divided, even in one and the fame Species of Claimants?—What Party are they among Moderns, who by virtue of any immediate Testimonial from Heaven are thus entitled?—Whence are the LETTERS-PATENT? The CREDENTIALS? For theſe fhould, in the nature of the thing, be open, viſible, and apparent.

A CERTAIN INDIAN of the Train of the Ambaffador-Princes ſent to us lately from ſome of theſe Pagan Nations, being engag'd, one Sunday, in viſiting our Churches, and happening to aſk his Interpreter, “ Who the eminent

“ nent Perfons were whom he observ’d ha-“ ranging fo long, with fuch Authority from “ a high Place?” was answer’d, “ They were “ Embaffadors from the ALMIGHTY, or (accord“ ing to the Indian Language) from the SUN.”

Whether the INDIAN took this ferioufly or in raillery, did not appear. But having afterwards called in, as he went along, at the Chapels of fome of his Brother-Embaffadors, of the Romifh Religion, and at fome other Christian Diffenting Congregations, where Matters, as he perceiv’d, were tranfacted with greater Privacy, and inferior State; he ask’d “ Whether Thefe alfo were Embaffadors from
 “ the fame Place.” He was answer’d, “ That they had indeed been heretofore of the “ Embaffy, and had Poffeffion of the fame “ chief Places he had feen: But they were “ now fucceeded there, by Others. If thofe
 “ therefore, reply’d the Indian, were Embaf“ fadors from the SUN; thefe, I take for grant“ ed, are from the MOON.”

SUPPOSING, indeed, one had been no Pa- gan, but a good Chriftian; converfant in the original Holy Scriptures, but unacquainted with the Rites, Titles, Habits and Ceremonials, of which there is no mention in thofe Writings:
 Might one not have inquir’d with humble Submiffion, into this Affair? Might one not have

have softly, and at a distance, apply'd for information concerning this high EMBASSY, and addressing perhaps to some inferior Officer or Livery-Man of the Train, ask'd modestly, "How
 " and Whence they came? Whose Equipage
 " they appear'd in? At Whose Charges they " were entertain'd? and by Whose Suffrage
 " or Command appointed and authoriz'd?
 " ———Is it true (pray SIRs!) that their Excel-
 " lencys of the present Establishment, are the " sole-commission'd? Or are there as many real
 " Commissioners as there are Pretenders? If so;
 " there can be no great danger for us, which" ever way we apply our-selves. We have " ample Choice, and may adhere to which
 " COMMISSION we like best. If there be only " ONE single TRUE-one; we have then, it " seems, good reason to look about us, search
 " narrowly into the Affair, be scrupulous in " our Choice, and (as the current Physick-Bills
 " admonish us) beware of Counterfeits; since
 " there are so many of these abroad, with
 " earthly Powers, and temporal COMMISSIONS.
 " to back their spiritual Pretences." ———

'Tis to be fear'd, in good earnest, that the Discernment of this kind will prove pretty difficult; especially amidst this universal Contention, Embroid, and Fury of religious Challeng-ers, lengers, these high Defiances of contrary Believers, this zealous Opposition of Commission to Commission; and this Din of Hell, Anathema's, and Damnations, rais'd every where by one religious Party against another.

So far are the pretendedly commission'd Partys from producing their Commission openly, or proving it from the original Record, or Court-Rolls of Heaven, that they deny us inspection into these very Records they plead, and refuse to submit their Title to human Judgment or Examination.

A POET of our Nation insinuates indeed in their behalf, That they are fair enough in this respect. For when the murmuring People, speaking by their chosen ORATOR, or Spokesman, to the Priests, says to 'em,

*With Ease you take what we provide with Care,
And we who your LEGATION must maintain,
Find all your Tribe in the Commission are,
And none but HEAV'N cou'd send so large a TRAIN;*

The APOLOGIST afterwards excusing this Boldness of the People, and soothing the incens'd Priests with fairer Words, says to 'em, on a foot of Moderation, which he presumes to be their Character:

You with such Temper their Intemperance bear,
To shew your solid Science does rely
So on it-self, as you no Tryal fear:
For Arts are weak that are of SCEPTICKS shy.*

The Poet, it seems, never dreamt of a time when the very Countenance of Moderation shou'd be out of fashion with the Gentlemen of this Order, and the Word it-self exploded as unworthy of their Profession. And, indeed, so far are they at present from bearing with any SCEPTICK, or Inquirer, ever so modest or discreet, that to hear an Argument on a contrary side to theirs, or read whatever may be writ in answer to their particular Assertions, is made the highest Crime. Whilst they have among themselves such Differences, and sharp Debates, about their heavenly COMMISSION, and are even in one and the same Community or Establishment, divided into different Scēts and Heads; they will allow no particular Survey or Inspection into the Foundations of their controverted Title. They wou'd have us inferior passive Mortals, amaz'd as we are, and beholding with astonishment from afar these tremendous Subjects of Dispute, wait blindfold the Event and final Decision of the Controversy. Nor is it enough that we are merely passive. 'Tis requir'd of us, That in the midst of this irreconcilable Debate concerning heavenly Authoritys and Powers, we shou'd be as confident of the Veracity of some one, as of the Imposture and Cheat of all the other Pretenders: and that believing firmly there is still A real COMMISSION at the bottom, we shou'd endure the Misery of these Conflicts, and engage on one side or the other, as we happen to have our Birth or Education; till by Fire and Sword, Execution, Massacre, and a kind of Depopulation of this Earth, it be * determin'd at last amongst us, " Which " is the true COMMISSION, Exclusive of all " others, and superior to the rest."

* GONDIBERT, Book 2. Canto 1.

HERE our secular GENTLEMAN, who in the latter end of his Discourse had already made several Motions and Gestures which betoken'd a Retreat, made his final Bow in form, and quitted the Place and Company for that time; till (as he told his Auditors) he had another Opportunity, and fresh Leisure to hear, in his turn, whatever his Antagonists might anew object to him, in a Manner more favourable and moderate; or (if they so approv'd) in the same Temper, and with the same Zeal as they had done before.

* Supra, pag. 59.

TREATISE VII.

VIZ

A NOTION of the Historical Draught or Tablature

OF THE

JUDGMENT of HERCULES,

According to PRODICUS, Lib. II. Xen. de Mem. Soc.

—————Potiores
HERCULIS ærumnas credat, favosque Labores,
Et Venere, et cœnis, et pluma SARDANAPALI.

Juv. Sat. 10.

Paulo de Matthæis Pinx:

Sim. Gribelin sculps:

Printed first in the Year M.DCC.XIII.

T H E
 J U D G M E N T
 O F
 H E R C U L E S.

I N T R O D U C T I O N.

(I.) BEFORE we enter on the Examination of our Historical Sketch, it may be proper to remark, that by the word Tablature (for which we have yet no name in English, besides the general one of Picture) we denote, according to the original word TABULA, a Work not only distinct from a mere Portraiture, but from all those wilder sorts of Painting which are in a manner absolute, and independent; such as the Paintings in Fresco upon the Walls, the Cielings, the Stair-Cases, the Cupolo's, and other remarkable Places either of Churches or Palaces.

(2.) ACCORDINGLY we are to understand, that it is not merely the Shape or Dimension of a Cloth, or Board, which denominates the Piece or Tablature; since a Work of this kind may be compos'd of any colour'd Substance, as it may of any Form; whether square, oval or round. But 'tis then that in Painting we may give to any particular Work the Name of Tablature, when the Work is in reality “ a Single Piece, comprehended in one View, and form'd according to one single Intelligence, Meaning, or Design; which constitutes a real WHOLE, by a mutual and necessary Relation of its Parts, the same as of the Members in a natural Body.” So that one may say of a Picture compos'd of any number of Figures differently rang'd, and without any regard to this Correspondency or Union describ'd, That it is no more a real Piece or Tablature than a Picture wou'd be a Man's Picture, or proper Portraiture, which represented on the same Cloth, in different places, the Legs, Arms, Nose, and Eyes of such a Person, without adjusting them according to the true Proportion, Air, and Character which belong'd to him.

(3.) THIS

(3.) THIS Regulation has place even in the inferior degrees of Painting; since the mere Flower-Painter is, we see, oblig'd to study the Form of Festons and to make use of a peculiar Order, or Architecture of Vases, Jars, Cannisters, Pedestals, and other Inventions, which serve as Machines, to frame a certain proportionate Assemblage, or united Mass; according to the Rules of Perspective; and with regard as well to the different shapes and sizes of his several Flowers, as to the harmony of Colours resulting from the whole: this being the only thing capable of rendring his Work worthy the name of a Composition or real Piece.

(4.) So much the more, therefore, is this Regulation applicable to History-Painting, where not only Men, but Manners, and human Passions are represented. Here the Unity of Design must with more particular exactness be preserv'd, according to the just Rules of poetick Art; that in the Representation of any Event, or remarkable Fact, the Probability, or seeming Truth (which is the real Truth of Art) may with the highest advantage be supported and advanc'd: as we shall better understand in the Argument which follows on the historical Tablature of The Judgment of HERCULES; who being young, and retir'd to a solitary place in order to deliberate on the Choice he was to make of the different ways of Life, was accosted (as our Historian relates) by the two Goddeffes, VIRTUE and PLEASURE. 'Tis on the issue of the Controversy between these Two, that the Character of HERCULES depends. So that we may naturally give to this Piece and History, as well the Title of The Education, as the Choice or Judgment of HERCULES.

C H A P. I.

Of the general Constitution or Ordonnance of the Tablature.

(I.) THIS Fable or History may be variously represented, according to the Order of Time:

Either in the instant when the two Goddeffes (VIRTUE and PLEASURE) accost HERCULES;

Or when they are enter'd on their Dispute;

Or when their Dispute is already far advanc'd, and VIRTUE seems to gain her Cause.

(2.) ACCORDING to the first Notion, HERCULES must of necessity seem surpriz'd on the first appearance appearance of such miraculous Forms. He admires, he contemplates; but is not yet engag'd or interested. According to the second Notion, he is interested, divided, and in doubt. According to the third, he is wrought, agitated, and torn by contrary Passions. 'Tis the last Effort of the vicious one, striving for possession over him. He agonizes, and with all his Strength of Reason endeavours to overcome himself:

Et premitur ratione animus, vincique laborat.

(3.) OF these different Periods of Time, the latter has been chosen; as being the only one of the three, which can well serve to express the grand Event, or consequent Resolution of HERCULES, and the Choice he actually made of a Life full of Toil and Hardship, under the conduct of VIRTUE, for the deliverance of Mankind from Tyranny and Oppression. And 'tis to such a Picce, or Tablature, as represents this Issue of the Balance, in our pondering Hero, that we may justly give the Title of the Decision or Judgment of HERCULES.

(4.) THE same History may be represented yet according to a fourth Date or Period: as at the time when HERCULES is intirely won by Virtue. But then the signs of this resolute Determination reigning absolutely in the Attitude, and Air of our young Hero; there wou'd be no room left to represent his Agony, or inward Conflict, which indeed makes the principal Action here; as it wou'd do in a Poem, were this Subject to be treated by a good Poet. Nor wou'd there be any more room left in this case, either for the persuasive Rhetorick of VIRTUE (who must have already ended her Discourse) or for the insinuating Address of PLEASURE, who having lost her Cause, must necessarily appear displeas'd, or out of humour: a Circumstance which wou'd no way fute her Character.

(5.) IN the original Story or Fable of this Adventure of our young HERCULES, 'tis particularly noted, that PLEASURE, advancing hastily before VIRTUE, began her Plea, and was heard with prevention; as being first in turn. And as this Fable is wholly philosophical and moral, this Circumstance in particular is to be consider'd as essential.

(6.) IN this third Period therefore of our History (dividing it, as we have done, into four successive Dates or Points of Time) HERCULES being Auditor, and attentive, speaks not. PLEASURE has spoken. VIRTUE is still speaking. She is about the middle, or towards the end of her

her Discourse; in the place where, according to just Rhetorick, the highest Tone of Voice and strongest Action are employ'd.

(7.) 'Tis evident, that every Master in Painting, when he has made choice of the determinate Date or Point of Time, according to which he wou'd represent his History, is afterwards debar'd the taking advantage from any other Action than what is immediately present, and belonging to that single Instant he describes. For if he passes the present only for a moment, he may as well pass it for many years. And by this reckoning he may with as good right repeat the same Figure several times over, and in one and the same Picture represent HERCULES in his Cradle, struggling with the Serpents; and the same HERCULES of full Age, fighting with the Hydra, with Anteus, and with Cerberus: which wou'd prove a mere confus'd Heap, or Knot of Pieces, and not a single intire Piece, or Tablature, of the historical kind.

(8.) IT may however be allowable, on some occasions, to make use of certain enigmatical or emblematical Devises, to represent a future Time: as when HERCULES, yet a mere Boy, is seen holding a small Club, or wearing the Skin of a young Lion. For so we often find him in the best Antiques. And tho History had never related related of HERCULES, that being yet very young, he kill'd a Lion with his own hand; this Representation of him wou'd nevertheless be intirely conformable to poetick Truth; which not only admits, but necessarily presupposes Prophecy or Prognostication, with regard to the Actions, and Lives of Heroes and Great Men. Besides that as to our Subject, in particular, the natural Genius of HERCULES, even in his tenderest Youth, might alone answer for his handling such Arms as these, and bearing, as it were in play, these early tokens of the future Hero.

(9.) To preserve therefore a just Conformity with historical Truth, and with the Unity of Time and Action, there remains no other way by which we can possibly give a hint of any thing future, or call to mind any thing past, than by setting in view such Passages or Events as have actually subsisted, or according to Nature might well subsist, or happen together in one and the same Instant. And this is what we may properly call The Rule of Consistency.

(10.) How is it therefore possible, says one, to express a Change of Passion in any Subject, since this Change is made by Succession; and that in this case the Passion which is understood flood as present, will require a Disposition of Body and Features wholly different from the Passion which is over, and past? To this we answer, That notwithstanding the Ascendency or Reign of the principal and immediate Passion, the Artist has power to leave still in his Subject the Tracts or Footsteps of its Predecessor: so as to let us behold not only a rising Passion together with a declining one; but, what is more, a strong and determinate Passion, with its contrary already discharg'd and banish'd. As for instance, when the plain Tracts of Tears new fallen, with other fresh tokens of Mourning and Dejection, remain still in a Person newly transported with Joy at the sight of a Relation or Friend, who the moment before had been lamented as one deceas'd or lost.

(II.) AGAIN, by the same means which are employ'd to call to mind the Past, we may anticipate the Future: as wou'd be seen in the case of an able Painter, who shou'd undertake to paint this History of HERCULES according to the third Date or Period of Time propos'd for our historical Tablature. For in this momentary Turn of Action, HERCULES remaining still in a situation expressive of Suspence and Doubt, wou'd discover nevertheless that the Strength of this inward Conflict was over, and that Victory

tory began now to declare her-self in favour of Virtue. This Transition, which seems at first so mysterious a Performance, will be easily comprehended, if one considers, That the Body, which moves much slower than the Mind, is easily out-strip'd by this latter; and that the Mind on a sudden turning it-self some new way, the nearer situated and more sprightly parts of the Body (such as the Eyes, and Muscles about the Mouth and Forehead) taking the alarm, and moving in an instant, may leave the heavier and more distant parts to adjust themselves, and change their Attitude some moments after.

(12.) THIS different Operation may be distinguish'd by the names of Anticipation and Recapal.

(13.) IF by any other method an Artist shou'd pretend to introduce into this Piece any portion of Time, future or past, he must either sin directly against the Law of Truth and Credibility, in representing things contrary and incompatible; or against that Law of Unity and Simplicity of Design, which constitutes the very Being of his Work. This particularly shews it-self in a Picture, when one is necessarily left in doubt, and unable to determine readily, Which of the distinct successive parts of the History tory or Action is that very-one represented in the Design. For even here the case is the same as in the other Circumstances of Poetry and Painting: “ That what is principal or chief, “ shou’d immediately shew it-self, without leav- “ ing the Mind in any uncertainty.”

(14) ACCORDING to this Rule of the Unity of Time, if one shou’d ask an Artist, who had painted this History of The Judgment of HERCULES, “ * Which of these four Periods or “ Dates of Time above propos’d he intended “ in his Picture to represent;” and it shou’d happen that he cou’d not readily answer, ’Twas this, or that: It wou’d appear plainly he had never form’d a real Notion of his Workmanship, or of the History he intended to represent. So that when he had executed even to a Miracle all those other Beautys requisite

* If the same Question concerning the instantaneous Action, or present Moment of Time, were apply’d to many famous historical Paintings much admir’d in the World, they wou’d be found very defective: as we may learn by the Instance of that single Subject of ACTEON, one of the commonest in Painting. Hardly is there any where seen a Design of this poetical History, without a ridiculous Anticipation of the Metamorphosis. The Horns of ACTEON, which are the Effect of a Charm, shou’d naturally wait the execution of that Act in which the Charm consists. Till the Goddess therefore has thrown her Cast, the Hero’s Person suffers not any Change. Even while the Water flies, his Forehead is still sound. But in the usual Design we see it otherwise. The Horns are already sprouted, if not full grown: and the Goddess is seen watering the Sprouts.

in a Piece, and had fail'd in this single one, he wou'd from hence alone be prov'd to be in truth no History-Painter, or Artist in the kind, who understood not so much as how to form the real Design of a Historical Piece.

Of the First or Principal Figure.

(1.) TO apply therefore what has been said above to our immediate Design or Tablature in hand; we may observe, in the first place, with regard to HERCULES, (the first or principal Figure of our Piece) that being plac'd in the middle, between the two Goddeffes, he shou'd by a skilful Master be so drawn, as even setting aside the Air and Features of the Face, it shou'd appear by the very Turn, or Position of the Body alone, that this young Hero had not wholly quitted the balancing or pondering part. For in the manner of his turn towards the worthier of these Goddeffes, he shou'd by no means appear so averse or separate from the other, as not to suffer it to be conceiv'd of him, that he had ever any inclination for her, or had ever hearken'd to her Voice. On the contrary, there ought to be some hopes yet remaining for this latter Goddeffs PLEASURE, and some regret apparent in HERCULES. Otherwise we shou'd pass immediately from the third to the fourth Period; or at least confound one with the other.
in

(2.) HERCULES, in this Agony describ'd, may appear either sitting, or standing: tho it be more according to probability for him to appear standing; in regard to the presence of the two Goddesses, and by reason the case is far from being the same here as in The Judgment of PARIS; where the interested Goddesses plead their Cause before their Judge. Here the Interest of HERCULES himself is at stake. 'Tis his own Cause which is trying. He is in this respect not so much the Judge, as he is in reality the Party judg'd.

(3.) THE superior and commanding Passion of HERCULES may be express'd either by a strong Admiration, or by an Admiration which holds chiefly of Love.

———Ingenti percussus amore.

(4.) IF the latter be us'd, then the reluctant Passion, which is not yet wholly overcome, may shew it-self in Pity and Tenderness, mov'd in our Hero by the thought of those Pleasures and Companions of his Youth, which he is going for ever to abandon. And in this sense

HER-

HERCULES may look either on the one or the other of the Goddesses, with this difference; That if he looks on Pleasure, it shou'd be faintly, and as turning his Eyes back with Pity; having still his Action and Gesture turn'd the other way towards Virtue. If, on the contrary, he looks on Virtue; it ought to be earnestly, and with extreme attention, having some part of the Action of his Body inclining still towards Pleasure, and discovering by certain Features of Concern and Pity, intermix'd with the commanding or conquering Passion, that the Decision he is about to make in favour of Virtue, cost him not a little.

(5.) IF it be thought fit rather to make use of Admiration, merely to express the commanding Passion of HERCULES: then the reluctant-one may discover it-self in a kind of Horror, at the thought of the Toil and Labour, to be sustain'd in the rough rocky way apparent on the side of VIRTUE.

(6.) AGAIN, HERCULES may be represented as looking neither towards VIRTUE nor PLEASURE, but as turning his Eyes either towards the mountainous rocky Way pointed out to him by VIRTUE, or towards the flowry Way of the Vale and Meadows, recommended to him by PLEASURE. And to these different Attitudes for the Expression of the Turn or Balance of Judgment in our pensive Hero.

(7.) WHATEVER may be the manner chosen for the designing of this Figure of HERCULES, according to that part of the History in which we have taken him: 'tis certain he shou'd be so drawn, as neither by the opening of his mouth, or by any other sign, to leave it in the least dubious whether he is speaking or silent. For 'tis absolutely requisite that Silence shou'd be distinctly characteriz'd in HERCULES, not only as the natural effect of his strict Attention, and the little leisure he has from what passes at this time within his breast; but in order withal to give that appearance of Majesty and Superiority becoming the Person and Character of pleading VIRTUE; who by her Eloquence and other Charms has ere this made her-self mistress of the Heart of our enamour'd Hero:

* — Pendetque iterum narrantis ab ore.

This Image of the Sublime in the Discourse and Manner of VIRTUE, wou'd be utterly lost, if in the instant that she employ'd the greatest Force of Action, she shou'd appear to be interrupted by the ill-tim'd Speech, Reply, or Utterance of her Auditor. Such a Design or Representation as this, wou'd prove contrary to Order, contrary to the History, and to the Decorum, or Decency of Manners. Nor can one well avoid taking notice here, of that general Absurdity committed by many of the esteem'd great Masters in Painting; who in one and the same Company, or Assembly of Persons jointly employ'd, and united according to the History, in one single or common Action, represent to us not only two or three, but several, and sometimes all speaking at once. Which must naturally have the same effect on the Eye, as such a Conversation wou'd have upon the Ear were we in reality to hear it.

* Virg. Æn. Lib. 4. ver. 79.

C H A P. III.

Of the Second Figure.

(1.) AFTER what has been said on the Subject of HERCULES, it appears plainly what the Attitude must be of our second Figure, VIRTUE; who, as we have taken her in this particular Period of our History, must of necessity be speaking with all the Force of Action, such as wou'd appear in an excellent Orator, when at the height, and in the most affecting part of his Discourse.

(2.) SHE ought therefore to be drawn standing; since 'tis contrary to all probable
Ap-

Appearance, and even to Nature it-self, that in the very Heat and highest Transport of Speech, the Speaker shou'd be seen sitting, or in any Posture which might express Repose.

(3.) SHE may be habited either as an AMAZON, with the Helmet, Lance, and in the Robe or Vest of PALLAS; or as any other of the Virtues, Goddesses, or Heroines, with the plain original Crown, without Rays, according to genuine Antiquity. Our History makes no mention of a Helmet, or any other Armour of VIRTUE. It gives us only to understand that she was dress'd neither negligently, nor with much study or ornament. If we follow this latter method, we need give her only in her hand the Imperial or * Magisterial Sword; which is her true characteristick Mark, and wou'd sufficiently distinguish her, without the Helmet, Lance, or other military Habit. And in this manner the opposition between herself and her Rival wou'd be still more beautiful and regular.—“ But this Beauty, says one, “ wou'd be discoverable only by the Learned.” —Perhaps so. But then again there wou'd be no loss for others: since no-one wou'd find this Piece the less intelligible on the account of this Regulation. On the contrary, one who

* Pajazonium.

chanc'd to know little of Antiquity in general, or of this History in particular, wou'd be still further to seek, if upon seeing an armed Woman in the Piece, he shou'd represent to himself either a PALLAS, a BELLONA, or any other warlike Form, or Deity of the female kind.

(4.) As for the Shape, Countenance, or Person of VIRTUE; that which is usually given to PALLAS may fitly serve as a Model for this Dame; as on the other side, that which is given to VENUS may serve in the same manner for her Rival. The Historian whom we follow, represents VIRTUE to us as a Lady of a goodly Form, tall and majestick. And by what he relates of her, he gives us sufficiently to understand, that tho she was neither lean, nor of a tann'd Complexion, she must have discover'd however, by the Substance and Colour of her Flesh, that she was sufficiently accustomed to exercise. PLEASURE, on the other hand, by an exact Opposition, is represented in better case, and of a Softness of Complexion; which speaks her Manners, and gives her a middle Character between the Person of a VENUS, and that of a BACCHINAL Nymph.

(5.) As for the Position, or Attitude of VIRTUE; tho in a historical Piece, such as ours is design'd, 'twou'd on no account be proper to have have immediate recourse to the way of Emblem; one might, on this occasion, endeavour nevertheless by some artifice, to give our Figure, as much as possible, the resemblance of the same Goddeſs, as ſhe is ſeen on Medals, and other antient emblematick Pieces of like nature. In this view, ſhe ſhou'd be ſo deſign'd, as to ſtand firm with her full poiſe upon one foot, having the other a little advanc'd, and rais'd on a broken piece of ground or rock, inſtead of the Helmet or little Globe on which we ſee her uſually ſetting her foot, as triumphant, in thoſe Pieces of the emblematick kind. A particular advantage of this Attitude, ſo judiciously aſſign'd to VIRTUE by antient Maſters, is, that it expreſſes as well her aſpiring Effort, or Aſcent towards the Stars and Heaven, as her Victory and Superiority over Fortune and the World. For ſo the Poets have of old, deſcrib'd her.

* ——— Negata tentat iter via.

† Virtutiſque viam deſerit arduæ.

And in our Piece particularly, where the arduous and rocky way of VIRTUE requires to be emphatically repreſented; the aſcending Poſture of this Figure, with one Foot advanc'd, in a ſort of climbing Action, over the rough and thorny

* Horât. Lib. 3. Od. 2.

† Idem ibid. Od. 24.

566 The J U D G M E N T

Ground, must of necessity, if well executed, create a due effect, and add to the Sublime of this * antient Poetick Work.

(6.) As for the Hands or Arms, which in real Oratory, and during the strength of Elocution, must of necessity be active; 'tis plain in respect of our Goddess, that the Arm in particular which she has free to herself, and is neither incumber'd with Lance or Sword, shou'd be employ'd another way, and come in, to second the Discourse, and accompany it, with a just Emphasis and Action. Accordingly, VIRTUE wou'd then be seen with this Hand, turn'd either upwards to the rocky Way mark'd out by her with approbation; or to the Sky, or Stars, in the same sublime sense; or downwards to the flowery Way and Vale, as in a detesting manner, and with abhorrence of what passes there; or last of all (in a disdainful sense, and with the same appearance of Detestation) against PLEASURE her-self. Each Manner

* As antient as the Poet HESIOD: which appears by the following Verses, cited by our Historian, as the Foundation, or first Draught of this HERCULEAN Tablature.

Τὴν μὲν γὰρ καυότῃσιν ἢ ἰλαδοῖ ἐστὶν ἐπέσθαι
 Ῥηϊδίως. λείη μὲν ὁδοῖς, μάλα δ' ἐφύθει γαίαι·
 Τῆς δ' ἀρετῆς ἰδρωτὰ θεοὶ παρεπάραιθεν ἔθησαν
 Ἄθανασιο· μακρὸς δὲ ἢ ἔρθετο ὄμιλος ἐπ' αὐτῶν,
 Καὶ τραχὺς τὸ πρῶτον· ἐπὴν δ' εἰς ἀκρῶν ἰκθῆσαι
 Ῥηϊδίον δ' ἠπειλα σέλει, χαλεπὴ περ ἔῤῃσα

wou'd

wou'd have its peculiar advantage. And the best Profit shou'd be made of this Arm and Hand at liberty to express either the Disapprobation or the Applause propos'd. It might prove, however, a considerable advantage to our Figure of VIRTUE, if holding the Lance, or Imperial Sword, slightly, with one of her Hands stretch'd downwards, she cou'd, by that very Hand and Action, be made to express the latter meaning; opening for that purpose some of the lower Fingers of this Hand, in a refusing or repelling manner; whilst with the other Arm and Hand at liberty, she shou'd express as well the former meaning, and point out to HERCULES the way which leads to Honour, and the just Glory of heroick actions.

(7.) FROM all these Circumstances of History, and Action, accompanying this important Figure, the difficulty of the Design will sufficiently appear, to those who carry their Judgment beyond the mere Form, and are able to consider the Character of the Passion to which it is subjected. For where a real Character is mark'd, and the inward Form peculiarly describ'd, 'tis necessary the outward shou'd give place. Whoever shou'd expect to see our Figure of VIRTUE, in the exact Mein of a fine Talker, curious in her Choice of Action, and forming it according to the usual Decorum, and regular

Movement of one of the fair Ladys of our Age, wou'd certainly be far wide of the Thought and Genius of this Piece. Such study'd Action and artificial Gesture may be allow'd to the Actors and Actrices of the Stage. But the good Painter must come a little nearer to TRUTH, and take care that his Action be not theatrical, or at secondhand; but original, and drawn from NATURE her-self. Now altho in the ordinary Tenour of Discourse, the Action of the Party might be allow'd to appear so far govern'd and compos'd by Art, as to retain that regular Contraste and nice Balance of Movement which Painters are apt to admire as the chief Grace of Figures; yet in this particular case, where the natural Eagerness of Debate, supported by a thorow Antipathy and Animosity, is join'd to a sort of enthusyastick Agitation incident to our prophetick Dame, there can be little of that fashionable Mein, or genteel Air admitted. The Painter who, in such a Piece as we describe, is bound to preserve the heroick Style, will doubtless beware of representing his Heroine as a mere Scold. Yet this is certain, That it were better for him to expose himself to the Meanness of such a Fancy, and paint his Lady in a high Rant, according to the common Weakness of the Sex, than to engage in the Embelishment of the mere Form; and forgetting the Character of Severity and Reprimand

mand belonging to the illustrious Rival, present her to us a fair specious Personage, free of Emotion, and without the least Bent or Movement which shou'd express the real Pathetick of the kind.

C H A P. IV.

Of the Third Figure.

(1.) CONCERNING PLEASURE there needs little to be said, after what has been already remark'd in relation to the two preceding Figures. The Truth of Appearance, that of History, and even the Decorum itself (according to what has been explain'd above) require evidently that in this Period or Instant describ'd, PLEASURE shou'd be found silent. She can have no other Language allow'd her than that merely of the Eyes. And 'twou'd be a happy Management for her in the Design, if in turning her Eyes to meet those of HERCULES, she shou'd find his Head and Face already turn'd so much on the contrary side, as to shew it impossible for her as yet to discover the growing Passion of this Hero in favour of her Rival. By this means she might still with good right retain her fond Airs of Dalliance and Courtship; as having yet discover'd no reason she has to be dissatisfy'd.

(2.) SHE

(2.) SHE may be drawn either standing, leaning, sitting, or lying; without a Crown, or crown'd either with Roses, or with Myrtle; according to the Painter's Fancy. And since in this third Figure the Painter has so great a liberty left him, he may make good advantage of it for the other two, to which this latter may be subjected, as the last in order, and of least consequence.

(3.) THAT which makes the greatest difficulty in the Disposition or Ordonnance of this Figure PLEASURE, is, that notwithstanding the supine Air and Character of Ease and Indolence, which shou'd be given her, she must retain still so much Life and Action, as is sufficient to express her persuasive Effort, and Manner of Indication towards her proper Paths; those of the flowery kind, and Vale below, whither she wou'd willingly guide our Hero's steps. Now shou'd this Effort be over-strongly express'd; not only the supine Character and Air of Indolence wou'd be lost in this Figure of PLEASURE; but, what is worse, the Figure wou'd seem to speak, or at least appear so, as to create a double Meaning, or equivocal Sense in Painting; which wou'd destroy what we have establish'd as fundamental, concerning the absolute Reign of Silence thro'out the rest of the Piece,

Piece, in favour of VIRTUE, the sole speaking Party at this Instant, or third Period of our History.

(4.) ACCORDING to a Computation, which in this way of Reasoning might be made, of the whole Motion or Action to be given to our Figure of PLEASURE; she shou'd scarce have one fifth reserv'd for that which we may properly call Active in her, and have already term'd her persuasive or indicative Effort. All besides shou'd be employ'd to express (if one may say so) her Inaction, her Supineness, Effeminacy, and indulgent Ease. The Head and Body might intirely favour this latter Passion. One Hand might be absolutely resign'd to it; serving only to support, with much ado, the lolling lazy Body. And if the other Hand be requir'd to express some kind of Gesture or Action toward the Road of Pleasures recommended by this Dame; the Gesture ought however to be slight and negligent, in the manner of one who has given over speaking, and appears weary and spent.

(5.) FOR the Shape, the Person, the Complexion, and what else may be further remark'd as to the Air and Manner of PLEASURE; all this is naturally comprehended in the Opposition, as above stated, between Her-self and VIRTUE.

C H A P. V.

Of the Ornaments of the Piece; and chiefly of the Drapery, and Perspective.

(1.) TIS sufficiently known, how great a liberty Painters are us'd to take, in the colouring of their Habits, and of other Draperys belonging to their historical Pieces. If they are to paint a Roman People, they represent 'em in different Dresses; tho it be certain the common People among 'em were habited very near alike, and much after the same colour. In like manner, the Egyptians, Jews, and other antient Nations, as we may well suppose, bore in this particular their respective Likeness or Resemblance one to another, as at present the Spaniards, Italians, and several other People of Europe. But such a Resemblance as this wou'd, in the way of Painting, produce a very untoward effect; as may easily be conceiv'd. For this reason the Painter makes no scruple to introduce Philosophers, and even Apostles, in various Colours, after a very extraordinary manner. 'Tis here that the historical Truth must of necessity indeed give way to that which we call poetical, as being govern'd not so much by Reality, as by Probability, or plausible Appearance. So that a Painter, who uses his Privilege or Prerogative in this respect, ought however to do it cautiously, and with discretion. And when occasion requires that he shou'd present us his Philosophers or Apostles thus variously colour'd, he must take care at least so to mortify his Colours, that these plain poor Men may not appear, in his Piece, adorn'd like so many Lords or Princes of the modern Garb.

(2.) IF, on the other hand, the Painter shou'd happen to take for his Subject some solemn Entry or Triumph, were, according to the Truth of Faët, all manner of Magnificence had without doubt been actually display'd, and all sorts of bright and dazzling Colours heap'd together and advanc'd, in emulation, one against another; he ought on this occasion, in breach of the historical Truth, or Truth of Faët, to do his utmost to diminish and reduce the excessive Gayety and Splendor of those Objects, which wou'd otherwise raise such a Confusion, Oppugnancy, and Riot of Colours, as wou'd to any judicious Eye appear absolutely intolerable.

(3.) IT becomes therefore an able Painter in this, as well as in the other parts of his Workmanship, to have regard principally, and above all, to the Agreement or Correspondency dency of things. And to that end 'tis necessary he shou'd form in his Mind a certain Note or Character of Unity, which being happily taken, wou'd, out of the many Colours of his piece, produce (if one may say so) a particular distinct Species of an original kind: like those Compositions in Musick, where among the different Airs (such as Sonatas, Entrys, or Sarabands,) there are different and distinct Species; of which we may say in particular, as to each, " That it has its own proper Character or Genius, peculiar to it-self".

(4.) THUS the Harmony of Painting requires, " That in whatever Key the Painter begins his Piece, he shou'd be sure to finish " it in the same."

(5.) THIS Regulation turns on the principal Figure, or on the two or three which are eminent, in a Tablature compos'd of many. For if the Painter happens to give a certain Height or Richness of colouring to his principal Figure; the rest must in proportion necessarily partake this Genius. But if, on the contrary, the Painter shou'd have chanc'd to give a softer Air, with more Gentleness and Simplicity of colouring, to his principal Figure; the rest must bear a Character proportionable, and appear in an extraordinary Simplicity;

plicity; that one and the same Spirit may, without contest, reign thro' the whole of his Design.

(6.) OUR Historical Draught of HERCULES will afford us a very clear example in the case. For considering that the Hero is to appear on this occasion retir'd and gloomy; being withal in a manner naked, and without any other Covering than a Lion's Skin, which is it-self of a yellow and dusky colour; it wou'd be really impracticable for a Painter to represent this principal Figure in any extraordinary brightness or lustre. From whence it follows, that in the other inferior Figures or subordinate parts of the Work, the Painter must necessarily make use of such still quiet Colours, as may give to the whole Piece a Character of Solemnity and Simplicity, agreeable with it-self. Now shou'd our Painter honestly go about to follow his Historian, according to the literal Sense of the History, which represents VIRTUE to us in a resplendent Robe of the purest and most glossy White; 'tis evident he must after this manner destroy his Piece. The good Painter in this, as in all other occasions of like nature, must do as the good Poet; who undertaking to treat some common and known Subject, refuses however to follow strictly, like a mere Copyist or Translator, any preceding Poet et or Historian ; but so orders it, that his Work in it-self becomes really new and original.

* *Publica materies privati juris erit, si
Nec circa vilem patulumque moraberis orbem ;
Nec verbum verbo curabis reddere fidus Interpres.*

(7.) As for what relates to the Perspective or Scene of our historical Piece, it ought so to present it-self, as to make us instantly conceive that 'tis in the Country, and in a place of Retirement, near some Wood or Forest, that this whole Action passes. For 'twou'd be impertinent to bring Architecture or Buildings of whatever kind in view, as tokens of Company, Diversion, or Affairs, in a place purposely chosen to denote Solitude, Thoughtfulness, and premeditated Retreat. Besides, that according to the Poets (our Guides and Masters in this Art) neither the Goddesses, nor other divine Forms of whatever kind, car'd ever to present themselves to human Sight, elsewhere than in these deep Recesses. And 'tis worth observing here, how particularly our philosophical Historian affects to speak, by way of prevention, of the solitary place where HERCULES was retir'd, and of his Thoughtfulness preceding this Apparition : which from these Circumstances may be contru'd hence-forward as a mere Dream; but as such, a truly rational, and divine one.

^v Horat. de Art. Poet. ver. 131.

(8.) AS to the Fortrefs, Temple, or Palace, of VIRTUE, situated on a Mountain, after the emblematical way; as we see represented in some Pieces form'd upon this Subject; there is nothing of this kind exprefs'd by our Historian. And shou'd this or any thing of a like nature present it-self in our design, it wou'd fill the Mind with foreign Fancys, and mysterious Views, no way agreeable to the Taste and Genius of this Piece. Nor is there any thing, at the same time, on PLEASURE's side, to answer, by way of opposition, to this Palace of VIRTUE; which, if exprefs'd, wou'd on this account destroy the just Simplicity and Correspondency of our Work.

(9.) ANOTHER Reason against the Perspective-part, the Architecture, or other study'd Ornaments of the Landskip-kind, in this particular Piece of ours, is, That in reality there being no occasion for these Apppearances, they wou'd prove a mere Incumbrance to the Eye, and wou'd of necessity disturb the Sight, by diverting it from that which is principal, the History and Faël. Whatsoever appears in a historical Design, which is not essential to the Action, serves only to confound the Representation, and perplex the Mind:

more particularly, if these Episodick parts are so lively wrought, as to vie with the principal Subject, and contend for Precedency with the Figures and human Life. A just Design, or Tablature, shou'd, at first view, discover, What Nature it is design'd to imitate; what Life, whether of the higher or lower kind, it aims chiefly to represent. The Piece must by no means be equivocal or dubious; but must with ease distinguish it-self, either as historical and moral, or as perspective and merely natural. If it be the latter of these Beautys, which we desire to see delineated according to its perfection, then the former must give place. The higher Life must be allay'd, and in a manner discountenanc'd and obscur'd; whilst the lower displays it-self, and is exhibited as principal. Even that which according to a Term of Art we commonly call Still-Life, and is in reality of the last and lowest degree of Painting, must have its Superiority and just Preference in a Tablature of its own Species. 'Tis the same in Animal-Picces; where Beasts, or Fowl are represented. In Landskip, Inanimates are principal: 'Tis the Earth, the Water, the Stones and Rocks which live. All other Life becomes subordinate. Humanity, Sense, Manners, must in this place yield, and become inferior. 'Twou'd be a fault even to aim at the Expression of any real Beauty in this kind, or go about to animate or heighten in any considerable degree the accompanying Figures of Men, or Deitys which are accidentally introduc'd, as Appendices, or Ornaments, in such a Piece. But if, on the contrary, the human Species be that which first presents it-self in a Picture; if it be the intelligent Life, which is set to view; 'tis the other Species, the other Life, which must then surrender and become subservient. The merely natural must pay homage to the historical or moral. Every Beauty, every Grace must be sacrific'd to the real BEAUTY of this first and highest Order. For nothing can be more deform'd than a Confusion of many Beautys: And the Confusion becomes inevitable, where the Subjection is not compleat.
in

(10.) BY the word MORAL are understood, in this place, all Sorts of judicious Representations of the human Passions; as we see even in Battel-Pieces; excepting those of distant Figures, and the diminutive kind; which may rather be consider'd as a sort of Landskip. In all other martial Pieces, we see express'd in lively Action, the several degrees of Valor, Magnanimity, Cowardice, Terror, Anger, according to the several Characters of Nations, and particular Men. 'Tis here that we may see Heroes and Chiefs (such as the ALEXANDERS or CONSTANTINES) appear, even in the hottest of the Action, tion, with a Tranquillity and Sedateness of Mind peculiar to themselves: which is, indeed, in a direct and proper sense, profoundly moral.

(11.) BUT as the Moral part is differently treated in a Poem, from what it is in History, or in a philosophical Work; so must it, of right, in Painting be far differently treated, from what it naturally is, either in the History, or Poem. For want of a right understanding of this Maxim, it often happens that by endeavouring to render a Piece highly moral and learned, it becomes thorowly ridiculous and impertinent.

(12.) FOR the ordinary Works of SCULPTURE, such as the Low-Relieves, and Ornaments of Columns and Edifices, great allowance is made. The very Rules of Perspective are here wholly revers'd, as necessity requires, and are accommodated to the Circumstance and Genius of the Place or Building, according to a certain OEconomy or Order of a particular and distinct kind; as will easily be observ'd by those who have thorowly study'd the TRAJAN and ANTONINUS-Pillars, and other Relieve-Works of the Antients. In the same manner, as to Pieces of engrav'd Work, Medals, or whatever shews it-self in one Substance (as Brass or Stone) or only by Shade and Light (as in ordinary Drawings, Drawings, or Stamps) much also is allow'd, and many things admitted, of the fantastick, miraculous, or hyperbolical kind. 'Tis here, that we have free scope, withal, for whatever is learned, emblematical, or enigmatical. But for the compleatly imitative and illusive Art of PAINTING, whose Character it is to employ in her Works the united Force of different Colours; and, who surpassing by so many Degrees, and in so many Privileges, all other human Fiction, or imitative Art, aspires in a directer manner towards Deceit, and a Command over our very Sense; she must of necessity abandon whatever is over-learned, humorous, or witty; to maintain her-self in what is natural, credible, and winning of our Assent: that she may thus acquit her-self of what is her chief Province, the specious Appearance of the Object she represents. Otherwise we shall naturally bring against her the just Criticism of HORACE, on the scenical Representation so nearly ally'd to her:

Quodcumque ostendis mihi sic, incredulus odi.

(13.) WE are therefore to consider this as a sure Maxim or Observation in Painting,
 “ That a historical and moral Piece must of ne“ cessity lose much of its natural Simplicity
 “ and Grace, if any thing of the emblematical or “ enigmatical kind be visibly and directly inter-
 “ mix'd.”

“mix’d.” As if, for instance, the Circle of the * Zodiack, with its twelve Signs, were introduc’d. Now this being an Appearance which carries not any matter of similitude or colourable resemblance to any thing extant in real Nature; it cannot possibly pretend to win the Sense, or gain Belief, by the help of any poetical Enthusiasm, religious History, or Faith. For by means of these, indeed, we are easily induc’d to contemplate as Realitys those divine Personages and miraculous Forms, which the leading Painters, antient and modern, have speciously design’d, according to the particular Doctrine or Theology of their several religious and national Beliefs. But for our Tablature in particular, it carries nothing with it of the mere emblematical or enigmatical kind: since for what relates to the double Way of the Vale and Mountain, this may naturally and with colourable appearance be represented at the Mountain’s foot. But if on the Summit or highest Point of it, we shou’d place the Fortrefs, or Palace of Virtue, rising above the Clouds, this wou’d immediately give the enigmatical mysterious Air to our Picture, and of necessity destroy its persuasive Simplicity, and natural Appearance.

* This is what RAPHAEL himself has done, in his famous Design of The Judgment of PARIS. But this Piece having never been painted, but design’d only for MARG ANTONIO’s engraving, it comes not within our Censure; as appears by what is said in the Paragraph just preceding.

(14.) In short, we are to carry this Remembrance still along with us, “ That the fewer
 “ the Objects are, besides those which are ab“ solutely necessary in a Piece, the easier it “ is for the Eye, by one simple Act and in one “ View, to comprehend the Sum or Whole.”
 The multiplication of Subjects, tho’ subaltern, renders the Subordination more difficult to execute in the Ordonnance or Composition of a Work. And if the Subordination be not perfect, the Order (which makes the Beauty) remains imperfect. Now the Subordination can never be perfect, except “ * When the Or“ donnance is such, that the Eye not only “ runs over with ease the several Parts of the “ Design, (reducing still its View each moment
 “ on the principal Subject on which all turns)
 “ but when the same Eye, without the least “ detainment in any of the particular Parts,
 “ and resting, as it were, immovable in the “ middle, or center of the Tablature, may “ see at once, in an agreeable and perfect
 “ Correspondency, all which is there exhi“ bited to the Sight.”

* This is what the Grecian Masters so happily express’d, by the single word Ἐπισύνοπλον. See VOL. I. pag. 143, &c.

C A H P. VI.

Of the Casual or Independent Ornaments.

(1.) TH E R E remains for us now to consider only of the separate Ornaments, independent both of Figures and Perspective; such as the * Machine-Work or Divinity in the Sky, the Winds, Cupids, Birds, Animals, Dogs, or other loose Pieces which are introduc'd without any absolute necessity, and in a way of Humour. But as these belong chiefly to the ordinary Life, and to the comick or mix'd kind; our Tablature, which on the contrary is wholly epick, heroick, and in the tragick Style, wou'd not so easily admit of any thing in this light way.

(2.) W E may besides consider, that whereas the Mind is naturally led to fancy Mystery in a Work of such a Genius or Style of Painting as ours, and to confound with each other the two distinct kinds of the emblematick and merely historical or poetick; we shou'd take care not to afford it this occasion of Error and Deviation, by introducing into a Piece of so uniform a Design, such Appendices, or supplementary Parts, as, under pretext of giving light to the History, or characterizing the Figures, shou'd serve only to distract or dissipate the Sight, and confound the Judgment of the more intelligent Spectators.

* This is understood of the Machine-Work, when it is merely ornamental, and not essential in the Piece; by making part of the History, or Fable it-self.

(3.) “WILL it then, says one, be possible “to make out the Story of these two Dames
 “in company with HERCULES, without other“wise distinguishing them than as above de“scrib'd?”——We answer, it is possible; and not that only, but certain and infallible, in the case of one who has the least Genius, or has ever heard in general concerning HER- CULES, without so much as having ever heard this History in particular. But if notwithstanding this, we wou'd needs add some exterior marks, more declaratory and determinative of these two Personages, VIRTUE and PLEASURE; it may be perform'd, however, without any necessary recourse to what is absolutely of the Emblem-kind. The Manner of this may be explain'd as follows.

(4.) THE Energy or natural Force of Vir- tue, according to the moral Philosophy of highest note among the Antients, was express'd in
 the

the double effect of * Forbearance and Indurance, or what we may otherwise call Refrainment and Support. For the former, the Bit or Bridle, plac'd somewhere on the side of Virtue, may serve as Emblem sufficient; and for the second, the Helmet may serve in the same manner; especially since they are each of them Appurtenances essential to Heroes (who, in the quality of Warriors, were also Subduers or † Managers of Horses) and that at the same time these are really portable Instruments, such as the martial Dame; who represents Virtue, may be well suppos'd to have brought along with her.

(5.) ON the side of PLEASURE, certain Vases, and other Pieces of imboss'd Plate, wrought in the figures of Satyrs, Fauns, and Bacchanals, may serve to express the Debauches of the Table-kind. And certain Draperys thrown carelessly on the ground, and hung upon a neighbouring Tree, forming a kind of Bower and Couch for this luxurious Dame, may serve sufficiently to suggest the Thought of other Indulgences, and to support the Image of the effeminate, indolent, and amorous Passions.

* Καθάρια, Ἐπιγαλῖα: They were describ'd as Sisters in the emblematick Moral Philosophy of the Antients. Whence that known Precept, Ἀνίχνος καὶ Ἀπίχνος, SUSLINE & ABSTINE.

† CASTOR, POLLUX; all the Heroes of HOMER; ALEXANDER the Great, &c.

Besides

Besides that for this latter kind, we may rest satisfy'd, 'tis what the Painter will hardly fail of representing to the full. The fear is, lest he shou'd ever do this part, and express the affection too much to the life. The Appearance will, no doubt be strongly wrought in all the Features and Proportions of this third Figure: which is of a relish far more popular, and vulgarly ingaging, than that other oppos'd to it, in our historical Design.

C O N C L U S I O N.

(1.) WE may conclude this Argument with a general Reflection, which seems to arise naturally from what has been said on this Subject in particular; "That in a real History-Painter, the same Knowledge, the same Study, and Views, are requir'd, as in a real Poet." Never can the Poet (whilst he justly holds that name) become a Relator, or Historian at large. He is allow'd only to describe a single Action; not the Actions of a single Man, or People. The Painter is a Historian at the same rate, but still more narrowly confin'd, as in fact appears; since it wou'd certainly prove a more ridiculous Attempt to comprehend two or three distinct Actions or parts of History in one

one Picture, than to comprehend ten times the number in one and the same Poem.

(2.) 'TIS well known, that to each Species of Poetry, there are natural Proportions and Limits assign'd. And it wou'd be a gross Abfurdity indeed to imagine, that in a Poem there was nothing which we cou'd call Measure or Number, except merely in the Verfe. An Elegy, and an Epigram have each of 'em their Measure, and Proportion, as well as a Tragedy, or Epick Poem. In the same manner, as to Painting, Sculpture, or Statuary, there are particular Measures which form what we call a Piece: as for instance, in mere Portraiture, a Head, or Bust: the former of which must retain always the whole, or at least a certain part of the Neck; as the latter the Shoulders, and a certain part of the Breast. If any thing be added or retrench'd, the Piece is destroy'd. 'Tis then a mangled Trunk, or dismember'd Body, which presents it-self to our Imagination; and this too not thro' use merely, or on the account of custom, but of necessity, and by the nature of the Appearance: since there are such and such parts of the human Body, which are naturally match'd, and must appear in company: the Section, if unskillfully made, being in reality horrid, and representing rather an Amputation in Surgery, than a seemly Division sion or Separation according to Art. And thus it is, that in general, thro' all the plattick Arts, or Works of Imitation, "Whatsoever is drawn " from Nature, with the intention of raising

 " in us the Imagination of natural Spe" cies or Object, according to real Beauty
 " and Truth, shou'd be compriz'd in certain
 " compleat Portions, or Districts, which repre" sent the Correspondency or Union of each
 " part of Nature, with intire NATURE her-self." And 'tis this natural Apprehension, or anticipating Sense of Unity, which makes us give even to the Works of our inferior Artizans, the name of Pieces by way of Excellence, and as denoting the Justness and Truth of Work.

(3.) IN order therefore to succeed rightly in the Formation of any thing truly beautiful in this higher Order of design; 'twere to be wish'd that the Artist, who had Understanding enough to comprehend what a real Piece or Tablature imported, and who, in order to this, had acquir'd the Knowledge of a Whole and Parts, wou'd afterwards apply himself to the Study of moral and poetick Truth: that by this means the Thoughts, Sentiments, or Manners, which hold the first rank in his historical Work, might appear suitable to the higher and nobler Species of Humanity in which he practis'd, to the Genius of the Age which he describ'd, scrib'd, and to the principal or main Action which he chose to represent. He wou'd then naturally learn to reject those false Ornaments of affected Graces, exaggerated Passions, hyperbolic and prodigious Forms; which equally with the mere capricious and grotesque, destroy the just Simplicity and Unity, essential in a PIECE. And for his Colouring; he wou'd then soon find how much it became him to be reserv'd, severe, and chaste, in this particular of his Art; where Luxury and Libertinism are, by the power of Fashion and the modern Taste, become so universally establish'd.

(4.) 'Tis evident however from Reason itself, as well as from * History and Experience, that nothing is more fatal, either to Painting, Architecture, or the other Arts, than this false Relish, which is govern'd rather by what immediately strikes the Sense, than by what consequentially and by reflection pleases the Mind, and satisfys the Thought and Reason. So that whilst we look on Painting with the same Eye, as we view commonly the rich Stuffs, and colour'd Silks worn by our Ladys, and admir'd in Dress, Equipage, or Furniture; we must of necessity be effeminate in our Taste, and utterly fet wrong as to all Judgment and Knowledge in the kind. For of this imitative Art we may justly say; “ That tho It borrows “ help indeed from Colours, and uses them,

* See VITRUVIUS and PLINY.

 “ as means, to execute its Designs; It has no“ thing, however, more wide of its real Aim,
 “ or more remote from its Intention, than to “ make a shew of Colours, or from their mix“ ture, to raise a * separate and flattering Plea“ sure to the SENSE.”

* The Pleasure is plainly foreign and separate, as having no concern or share in the proper Delight or Entertainment which naturally arises from the Subject, and Workmanship it-self. For the Subject, in respect of Pleasure, as well as Science, is absolutely compleated, when the Design is executed, and the propos'd Imitation once accomplish'd. And thus it always is the best, when the Colours are most subdu'd, and made subservient.

The End of the Third Volume.

A

L E T T E R

CONCERNING THE

ART, OR SCIENCE

O F

D E S I G N,

Written from ITALY, on the Occasion of

The Judgment of HERCULES,

T O

M Y L O R D * * * *

—————Ante omnia Musæ.

Virg. Georg. Lib. ii.

VOL. III.

* B b

A
 L E T T E R
 CONCERNING
 D E S I G N.

MY LORD,

THIS Letter comes to your Lordship, accompany'd with a small Writing intituled A NOTION: for such alone can that Piece deservedly be call'd, which aspires no higher than to the forming of a Project, and that too in so vulgar a Science as Painting. But whatever the Subject be, if it can prove any way entertaining to you, it will sufficiently answer my Design. And if possibly it may have that good success, I shou'd have no ordinary opinion of my Project; since I know how hard it wou'd be to give your Lordship a real Entertainment of any thing which was not in some respect worthy and useful.

* B 2

ON

ON this account I must, by way of prevention, inform your Lordship, that after I had conceived my NOTION such as you see it upon paper, I was not contented with this, but fell directly to work; and by the Hand of a Master-Painter brought it into Practice, and form'd a real Design. This was not enough. I resolv'd afterwards to see what effect it wou'd have, when taken out of mere Black-and-White, into Colours: And thus a Sketch was afterwards drawn. This pleas'd so well, that being encourag'd by the Virtuosi, who are so eminent in this part of the World, I resolv'd at last to engage my Painter in the great Work. Immediately a Cloth was bespoke of a suitable Dimension, and the Figures taken as big or bigger than the common Life; the Subject being of the Heroick kind; and requiring rather such Figures as shou'd appear above ordinary human Stature.

THUS my NOTION, as light as it may prove in the Treatise, is become very substantial in the Workmanship. The Piece is still in hand; and like to continue so for some time. Otherwise the first Draught or Design shou'd have accompany'd the Treatise; as the Treatise does this Letter. But the Design having grown thus into a Sketch, and the Sketch afterwards

terwards into a Picture; I thought it fit your Lordship shou'd either see the several Pieces together, or be troubled only with that which was the best; as undoubtedly the great one must prove, if the Master I employ sinks not very much below himself, in this Performance.

FAR surely shou'd I be, my Lord, from conceiving any Vanity or Pride in Amusements of such an inferior kind as these; especially were they such as they may naturally at first sight appear. I pretend not here to apologize either for them, or for my-self. Your Lordship however knows, I have naturally Ambition enough to make me desirous of employing myself in Business of a higher Order: since it has been my fortune in publick Affairs to act often in concert with you, and in the same Views, on the Interest of EUROPE and Mankind. There was a Time, and that a very early one of my Life, when I was not wanting to my Country, in this respect. But after some years of hearty Labour and Pains in this kind of Workmanship, an unhappy Breach in my Health drove me not only from the Seat of Business, but forc'd me to seek these foreign Climates; where, as mild as the Winters generally are, I have with much ado liv'd out this latter-one; and am now, as your Lordship finds, employing my-self in such easy Study as are most futable to my state of Health, and to the Genius of the Country where I am confin'd.

THIS in the mean time I can, with some assurance say to your Lordship in a kind of spirit of Prophecy, from what I have observ'd of the rising Genius of our Nation, That if we live to see a Peace any way answerable to that generous Spirit with which this War was begun, and carry'd on, for our own Liberty and that of EUROPE; the Figure we are like to make abroad, and the Increase of Knowledge, Industry and Sense at home, will render united BRITAIN the principal Seat of Arts; and by her Politeness and Advantages in this kind, will shew evidently, how much she owes to those Counsels, which taught her to exert her-self so resolutely in behalf of the common Cause, and that of her own Liberty, and happy Constitution, necessarily included.

I CAN my-self remember the Time, when, in respect of MUSICK, our reigning Taste was in many degrees inferior to the French. The long Reign of Luxury and Pleasure under King CHARLES the Second, and the foreign Helps and study'd Advantages given to Musick in a following Reign, cou'd not raise our Genius
the

the least in this respect. But when the Spirit of the Nation was grown more free, tho' engag'd at that time in the fiercest War, and with the most doubtful Success, we no sooner began to turn our-selves towards Musick, and enquire what ITALY in particular produc'd, than in an instant we outstrip'd our Neighbours the FRENCH, enter'd into a Genius far beyond theirs, and rais'd our-selves an Ear, and Judgment, not inferior to the best now in the World.

IN the same manner, as to PAINTING. Tho' we have as yet nothing of our own native Growth in this kind worthy of being mention'd; yet since the Publick has of late begun to express a Relish for Ingravings, Drawings, Copyings, and for the original Paintings of the chief Italian Schools, (so contrary to the modern French) I doubt not that, in very few years we shall make an equal progress in this other Science. And when our Humour turns us to cultivate these designing Arts, our Genius, I am perswaded, will naturally carry us over the slighter Amusements, and lead us to that higher, more serious, and noble Part of Imitation, which relates to History, Human Nature, and the chief Degree or Order of BEAUTY; I mean that of the rational Life, distinct from the merely vegetable and sensible, as in Animals, or Plants; according to those several Degrees or Orders of Painting, which your Lordship will find suggested in this extemporary Notion I have sent you.

As for ARCHITECTURE, 'tis no wonder if so many noble Designs of this kind have miscarry'd amongst us; since the Genius of our Nation has hitherto been so little turn'd this way, that thro' several Reigns we have patiently seen the noblest publick Buildings perish (if I may say so) under the Hand of one single Court-Architect; who, if he had been able to profit by Experience, wou'd long since, at our expence, have prov'd the greatest Master in the World. But I question whether our Patience is like to hold much longer. The Devastation so long committed in this kind, has made us begin to grow rude and clamorous at the hearing of a new Palace spoilt, or a new Design committed to some rash or impotent Pretender.

'Tis the good Fate of our Nation in this particular, that there remain yet two of the noblest Subjects for Architecture; our Prince's Palace, and our House of Parliament. For I can't but fancy that when Whitehall is thought of, the neighbouring Lords and Commons will at the same time be plac'd in better Chambers and Apartments, than at present; were it only for Majesty's sake, and as a Magnificence becoming the person of the Prince, who here appears in full Solemnity. Nor do I fear that when these new Subjects are attempted, we shou'd miscarry as grossly as we have done in others before. Our State, in this respect, may prove perhaps more fortunate than our Church, in having waited till a national Taste was form'd, before these Edifices were undertaken. But the Zeal of the Nation cou'd not, it seems, admit so long a Delay in their Ecclesiastical Structures, particularly their Metropolitan. And since a Zeal of this sort has been newly kindled amongst us, 'tis like we shall see from a far the many Spires arising in our great City, with such hasty and sudden growth, as may be the occasion perhaps that our immediate Relish shall be hereafter censur'd, as retaining much of what Artists call the Gothick Kind.
the

HARDLY, indeed, as the Publick now stands, shou'd we bear to see a Whitehall treated like a Hampton-Court, or even a new Cathedral like St. PAUL's. Almost every-one now becomes concern'd, and interests himself in such publick Structures. Even those Pieces too are brought under the common Censure, which, tho' rais'd by private Men, are of such a Grandure and Magnificence, as to become National Ornaments. The ordinary Man may build his Cottage, or the plain Gentleman his Country-house according as he fancies: but when a great Man builds, he will find little Quarter from the Publick, if instead of a beautiful Pile, he raises, at a vast expence, such a false and counterfeit Piece of Magnificence, as can be justly arraign'd for its Deformity by so many knowing Men in Art, and by the whole People, who, in such a Conjunction readily follow their Opinion.

IN reality the People are no small Partys in this Cause. Nothing moves successfully without 'em. There can be no PUBLICK, but where they are included. And without a Publick Voice, knowingly guided and directed, there is nothing which can raise a true Ambition in the Artist; nothing which can exalt the Genius of the Workman, or make him emulous of after-Fame, and of the approbation of his Country, and of Posterity. For with these he naturally, as a Freeman, must take part: in these he has a passionate Concern, and Interest, rais'd in him by the same Genius of Liberty, the same Laws and Government, by which his Property, and the Rewards of his Pains and Industry are secur'd to him, and to his Generation after him.

EVERY

EVERY thing co-operates, in such a State, towards the Improvement of Art and Science. And for the designing Arts in particular, such as Architecture, Painting, and Statuary, they are in a manner link'd together. The Taste of one kind brings necessarily that of the others along with it. When the free Spirit of a Nation turns it-self this way, Judgments are form'd; Criticks arife; the publick Eye and Ear improve; a right Taste prevails, and in a manner forces its way. Nothing is so improving, nothing so natural, so con-genial to the liberal Arts, as that reigning Liberty and high Spirit of a People, which from the Habit of judging in the highest Matters for themselves, makes 'em freely judge of other Subjects, and enter thorowly into the Characters as well of Men and Manners, as of the Produëts or Works of Men, in Art and Science. So much, my Lord, do we owe to the Excellence of our National Constitution, and Legal Monarchy; happily fitted for Us, and which alone cou'd hold together so mighty a People; all sharers (tho at so far a distance from each other) in the Government of themselves; and meeting under one Head in one vast Metropolis; whose enormous Growth, however censurable in other respects, is actually a Cause that Workmanship and Arts

Arts of fo many kinds arife to fuch perfection.

WHAT Encouragement our higher Powers may think fit to give thefe growing Arts, I will not pretend to guefs. This I know, that 'tis fo much for their advantage and Intereft to make themfelves the chief Partys in the Caufe, that I wifh no Court or Miniftry, befides a truly virtuous and wife one, may ever concern themfelves in the Affair. For fhould they do fo, they would in reality do more harm than good; fince 'tis not the Nature of a Court (fuch as Courts generally are) to improve, but rather corrupt a Tafte. And what is in the beginning fet wrong by their Example, is hardly ever afterwards recoverable in the Genius of a Nation.

CONTENT therefore I am, my Lord, that BRITAIN ftands in this refpect as fhe now does. Nor can one, methinks, with juft reafon regret her having hitherto made no greater advancement in thefe affairs of Art. As her Conftitution has grown, and been eftablifh'd, fhe has in proportion fitted her-felf for other Improvements. There has been no Anticipation in the Cafe. And in this furely fhe muft be efteem'd wife, as well as happy; that ere fhe attempted to raife her-felf any other
Tafte

Taste or Relish, she secur'd her-self a right one in Government. She has now the advantage of beginning in other Matters, on a new foot. She has her Models yet to seek, her Scale and Standard to form, with deliberation and good choice. Able enough she is at present to shift for her-self; however abandon'd or helpless she has been left by those whom it became to assist her. Hardly, indeed cou'd she procure a single Academy for the training of her Youth in Exercises. As good Soldiers as we are, and as good Horses as our Climate affords, our Princes, rather than expend their Treasure this way, have suffer'd our Youth to pass into a foreign Nation, to learn to ride. As for other Academys, such as those for Painting, Sculpture, or Architecture, we have not so much as heard of the Proposal; whilst the Prince of our rival Nation raises Academys, breeds Youth, and sends Rewards and Pensions into foreign Countries, to advance the Interest and Credit of his own. Now if, notwithstanding the Industry and Pains of this foreign Court, and the supine Un-concernedness of our own, the National Taste however rises, and already shews it-self in many respects beyond that of our so highly-assisted Neighbours; what greater Proof can there be of the Superiority of Genius in one of these Nations above the other?

'Tis

'TIS but this moment that I chance to read in an Article of one of the Gazettes from P A R I S, that 'tis resolv'd at Court to establish a new Academy for political Affairs. “ In it the “ present Chief-Minister is to preside; having “ under him six Academists, douëz des Talens “ nécessaries——No Person to be receiv'd under “ the age of twenty five. A thousand Livres “ Pension for each Scholar——Able Masters “ to be appointed for teaching them the ne- “ cessary Sciences, and instructing them in “ the Treatys of Peace and Alliances, which “ have been formerly made——The Members “ to assemble three times a Week—— C'est de “ ce Seminaire (says the Writer) qu'on tirera les “ Secretaires d'Ambassade; qui par degrez pour- “ ront monter à de plus hauts Emplois.”

I MUST confess, my Lord, as great an Ad- mirer as I am of these regular Institutions, I can't but look upon an Academy for Ministers as a very extraordinary Establishment; especially in such a Monarchy as FRANCE, and at such a Conjunction as the present. It looks as if the Ministers of that Court had discover'd lately some new Methods of Negotiation, such as their Predecessors RICHELIEU and MAZARINE never thought of; or that, on the con- trary, trary, they have found themselves so declin'd, and at such a loss in the Management of this present Treaty, as to be forc'd to take their Lesson from some of those Ministers with whom they treat: a Reproach, of which, no doubt, they must be highly sensible.

BUT 'tis not my design here, to entertain your Lordship with any Reflections upon Politicks, or the Methods which the FRENCH may take to raise themselves new Ministers, or new Generals; who may prove a better Match for us than hitherto, whilst we held our old. I will only say to your Lordship on this Subject of Academys; that indeed I have less concern for the Deficiency of such a one as this, than of any other which cou'd be thought of, for ENGLAND; and that as for a Seminary of Statesmen, I doubt not but, without this extraordinary help, we shall be able, out of our old Stock, and the common course of Business, constantly to furnish a sufficient Number of well-qualify'd Persons to serve upon occasion, either at home, or in our foreign Treatys; as often as such Persons accordingly qualify'd shall duly, honestly, and bona fide be requir'd to serve.

I RETURN therefore to my Virtuoso-Science; which being my chief Amusement in this Place and Circumstance, your Lordship has by it a fresh Instance that I can never employ my Thoughts with satisfaction on any Subject, without making you a Party. For even this very NOTION had its rise chiefly from the Conversation of a certain Day, which I had the happiness to pass a few years since in the Country with your Lordship. 'Twas there you shew'd me some Ingravings, which had been sent you from ITALY. One in particular I well remember; of which the Subject was the very same with that of my written NOTION inclos'd. But by what Hand it was done, or after what Master, or how executed, I have quite forgot. 'Twas the Summer-season, when you had Recess from Business. And I have accordingly calculated this Epistle and Project for the same Recess and Leisure. For by the time this can reach ENGLAND, the Spring will be far advanc'd, and the national Affairs in a manner over, with those who are not in the immediate Administration.

WERE that indeed your Lordship's Lot, at present; I know not whether in regard to my Country I shou'd dare throw such Amusements as these in your way. Yet even in this Case, I wou'd venture to say however, in defence of my Project, and of the Cause of Painting; that cou'd my young Hero come to your Lordship as well represented as he might have been, either by the Hand of a * MARAT or a JORDANO, (the Masters who were in being, and in repute, when I first travel'd here in ITALY) the Picture it-self, whatever the Treatise prov'd, wou'd have been worth notice, and might have become a Present worthy of our Court and Prince's Palace; especially were it so blest'd as to lodge within it a royal Issue of her Majesty's. Such a Piece of Furniture might well fit the Gallery, or Hall of Exercises, where our young Princes shou'd learn their usual Lessons. And to see VIRTUE in this Garb and Action, might perhaps be no slight Memorandum hereafter to a Royal Youth, who shou'd one day come to undergo this Trial himself; on which his own Happiness, as well as the Fate of EUROPE and of the World, wou'd in so great a measure depend.
this

THIS, my Lord, is making (as you see) the most I can of my Project, and setting off

* Carlo Marat was yet alive, at the time when this Letter was written; but had long been super-annuated, and incapable of any considerable Performance.

410 A L E T T E R, &c.

my Amusements with the best Colour I am able; that I may be the more excusable in communicating them to your Lordship, and expressing thus, with what Zeal I am,

MY LORD,

Your Lordship's

Naples, March 6.
N. S. 1712.

most faithful

humble Servant,

SHAFTESBURY.

I N D E X.

[N. B. The Letters shew the Volume:
The Figures, the Pages of each.]

A.

- ABRAMHAM (Patriarch) his Character and Life. Vol. iii. pag. 52, 53, 124
- Absolute Power.* See Arbitrary.
- Absolute Princes.* i. 203. Seem to act by Counsel and Advice. i. 210, 211. Their Education and Manners. ibid. No real Society in Absolute Government. i. 105, 106. No Publick, or Sense of publick Good. 107. No social or common Affection. ibid. No Community or Mother-Country. iii. 143 Absolute Monarchy, debauching in religious and moral Principles. i. 107. iii. 310, 311. Necessary Subjection and Homage in Absolute Government. i. 219. iii. 172
- Academick Philosophy.* i. 18, 253. Its Excellency. i. 81, 256. ii. 189, 191, 230, 231, &c. 305, 6. See Sceptick.
- Academick Founder and Successor.* ii. 253, 4
- Academick Discipline amongst the Antients* i. 122. ii. 191
- Academists: their way of arguing unsutable to the impatient Humour of our Age.* ii. 189, 191
- Academys for Exercise, wanted for our Youth Unhappily neglected.* i. 333, 334. See Exercises, School, Univerlity.
- ACTEON: a common Absurdity in the Pictures of his Metamorphosis. iii. 357
- Actions: Spring of Actions.* ii. 86
- Activity, or Action, how necessary to Mankind.* ii. 131, 132
- ACTOR (Stage) i. 7
- In the Publick. i. 8
- Admiration. Weakness of the Passion.* i. 144, 5, 6, 7, &c. ii. 324, 325, 6, &c. See Miracle, Wonder.
- Just Admiration.* ii. 29
- Admiration founded in the natural and necessary Imagination of a sublime and beautiful in things.* i. 138, 139, 336 337. ii. 28, 29, 30, 394, 420, 421, 429, 430. iii. 30, 31, 2, 3, &c. 182, 3, 4, 5, 6
- V O L. III. C c Admiration.

I N D E X.

- Admiration. Motive, or Incentive to Philosophy. iii. 37. Restraint of it in Philosophy. iii. 35, 36, 37, 202, 203
- Admiration, a strong one, distinguish'd from that of Love. iii. 359
- Advice. See Treatise of: viz. Vol. I. 153, 154, &c.
- ÆGYPT. Its Description, ii. 386. Origin and enormous Growth of Superstition from ÆGYPT. ii. 387, 388. iii. 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, &c. Natural as well as Political Causes. iii. 45, 46. Unsociableness of Religion, mutual Abhorrence of Worshipers, and Persecution of Sects begun from hence. ii. 387, 388. iii. 42, 59, 60, 61, 62, 80, 81, 82, &c. Unhappy Settlement, Government and Agrarian of the primitive Ægyptians. iii. 42, 43, 4, 5, 6, &c. Ægyptian Mysterys. iii. 245. See Hierarchy, Priethood.
- Ægyptian Loan. i. 358. Catechism and Catechumens originally Ægyptian. iii. 245. See Circumcision.
- ÆTHIOPIA. Its Empire and Priesthood. iii. 48, 49. Æthiopian Spectator. i. 82, 83, 85
- Affectation in Behaviour opposite to Grace. i. 190
- Affectation in Belief, Faith, Religion, Praise. i. 6, 7, 34, 35, 36, 41, &c.
- Affection: Natural Affection towards Moral Beauty. i. 280, 281
- Social Affection: Enjoyment.* i. 310, 311. Social Affection confes'd in Love of Country, &c. iii. 143, 144, 5, 6, 7, &c. In Parental, Filial Affection. iii. 145. Strength of Social Affection. i. 16. Conjugal Affection. ii. 132. iii. 219
- 'Tis by Affection merely that a Creature is esteem'd good or ill.* ii. 21, 22
- Private or Self-Affection.* ii. 22. When vicious. ii. 22, 23, 24, 25. When good. ii. 23, 24
- Reflex Affection.* ii. 28. Unequal Affection, or Iniquity. ii. 31.
- Opposition of the Affections.* ii. 52
- Religious Affection.* ii. 75. See Devotion, Enthusiasm.
- System of the Affections.* ii. 85. That System explain'd. ii. 86
- Three kinds of Affections.* ii. 86, 87
- Degrees of Affections.* ii. 87, 88, &c.
- Affection: Private Affection too weak, when? ii. 89. Affections towards private Good, necessary. ii. 90
- Energy of Natural Affections.* ii. 101, 102, 103, &c.
- What Pleasure attends the very Disturbances belonging to Natural Affection.* ii. 106, 107. Effects of Natural Affection. ii. 107, 108, &c.
- Partial Affection has no foundation in Reason.* iii. 111. How slender Satisfaction it affords. ii. 112, 113
- Intrive Affection, its Advantages.* ii. 113, 114
- Analysis or Plan of the Affections, as they relate to human Happiness or Unhappiness.* iii. 195, 196, 7, 8, 9, &c.
- Natural Affection, ζῳγῆν.* iii. 222. The same parental or filial kind. iii. 145
- Balance of the Affections.* ii. 92, 95, 130, 131, &c.
- Exercise of the Social or Natural Affections, how necessary to Man.* ii. 134, 135, 136

I N D E X.

- Of the Affections which relate to the immediate Self, or private Interest of the Creature.* i. 139
- Unnatural Affections. ii. 163, 164, &c. Their Consequences. ii. 168, 169, &c.
- Age, the present: improving, in our Nation: Why? i. 9, 10
- Agrarian: untoward-one in the Egyptian State. iii. 43. How occasion'd. iii. 47, 48., 57, 58
- Air of Person: See Grace.
- Alchemy. ii. 184, 190, 377. iii. 160
- Alchymists: why their Philosophy still prevails so much in our Age. ii. 189, 190
- ALCIBIADES. iii. 126
- ALEXANDER the Great. i. 249, 325
- Modern Alexanders.* i. 227
- Amanuensis, the Author's. i. 305. iii. 16, 190
- Ambition. i. 320, 321, 325, 326, 327. ii. 157, 433, 440, 441
- Amble: common Amble, Pace, or Canterbury of Writers. iii. 25, 26
- Amorous Passion: What Occasion of Disorder. ii. 151, 152, 153, &c.
- Amour. Manner of it, with the Fair Sex. iii. 115. History of an Amour. i. 176, &c. See Gallantry, Novel, Love.
- Amphictonian Council. iii. 138
- Amphitheater. (See Gladiator)
- Amphitheatrical Spectacles.* i. 270
- ANACHARSIS. i. 89
- Anatomy of the Mind. i. 206, 207. Of the Body. ii. 302, &c.
- ANDREW: Merry-Andrew and Executioner: a Picture. i. 66
- Angels: Angelical Company. i. 7
- Anger: Use of the Passion in the inferior Orders of Creatures, and in the ordinary Characters of Men. ii. 144, 145. Its ill Effects, when indulg'd. ii. 145, 146, 147. Void in the highest and most virtuous Characters. ii. 144. Anger an Acknowledgment of Just and Unjust. ii. 419, 420
- Animal: How becomes a Part of another System. ii. 18
- Animal System.* ibid.
- Wild and Tame Animals of the same Species, How different.* ii. 132
- Answers to Books. iii. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, &c. Answer-Writers. ibid.
- and* 270. 271
- Ant ii. 96. ii. 220
- Anticipation. ii. 420. See Pre-conception.
- Anticipation and Repeat. iii. 356
- Antidote to Enthusiasm: See Enthusiasm.
- Antients, their Discipline of Youth. i. 122. ii. 191 See Academy.
- Antient Policy, in the Affairs of Religion and Philosophy. i. 17, 18. ii. 262
- ANTIPATER. i. 249
- Antipathy, religious. See Religion.
- APELLES. i. 227. See Painter.

I N D E X.

- APOLLO. iii. 233. Apollo and Muses. i. 5, 6, 7. (See Muses, Pythian, Delphick.) Apologue. iii. 206, 207. See Fable, Mythology, Esop.
Apology, practice of. i. 329, 330. See Preface.
Appearances: See Species.
Appetites high, eager. iii. 177
Appetite, elder Brother to Reason. i. 187 Applause: See Praise.
ARATUS, Poet. iii. 238
Arbitrary Power. i. 220. The sweet and bitter. ibid.
Arbitrary Power, or absolute Monarchy, destructive of Arts. i. 219, 220, 221, 227, 238, &c. iii. 23. See Absolute Power, Tyranny, Will.
ARCADIA. i. 21
Architecture, Barbarous, Gothick. i. 353. True and natural, independent of Fancy. ibid. Founded in Truth and Nature. iii. 181
Architect ambitious. iii. 133
ARISTIDES. i. 267
ARISTOPHANES. i. 245
ARISTOTELL cited. i. 142, 143, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246. iii. 66, 139, 259, 280. (See Peripatetick)
Arm: Secular-Arm, deliver over. i. 66. iii. 110
Arms and Hands, expressive in Oratory. iii. 366
ARTHUR King. iii. 112
Articles of Belief. (See Belief, Divinity.)
Artisans. i. 192. Artisan honest, resolute. i. 262
Artists rejoice in Criticism. i. 235, 261. Virtue and Generosity of Artists. i. 261, 262; &c. (See Poet, Painter, Architect. &c.)
Arts and Sciences how rais'd and improv'd. 239, &c. 248, &c. iii. 136, 137, 138, 139, &c. i. 338
Arts and Virtues mutual Friends. i. 338
Assemblys (Publick) demand Respect. i. 75
Atellan (Plays) i. 251
Atheism: its Consequences with respect to Virtue. ii. 69, 70
Compar'd in that respect with Theism. ii. 72, 73, 74
Atheism from Superstition. ii. 335, 336, 337, 338. Martyrs for Atheism. iii. 64. Atheism preferable to Superstition. i. 41. iii. 126, 127, 128, Faith of Atheism. ii. 357
Atheism charg'd on the People of the better Rank and Fashion. ii. 264. iii. 294. Charg'd upon Wit and subtle Reasoning. ibid.
Atheism. (See Ill-Humour, Chance.)
Atheist: a compleat one: His Belief or Faith. ii. 11. 298, 357, 358. Hard to pronounce certainly of any Man, that he is an Atheist. ii. 12, As personated. iii. 294, 295
Atheists. Best Writers against 'em. ii. 259. Two sorts of People call'd Atheists. ii. 260. Different in themselves; and to be us'd differently. ii. 260, 261
Atheists miscall'd. i. 345
Atheist.

I N D E X.

- Atheists Enthusiasts. i. 52. iii. 64, 65
 Atheist, a strong Believer. ii. 357
 Atheistical Hypothesis. ii. 298
Certain Principles common to Atheists with the Devout or Zealots. i. 97, 117, 118, 123, 124, &c. 132, 345, 352. ii. 68, 80, 81, 256.
 iii. 310
 Atheistical Writers or Talkers, no genuine Atheists. i. 89, 90, 92, 93, 94, 95 ATHENIANS. i. 30. Their Antiquity, Genius. iii. 152, 153. Manners, Modesty. ibid (See Greece.) Progress of Arts and Letters amongst them. i. 248, 249, 250. Attick Elegance. i. 233
 ATTICUS. iii. 21
 ATTILA (Gothick Prince.) iii. 91
 Avarice. i. 319, 320. iii. 197, 198, 304. Avaritious Temper, how miserable. ii. 155, 156, &c.
 Audience. i. 264, 265, 277. (See Stage.)
 AUGUSTUS. i. 220, 228, 269, 270. iii. 21, 250
 Authors: Saint-Authors. i. 164, 165. iii. 239, 240. Author in Solitude. i. 175. Prince-Authors. i. 213, 214. Author's Courtship to the Reader. i. 200, 330. Selfishness of Authors. i. 200. Coquetry of an Author. ibid.
 Author once an honourable Name. iii. 3, 4. A Character or Note of Understanding. ibid. Jealousy of Free Authors. ii. 7, 8, 262, &c.
 Author Orthodox. i. 358, 359, 360. Orthodoxy of our Author in particular. iii. 70, 71, 315
 Authors not excusable for their ill Performance, because neglected by the Great. i. 222, 223, 224, 230. Or because of Criticism and Censure.
 i. 231, 232, &c. Or because of the publick Genius or Ear. i. 261, 262, 278
 Author and Reader, their mutual Relation, Interest. iii. 227, 228, 229, 230, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, &c. Their Pretensions, Privileges, Place, Ceremonial. ibid.
Divinest Characters and Personages, no Authors, either in Sacred or Profane Letters. iii. 244, 245, 246, 247. Great Authors capable of Business, tho out of it. iii. 247, &c. 273
 Authors of narrow Genius's, incapable of Action or Speculation. iii. 272, 273, 4, 5, 6, 7, &c. Boo'filler makes the Author. i. 264. iii. 27. Modern Author professes Laziness, Precipitancy, Carelessness. i. 233, 234.
In doubt about his own Work. iii. 27. (See Piece, Penman, Miscellany.)
 Author of these Treatises: accidentally engag'd in them. iii. 190. His first Treatise (viz. Letter of Enthusiasm) a Real Letter. ibid. And before.
 12, 13, 19, 20
 Authority: Divine Authority judg'd by Morals. i. 298
 Awe: Its Effect on Mens Understandings. i. 96. See Fear.

I N D E X.

B.

- BABYLONIAN Empire and Hierarchy. iii. 48. See Hierarchy.
- BACON (Lord) cited. iii. 69
- Banter: Fashionable with modern Politicians and Negotiators. i. 62
- Banter from Persecution. i. 72
- Barbarian. (See Goth, Indian.)
- Barbarism, Chief Mark of. iii. 153
- Barbarism from Universal Monarchy. i. 221, 222
- Bartlemy-Fair. i. 28
- Mr. BAYS. iii. 274, 275, 276, &c. Other Bays's in Divinity. iii. 282, 283, 284
- Bear-Garden. i. 270, 271. iii. 256, 257
- Beasts. Beast or Brute-Science. iii. 184, 218. Passionate Love and Fondness towards the Bestial or Animal-Forms, Virtues, Beautys. iii. 184, 216, 217, 218, &c.
- Oeconomy or Order of Nature in the Beasts. (See Oeconomy.)
- Beasts: their natural Instincts. ii. 307, 308
- Beaver. iii. 220
- Beauty: where to be found. ii. 404, 405, 406. Mysterious Charms of Beauty. ii. 211, &c. Knowledge in the Degrees and Orders of Beauty, ibid. Three Degrees or Orders of Beauty. ii. 406, 407, 408. Scale or Scheme of Beauty. iii. 182, 183, 4, 5, 6, &c. Moral Beauty. ii. 409. Confess'd. i. 280, 281. ii. 419, 420, 421. iii. 179, 180. Moral Beauty and Deformity. ii. 29, 30. Beauty of Sentiments, Character, Mind. i. 136, 207. iii. 303. (See Character, Mind, Virtue, Heart.)
- Beauty, is Truth. i. 142, 143. iii. 180, 181, 2, 3, 4, 5
- Beauty of Virtue. i. 315, 316, &c. Beauty of the Soul. ii. 414, 415
- Beauty of the Body. ii. 414
- Beauty dangerous. i. 183. Outward Beauty expressive of inward. i. 138. Natural Health, the inward Beauty of the Body. iii. 181. Mechanick Beautys in opposition to Moral and Intellectual. i. 139
- Beauty in Animals. iii. 218. How attractive, enchanting. iii. 216, 217, 218, &c.
- Scale of Beauty. iii. 182, 183
- The Odd and Pretty in the room of the Gracious and Beautiful. iii. 5, 6, &c.
- Beauty: its Idea natural. ii. 415
- Beauty and Good the same. ii. 399, 422. Not the Object of the Sense. ii. 423, 424. Its Extent. ii. 211, 212, 213
- The Beautiful, Honestum, Pulchrum, τὸ καλόν. (See Fair, Decorum, Enthusiasm.)
- Bee. ii. 94, 96. iii. 220
- Beggars. i. 35, 36. Peggary Religion. ibid. and iii. 126, 127, 128
- Belief. (See Faith) Belief at a venture. i. 35. No Merit in believing on weak Grounds i. 34. Affectation of Belief. ibid. Articles of Belief. i. 361.

I N D E X.

361. iii. 60, 61, 62, 79, 80, 81, 82. Grosseſt Article of Belief, how introduc'd of old into the Church. iii. 333, 334. Sacred and indisputable Articles of Belief. iii. 70. Whether a Man can be accountable for his wrong Belief. ii. 326, 327, 328. Men persuade themselves into whatever Opinion or Belief. iii. 101, 102, &c. Belief at the Stretch of Reason. i. 34.
iii. 105
- Believer againſt his Will. i. 35. iii. 127. Superſtitious Believer wiſhes there were no God.
iii. 127, 128
- Belly. Glattonous Imagination, or Belly-Senſe.
i. 283
- Bibliothèque Choïſie. iii. 18, 20, 241. See Monsieur LE CLERC.
- Bigotry: its Spirit. i. 74. Fig'd Riſe. iii. 80. Force of the Word. iii. 81, 82
- Bird.
ii. 302, &c.
- Bit or Bridle, proper Emblem for the Figure of Virtue. iii. 386
- Body-Political. Head and Members. i. 113, 114. (See Constitution.)
- BOILEAU: French Satiriſt.
i. 218. iii. 280
- Bombaſt.
i. 232, 241. iii. 262
- Books. (See Reading, Scholar, Burning.)
Good-Books ſo call'd. i. 165, iii. 327. Books of Chivalry, Gallantry, Prodigys, Travels, barbarous Nations, and Cuſtoms. i. 341, 342, 3, 4, 5, 6, &c. Interpolating, ſuppreſſing Practice on Books. iii. 330. (See Scripture, Fathers.)
- Bookſeller. i. 304. (See Author, Amanuenſis.) Begets a Fray or learned Scuffle. iii. 10, 11, 15, 16, 17. Bookſeller and Glazier. iii. 15. Bookſeller's Shop and Trade. ibid. Bookſeller determines Titles. iii. 27. Fits his Cuſtomers.
iii. 270
- BOSSU: Pere Boſſu, du Poeme Epique.
i. 142
- Breeding. See Academy, Univerſity.
Good-Breeding. i. 64, 65. ii. 242. Leading Character to Virtue.
i. 129, 135, 333. iii. 161, 162, 168
- Good-Breeding, and Liberty, neceſſarily join'd.* i. 76. Man of good Breeding incapable of a brutal Action. i. 129. Acts from his Nature, without Reflection, and by a kind of Neceſſity. i. 129, 130. Compar'd with the thoro' honeſt Man. ibid. (See Gentleman.)
- BRITAIN: its Advantages. i. 219. Old Britain. i. 272
- British-Liberty. i. 216, 222. British Senſe in Politicks. i. 80
- British Countrymen Fellow-Citizens. iii. 144, 145, 146, 7, 8, 9, &c.
- BRITONS: their Senſe of Government, and a Conſtitution. i. 108. See England, Engliſhmen.
- Brute. ii. 305. See Beaſt.
- BRUIUS.
iii. 249
- Buffoons. i. 72. See Laugh, Italian, Banter, Burleſque.
- Build: easier to demolish than build.
iii. 134
- Burleſque: its principal Source. i. 71. (See Banter.) Mere Burleſque reſected by the Antients. i. 73. (See Parodys, Comedy.)
- Burleſque-Wit and Buffoonery on the Stage.
iii. 281
- Burleſque Divinity. See Divinity.
- BURNET Archæol. cited.
iii. 122
- Burning

I N D E X.

- Burning Zeal. See Zeal.
 Burning and Destruction of Books, Learning, &c. iii. 239, 240, 241. (See Fathers of the Church.)
 Business: Man of Business. i. 309

C

- Cabalistical Learning. iii. 81
 CAESAR (Julius.) i. 272. Cæsar's Commentaries. i. 224. His Ability. i. 228
 CAESARS, Roman. i. 24, 25, 133, 221. iii. 41, 86, 90, 91
 Cake: not eat and have. i. 130
 Camp. i. 335
 Cantonizing. i. 113
 Canterbury. (See Amble.)
 CAPPADOCIANS. iii. 251
 Carnival. i. 82, &c.
 Carver, carnal, spiritual. iii. 112, 113, &c.
 Catechisin, Theological, Metaphysical. i. 306, 307. Moral, Philosophical. i. 307, 308, &c.
 Catechism, and Gatecumens originally Ægyptian. iii. 245. See Circumcision.
 Catholick Church. See Church, Rome, Pope.
 Catholick Opinion, how form'd. iii. 86, 87, 88, 89, 90 (See Uniformity.)
 CATTULLUS. i. 228
 Cause: common Cause. i. 222
 CEBES. ii. 254
 Cenfurs of Manners. i. 240. Confure free. i. 9
 Ceremony. i. 203, 204. See Compliments.
 Ceremonial, between Author and Reader. iii. 227, &c.
 Ceremonys. See Rites.
 CERVANTES (Michael.) iii. 253
 CHALDEA. iii. 48
 Challenge. (See Duel.) Spiritual Challengers, Lists, Combatants. i. 363. iii. 341. See Religion, Priests.
 Chance, prefer'd to Providence, by the superstitious. i. 40. iii. 126, 127, 128. (See Atheism.)
 Chaos, and Darknefs from Universal Monarchy. i. 222
 Chaos of the English Poets. iii. 62
 Characters. Dealer in Characters must know his own. i. 189 Sacred Characters. i. 281
 Character, Divine. i. 23, 37. In God, in Man. i. 38, 41. Beauty of Character. i. 136. (See Beauty.)
 Character with one's self, and others. i. 130, 294, 295
 Character, generous, and vile, set in opposition. i. 141
 Real Characters and Manners. i. 194, 199, 200, 201, 2, 3, &c. (See Manners.)
 Perfect Character, vil'd. i. 194. Perfect Character unartificial in Poetry. i. 377.

I N D E X.

- i. 337. Monstrous in Epick, or on the Stage. iii. 260, 261, 262
Homer's Characters. (See Homer.)
Principal Characters and Under-Parts. i. 195
- Characters in Holy Writ, not Subjects for a Poem.* i. 356
- Characters or Personages in Dialogue.* iii. 292, 293, 4, 5, 6. (See Dialogue.)
Sublime of Characters. i. 336
Inward Character. i. 339. iii. 34
- Character from Circumstances of Nativity.* iii. 147, 148
- Characters in the State.* iii. 163, 170, 171, 172, 3, 4, 5, 6 Inward Character and Worth. iii. 174, 175
- Character of a Critick.* See Critick.
- Characteristick of Understandings* i. 201
- Charity and Good Will: Pretexis to what Ends.* i. 87, 133. iii. 115, 133, 134. See Morals.
- Christian Charity.* i. 99. Charitable Foundations, to whose Benefit. i. 133.
Supernatural Charity. i. 18. iii. 115. Heathen Charity. iii. 153, 154
- Charm of Nature, in Moral Objects.* See Nature, Beauty, Harmony, Taste.
- Childrens Play.* i. 66
- Chivalry.* i. 272, 273. Originally Moorish, Gothick. i. 344, 345, &c. iii. 253. Books of Chivalry, i. 344. Dress of it. ii. 195. See Galantry.
- Christian Author.* i. 67. Good Christian. i. 99. Christian; Mahometan, Pagan. i. 352. iii. 104. Sceptick-Christian. iii. 72
- Christianity no way concern'd in modern miracles.* ii. 326, 330, &c. Not founded in Miracle merely. ibid. and i. 297, 298
- A Church.* i. 10. See Hierarchy, Catholick.
Roman Christian and Catholick Church. iii. 90. See Monarchy.
National Church. i. 17, 28. Its Interest asserted. i. 17. Panick Fear for the Church. iii. 83, 4, 5, &c.
- Church-Lands.* i. 25, 133. iii. 45, 79
Writing Church-Militant. iii. 9, 10, 11, 12. and 290, 291, 292, &c.
Antient Heathen-Church. i. 50. iii. 126, 127, 128
- Church of England.* iii. 15, 16, &c. See Divines.
- Church-Patriot.* iii. 170, 171
- Chymistry.* See Alchemy.
- CICERO.* i. 208, 334. iii. 20, 21, 182, 280
- Circumcision, its Origin among the Egyptians.* iii. 52, 53. Receiv'd by the Hebrew Patriarch, their Guest. ibid. By MOSES on his Return. 55. Laid down again, on his Retreat. 52 Again renew'd, by JOSHUA, with regard to the same Egyptians. 52, 54, 55
- City: Heavenly City Jerusalem.* i. 282
- Clan.* See Tribe.
- Cleanliness.* i. 125
- CLERC (Mr. Le Clerc Sylo. Phil.)* iii. 214, 215. See Bibliotheque Choisie.

I N D E X.

- Clergy, Benefit of. i. 305. Interest of Christian Clergy in ancient and polite Learning. iii. 236, 237. Management and practices of the ancient Clergy. 333, 334. See Clericks, Priesthood, Fathers of the Church.
 Clericks seditions. iii. 88, 89. See Magistrate, Civil Government.
 Climates, Regions, Soils, compar'd. iii. 150
 Closet-Thoughts. i. 139
 Clown, judges Philosophers. iii. 107. Better Philosopher than some so call'd. iii. 204
 Club, Liberty of the Club. i. 75. (See Committee.) Club-Method. i. 267
 Coffee-House. iii. 15, 274, 275, &c. Coffee-House Committee. iii. 274, 275, &c. Coffee-House Hero. ibid.
 College. i. 334. ii. 184, 191
 Collision amicable. i. 64
 Comedy. i. 198. Posterior to Tragedy. i. 244, &c. See Farce, Play, Theater, Drama, Burlesque.
 Comedy, antient. First, Second, Third. i. 245, 246, &c. 252, 253, 254, &c.
 Comick Style. i. 257, &c. See Style, Satir.
 Commission: Sole Commission for Authority. i. 335. Heavenly Commission, Pretences to it examin'd. iii. 102, 159, 336, 7, 8, 9, &c.
 Committee. iii. 275, &c. See Club.
 Common Sense. (See Sense, Nature.) Men not to be reason'd out of it. i. 96 Company provocative to Fancy. i. 159. See Assemblys, Conversations.
 Complexions, religious. i. 84. See Salvation, Persecution.
 Compliments. i. 203, 204. See Ceremony.
 Comprehension in Religion. See Uniformity.
 Conference, free. i. 70, 73, 75
 Conformity in Religion. iii. 315. See Uniformity.
 Conformist Occasional. iii. 85
 Conjuror, a wise and alle one. i. 318. Conjurers. i. 87, 175. i. 348. See Magi, Priest, Enchanter.
 Conquest, National. iii. 148
 Conscience, Moral. ii. 119. Its Effect. ii. 120, 121, 122. Religious Conscience supposes Moral Conscience. ii. 120. False Conscience, its Effects. ii. 122, 123, 124
 Conscience from Interest. ii. 125
 Consecration of Opinions, Notions. i. 60
 Consistency, Rule of. iii. 354
 Constitution, State or Government. i. 108, 239, English Constitution. i. 212, 216. iii. 150 Contemplation. ii. 75. See Meditation.
 Controversy. Controversial Writings. iii. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, &c. and 270, 271. Church-controversy. iii. 290, 291, &c. Religious Controversy, and Decision of the Cause, according to modern Priesthood. iii. 341, 342, 343 Conversation. i. 68, 69, &c. 75, 76. iii. 335, 336. Life of Conversation.

sation.

I N D E X.

- sation*. i. 75, 76. Sterility of the best Conversations: the Cause. i. 77.
Remedy. ibid. Modern Conversation, effeminate, enervate. ii. 186
 Convocation (Synod, Council) what Candour, Temper? i. 360, &c.
 Coquetry, See Author.
 CORNEILLE, French Tragedian, cited. iii. 87, 280
 Corporation of Wit. iii. 279. See Wit.
 Correctness (See Genius, Critick) in writing. i. 232, &c. 241. iii. 227.
Incorrectness. iii. 2, 3, 4, &c. 258. Cause of Incorrectness in our English Writers. ibid. & 272, 3, 4, 5, &c.
 Covetousness. See Avarice.
 Counsellor, Privy Counsellors, of wise aspect. i. 211
 Countenances. See Complexions.
 Cowardice. i. 114. ii. 140, 141, 142, 143. See Fear.
 Country. Love of native Country. iii. 143. See Love.
Native Country, Name wanting. iii. 149. Higher City or Country recognized. iii. 158, 159
 A Court. i. 10, 335. Court-Power. iii. 23. Grandeur of a Court, what influence on Art and Manners. i. 219, 220, &c. 239, &c. 341, 342. iii. 23. Spirit of a Court. i. 104, 105, 106, &c. Specklers met with there. i. 139. Place at Court. iii. 169, &c. 208. Court-Slavery. iii. 168, 169, 170, 1, 2, 3, &c. See Slavery.
 Court-Engines. iii. 174. See Favourites.
 Courtier. i. 192. Honest Courtier. iii. 24, 175, 176
 Creature. Every one a private Interest. ii. 15, &c. Private Ill of every Creature. ibid.
No Creature good, if by his Nature injurious to his Species, or to the whole in which he is included. ii. 17. When a Creature is suppos'd good. ii. 21, 22, 26. What makes an ill Creature. ii. 26, 27. What makes a Creature worthy or virtuous. ii. 30, 31
 Creature void of natural Affection. ii. 81, 82
 Creature when too good. ii. 90, 91
 Creed. iii. 242. Furniture of Creeds. iii. 322. Creed-making. iii. 60, 61, 80, 81, 82, 332, 3, 4. See Belief, Article, Watch-word.
 Credulity and Incredulity. i. 345. Credulity, how dangerous. ii. 326, 327, 328, i. 61
 Criterion of Truth.
 Critical Truth. See Truth.
 Critical Liberty. iii. 316
 Critical Art, Support of Sacred Writ. iii. 236, 237, 238, 241, 242, 243, 244, 267
 Criticism, rejoices the real Artist. i. 234, &c. Toleration of Criticism, essential to Wit. i. 260 Sacred Criticism. iii. 72, 73, 229, 230, 231, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, &c. Prevention against. iii. 166, 276
 Criticks: the ingenious and fair sort. i. 81 Formidable to the Author or Poet, why? i. 231, 232. iii. 272, 273, 274, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, &c.
 French Criticks. iii. 280. See BOSSU, Journalists.

I N D E X.

- Critick-haters. i. 235, 236. iii. 165, 166, 167, 258, 272, 274, 275, 276, 7, 8, 9, &c.
Self-Critick.
Interest, Party, Cause, or Writing, to be suspected, which declares against Criticism, or declines the Proof. iii. 266, 342
- Criticks, Pillars of State in Wit and Letters. i. 236, &c. 240, 241. iii. 267. Criticks, Notarys, Expositors, Promptors. i. 241. Treated as whimsical. i. 272. Their Cause defended. iii. 165, 166
- Criticks by fashion. i. 272
Writing-Criticks or Satirists. iii. 271, 272
- Criticks, Satirists, Scepticks, Scrupulists. iii. 109
- Crocodile, worship'd. ii. 32. iii. 80. Emblem of Superstition. ii. 387
- Crocodiles, Chimera's Scholastick. iii. 80
- Crowns, how purchas'd on some occasions. i. 133
- Crudities. i. 164, 165, 166
- CUDWORTH (Dr.) his Character. ii. 262. Why accus'd of being a Friend to Atheists. ibid. Cited. iii. 64
- Custom and Fashion powerful Seducers. i. 355. Custom vicious. ii. 35
- CYBELE (Goddeſs.) ii. 253

D.

- DEMON, or Guardian Spirit. i. 168, 169. iii. 28
- DEMON, to what that Name belongs. ii. 11. See Witch.
- Demonist, who, what. ii. 11, 12
- Dancer. i. 193
Figur'd Dances. iii. 91. High Dance in Religion and Prophecy. iii. 117
- Death. King of Terrors. i. 314. ii. 253. See Fear.
- Debate, free. i. 71. iii. 155. See Conference, Freedom.
- Debauch, has a reference to Society. i. 310, 311. ii. 127
- Declamation. i. 70. See Preaching.
- Decorum. i. 138, 139, 337. ii. 415. iii. 180, 185, 197, 198. Decorum and Sublime of Actions. iii. 34. (See Beauty, Grace.) Dulce & Decorum. i. 102, 123
- Dedication, see Preface.
- Defender of the Faith. i. 213
- Deist, the Name set in opposition to Christianity. ii. 209
- Deity, when view'd amiss. i. 32, 33. Deity sought in Chaos and Confusion, not in Order and Beauty. ii. 336, 337, 338. Various Combinations of Opinions concerning Deity. ii. 13. How Men are influenc'd by the Belief of a Deity. ii. 54, 55, 56, 57, &c. Terror of the Deity implies not moral Conscience. ii. 119. Different Characters, Aspects, or views of Deity. iii. 39, 40. Species multiply'd. iii. 47, 49, 50, 80. Heathen Attributes of Deity. iii. 153. See Genius, Mind.
- Deity, the sovereign Beauty, and Source of all Beautys. ii. 294, 295. See God.
- Delphick Inscription. i. 170
- DEMOSTHENES. i. 161, 208. iii. 141
- DENMARK

I N D E X.

- DENMARK and SWEDEN. iii. 171
- Despotick. See Arbitrary, Absolute.
- Devil. See Hell.
- Devotion of the dismal sort; its Effects. ii. 116, 117. The abject, beggarly, illiberal, sycophantick, knavish kind. i. 34, 35. iii. 125, 126, 127, 128
- Dialogue: Manner of Writing us'd by the Antients. i. 73. Preliminary Science to Poetry and just Writing. i. 191, 192, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, &c. Moderns, why so sparing and unsuccessful in the way of Dialogue-Writing. ii. 187, 188. How practis'd by some modern Divines. iii. 291, 292, 3, 4, 5, 6. Dialogue between an Author and his Bookseller. iii. 16 Between GOD and Man. iii. 122. Between Man and Beast. ibid. Between GOD and Satan. ibid. Between GOD and JONAH. iii. 119, 120, 121
- DIANA. iii. 79, 83, &c.
- DIODORUS SICULUS cited. iii. 43, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51
- DION CASSIUS, wretched Historian. i. 270. iii. 24
- DIONYSIUS HALICARN. iii. 234, 280
- Discourse, continu'd and alternate. i. 70. Vicissitude in Discourse, a Law. i. 70, 76
- Dishonesty, a Half-Thought. iii. 297, 302, 304. See Knavery, Thinking.
- Disinterestedness in Friendship. i. 100, 101. See Friendship.
- Disinterestedness in Religion, and its holy Founders.* i. 281, 282, 283. See Reward, Love.
- Distraction, real. i. 322, 323, &c.
- Divine or Godlike. i. 33, 38. See Character, Theogony, Theology.
- Divine Example.* ii. 56
- Divine Presence.* ii. 57
- Divine (Theologiss) iii. 122, 225, 237, 8, 9, &c. 282, 290, 291, 293, &c. 305, 306, 316, 325, 326, 7, 8, 9, &c. Why incautious, and ill Managers, in the Cause of Religion. ii. 258, 259
- Divine, in humour, out of humour. iii. 130
- Divinity-Doctor, combatant in Print. iii. 10, 11, 12, 13
- Polemick Divinity.* iii. 9, 10, &c.
- Burlesque Divinity.* iii. 291, &c. Sinnames and Titles of Divinity. iii. 60. See Deity, Theology.
- Doctrine. See Hypothesis.
- Dog. See Fable, Beast.
- Dogmatists, why so Fashionable in this Age. ii. 190, 191.
- Dogmatizing in Religion and on a future State.* ibid. and 236, 237, 297. See Sceptick.
- Dominion, founded in Property. iii. 49
- Drama: English Drama, lame Support of it. iii. 289, 290. Dramatis Personæ. ibid. (See Play, Stage, Tragedy, Comedy, Mr. Bays.)
- Theological Drama* iii. 293
- Drapery, Rules concerning it. iii. 372, 373

DRYDEN,

I N D E X.

DRYDEN. iii. 61, 62. See BAYS.
 Duels. i. 273, 363. See Challenges.

E.

- EAR in Musick. i. 42, 135, 217, 218, 235, 336, 338
 Ear lost. i. 344. Publick Ear. i. 264, 275, 276. See Au dience
Distemper in the Ear. i. 324, 325
 Ears to hear, &c. i. 63
 Ear in Poetry. i. 217, 275. iii. 262, 263, 264, 5, 6
 Earth: System of the Earth, how a Part of some other System. ii. 19. Another Earth, or World, i. 282. Our Relation to mere Earth and Soil. iii. 144, 145, 6, 7, 8, 9, &c. Sons of Earth. iii. 146, 147 Education. See University, Academy, School, Tutor.
 Effeminacy. i. 314. ii. 186. iii. 186
Effeminate Wit. iii. 166, 167
 EGYPT. See ÆGYPT.
 Elephant. iii. 221
 Eloquence. i. 8. Leprosy of. i. 160. Corruption of. iii. 22
 Eloquence and other Arts depend on Liberty. i. 219, 220. See Liberty.
 Embassadors from Heaven, in what Sense. iii. 336, 337, 8, 9, &c.
From the Moon. iii. 339, &c. Apostolick Commission, Embassy, Succession. iii. 337, 8, 9, &c.
 Emblematical, nothing of that kind to be directly mingled in an Historical Piece. iii. 381. An Instance from RAPHAEL. iii. 382.
 Emperors, Roman. i. 24, 133, 222, 228. Concert Emperors. i. 133. iii. 78
 Empirick. i. 163, 235
 Enchanter. i. 348, 349. See Conjuror, Priest, Magi.
 Engineer of Letters. iii. 16, 17. In Philosophy and Sciences. iii. 134
 Engine: Court-Engines. iii. 174
 ENGLAND, a Conquest: whence to be fear'd. iii. 148, 149
Old-England. iii. 150, 151. Late England. ibid. See Britain.
Church of England. See Church, Divines.
 Englishmen, Fellow-Citizens, Countrymen. iii. 144, 145, 6, 7, 8, 9, &c.
Name whence brought. iii. 149
 English, inhospitable Humour. iii. 152, 153
 English Authors in general. i. 265. Specches and admir'd Wit of our English Ancestors. iii. 141, 142
 English Liberty. i. 216, 222
 English Poetry. (See Muses.) Uncorrectness of English Poets. i. 263. iii. 258, 259, 264, 265, 266, 267, English Divines. iii. 122. See Divines.
 Enjoyment: deceitful kind. i. 309. Sincere. i. 311. Social. i. 310, 311
 Enthusiasm: Definition of the natural sort, &c. iii. 30, 31. Enthusiasm of holy Souls. iii. 68. Legitimate and bastard sort. i. 53. iii. 67. Rais'd from Internals. iii. 90, and ii. 270, 271. From Externals. iii. 41, 90, 91.

I N D E X.

91. Philosophical Enthusiasm, iii. 81. Prophetical. iii. 67, 68. Poetical.
 i. 21. Mathematical. ii. 104, 105. Enthusiasm of the Lover, Hero, Virtuoso, &c. ii. 400, &c. 430. iii. 31. Universal, or in all. i. 54. iii. 29
- Enthusiasms of different sorts*. iii. 41. Comprehended in the Romish Church.
 iii. 90, 91, 92, &c. Vulgar sort, and more refin'd. ibid. Enthusiasm divine.
 i. 53
Modification of Enthusiasm. i. 17. Various Operation. i. 48, &c. Enthusiasm at second hand.
 i. 43
- Enthusiasm justify'd*. i. 53, 54, 55. ii. 57, 394, 395, 400, 401, 408.
 iii. 28, 29, &c. Ravage of Enthusiasm. i. 89. Antidote to Enthusiasm.
 i. 55
Virtue it-self a noble Enthusiasm. iii. 33, 34
- Enthusiasm a natural and honest Passion*. iii. 37, 38. Soft and lovely. ii. 218, 219. Enthusiasm works differently, by Fear, by Love. iii. 38, 39. Its amorous Lineage. iii. 38. Contrary and miraculous Effects of Enthusiasm.
 iii. 40
- Enthusiasm catching, communicable, imparted*. i. 44, 45. iii. 29, 30, 84.
See Melancholy, Prophecy.
- Sociable Enthusiast*. ii. 218
- Enthusiast itinerant*. i. 287. Epicureans, Enthusiastical Atheists. i. 52.
 iii. 64, 65
- Enthusiastick Inebriation*. iii. 66, 67
- Envy, unnatural Passion*. ii. 165
- Ephesian Worshippers*. iii. 83, 84, &c. Zeal for their Church. ibid.
- EPICURUS, his Connivance in matters of Vision and Fanaticism*. i. 48, &c.
Recognition of the Force of Nature, and Natural Affection. i. 117, 118.
Toleration of Natural Enthusiasm. i. 48, &c. iii. 32, 33, &c.
- Epicurus, primitive Father to some conceal'd Moderns*. i. 117. Love and Religion cruelly treated by Epicurus.
 iii. 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36
Nature, a Deity to the Epicurean Atheist. i. 52. iii. 64. See Enthusiasm, Atheism.
- Epicurean Atomist*. i. 301
- Epicurean Hypothesis*. iii. 32, 35, 69
- Epicurean Sect tolerat'd*. i. 18
Vulgar Epicurism. ii. 126
- EPIMENIDES*. iii. 238
- Epistles: TULLY'S Epistles*. iii. 20. SENECA'S Epistles. iii. 22, 23, 24, 25
 iii. 17, &c.
- Epistolar Style*. iii. 17, &c.
- Epistle Dedicatory*. See Preface.
- ERGAMENES (King) destroys a Hierarchy*. iii. 49
- ESOP*. iii. 206
- Essays*. i. 163. Essay-Writing. ibid. See Miscellany.
- ETHIOPIA*. See ÆTHIOPIA.
- EUPHRANOR (Painter)*. i. 144, 340
- EURIPIDES*. i. 244, 245, &c. iii. 141, 240, 313
- Executioner*. See Magistrate.
- Excellency.

I N D E X.

- Excellency. See Titles.
 Exemplars, in the Writing-Art. i. 192, 206
 Exercifes. i. 191. See Academy.
 Eyes: fitted to certain Lights. i. 62
 Eye in Painting. i. 135, 235, 336. Eye in Painting loſt, how? i. 344
 Diſtemper in the Eye. i. 324, 325
 Harmony to the Eye. iii. 4
 Eye debauch'd. iii. 5

F.

- FABLES us'd by Wiſemen and Moralifts i. 63. iii. 205, 206. (See Parable, Mythology.)
 Fable of the Man and Lion. ii. 188. Of the Travelling Dogs. iii. 207, 208
 Truth of Fable. See Truth.
 Façt. Matter of Façt, how judg'd by Zealots. i. 43, 44, 55, 147, 148.
 Matter of Façt in the Language of the Superſtitious. i. 44
 Matters of Façt, unably tho' ſincerely related, prove the woſt ſort of Deceit.
 i. 346. See Truth.
 Faction, Spirit of. i. 114
 Fair, Bartl'my. i. 28
 Fair, Beautiful. i. 139. (See Beauty, Decorum, Numbers.)
 Fair, Species of. i. 139
 Fairys. i. 6
 Faith (religious) antient, modern. i. 6, 7. Implicit Faith. i. 94. iii. 231.
 Definition, iii. 73, 74. Extension of Faith. i. 5, 6, 7. Act of Faith. ibid. Faith on any Terms. i. 36. Heroick Faith. iii. 334.
 Religious Faith, dependent on what? i. 39. Hiſtorical Faith. iii. 72.
 Perſonal. iii. 73. Faith National, Hereditary, entail'd by Law. i. 344,
 362. iii. 103. Faith in Travellers, Romancers, Legends. i. 344, 345, &c. Rule of Faith. iii. 318, 319, 322, 323, 324, &c. See Belief.
 Rule of Faith (Treatiſe of Archbiſhop Tillotſon) cited. iii. 329, 330, 331, &c.
 Chineſe or Indian Faith. i. 344, 345. Hiſtorical, Critical Faith. iii. 22
 Confefſion of Faith, the Author's. iii. 315. Gradual Decay of the Evi- dence relating to the Matters of our Faith. iii. 238, 239, 240, 241, 242 Fanaticks, antient. i. 47, &c. Compar'd with modern. ibid. Fanatick cr- vant. ii. 330. See Lymphaticks.
 Fanaticks in all Churches and Religions. i. 50. iii. 38. Fanaticiſm, its true
 Charaſter. ii. 329, 330. Fanatick Senſe and Judgment of Scripture. iii.
 237. Popiſh Fanaticiſm. iii. 92, 93, 239, 240, 241 Faneys apophthiz'd. i. 188. Sophiſters, Impoſtors. ibid. Government of Fancy. i. 308, 309, 310, &c. ii. 231. Fancy: her Assault, Combat, Fortrefs. i. 311, 312, 313, &c. 320, &c.
 Faneys, Sollicitrefſes, Enchantrefſes. i. 312, 313. Reprimanded, queſtion'd, examin'd, diſmiſs'd. i. 325, &c. Diſagreement with Fancy, makes the Ala...

I N D E X.

- Man himself; Agreement, not himself.* i. 325, &c. Lady-Fancy cross'd by a What next? i. 326. Fancys in a Tribe. i. 321, 327. Florid
Fancy. iii. 177. Power of Fancy in Religion. iii. 68. See Humour.
Farce. i. 150. iii. 6, 7, 8. See Fescennin, Atellan, Parody.
Faces. i. 16. See Magistrate.
Fashion. See Modes, Custom.
Father of a Country. i. 37, 321
Fathers of the Church disputing and disputed. iii. 327. Industrious in sup- pressing all Scripture or Arguments of their Adversarys which made agaynst them. iii. 320, 321, &c. 330, &c. Burning Method of Roman and Greek Fathers, Bishops, &c. iii. 239, 240, 241 Favourites. i. 192. ii. 138. See Court.
Fear, Passion of. i. 294. ii. 55, 56, 57, &c. Description by Des Cartes.
i. 294. Its Root and Cure. i. 295, &c.
Fear of Death. ii. 140, 141, &c. How improv'd or abated. i. 314, 315,
 316. iii. 196, 197, 203, 204
Fear and Hope in Religion. ii. 55. See Future State, Rewards, and Punishments.
Ferments. See Humours.
Fescennin (Plays) i. 251 Fiction. See Fable.
Figure, principal in a Picture, to govern the rest. iii. 374
Flattery in Devotion. i. 34. See Devotion, Sycophant.
Fly. ii. 18. See Spider.
Fools: the greatest, who? ii. 231
Football. i. 187. iii. 15
Force and Arbitrary Power destructive of all Arts. i. 219, 220, 221, 222, 237, 238, &c.
Form outward, in a Figure, to give place where the inward is describ'd. iii.
 367
Formality. i. 11, 12, 74
Formalists. i. 12, 13, 174, 335. iii. 97, 98. The Author himself a
Formalist. iii. 135
Foreigners: Treatment of them by different Nations. iii. 152, 153, 154.
See Hospitality.
Free Thought. } See Thought.
Free Thinker. }
Free Writer. ii. 7
Free States. i. 238, &c.
Freedom of Wit. i. 69. (See Wit, Discourse, Debate.) Consequence of a Restraint. i. 71, 72
French Authors. i. 335. Theater. iii. 6, 7, 8
French Criticks. See Bossu, Criticks.
Friend: knowable, unknowable. i. 284. Friend of Mankind. ii. 247 Friendship: real Good. ii. 238, 239, &c. Comprehends Society and Mankind. ii. 239, 240, 241, &c. Friendship how prevalent and diffu- sive. ii. 109
Friendship,

I N D E X.

- Friendship, Christian, Heathen. i. 98, 99, 100.. (See Charity, Hospitality, Disinterestedness.) Friendship its own Reward. i. 100
 Fucus, Mask or Vizard of Superstition. i. 84,
 Fungus. iii. 146
 Future State. i. 18, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102. ii. 236, 237. iii. 302. See Rewards and Punishments.

G.

- A Galante. i. 192
 Gallantry. Original and Progress. i. 272, 273, 331, 332. ii. 194, 195, 196. iii. 253. Decent Gallantry. i. 20, 362, 363. Gallantry and Heroick Power of Faith. iii. 334. Merit in the Gallant World. i. 331. See Ladys, Chivalry, Novel.
 Gallows. i. 127. iii. 177. See Jail.
 Gardens. iii. 167. See Palace.
 ANLUS GELLIUS cited. iii. 234
 Generation: Natural Instinct in the Case. ii. 412
 Genius, or Guardian-Angel. i. 168, 169
 Genius of the World. ii. 245, 284, 295, 343, 347, 352, &c. See Deity.
 Genius, not sufficient to form a Writer or Poet. i. 193. iii. 258. English Author would be all Genius. i. 233. iii. 258. Fashionable Affeclation of a Genius, without Correctness, in our English Writers. i. 263. iii. 258, 259, 264, 265, 266, 267. See English Poets.
 Gentleman: Character of a Gentleman. i. 135. iii. 156, &c. (See Breeding.) Amusements of Gentlemen more improving than the profound Researches of Pedants. i. 335. iii. 168
Fine Gentleman, owing to Masters. i. 191
 Gibbet. i. 125. See Jail, Gallows, Hell.
 Gibbets and Rods succeed to Charity and Love, when. iii. 115
 Giddiness in Life. i. 322
 GLADIATORS: Barbarity of Gladiatorian Spectacles. i. 269, 270. iii. 256, 257
 Gladiatorian Penmen. iii. 12
 Glafs. See Looking-Glafs.
 Glazier. iii. 15
 Glory: Acting for Glory's sake, how far divine? i. 38
 GNOSTICKS, antient Hereticks. iii. 75, 76
 God: God and Goodness the same. i. 33, &c. 40, &c. Nothing in God but what is God-like. ibid. Question concerning his Being, what Issue? ibid. and 39, 40. See Deity, Attributes, Praise.
 God, what? ii. 10. What Idea given of God in certain Religions. ii. 13, 14. Ill Character of a God: its Consequences in respect to Morality. ii. 47, 48, 49, 50, 51. How God can be said to witness for himself to Men. ii. 333, 334
Belief of a God, consider'd as Powerful. ii. 55. As Worthy and Good. ii. 56 GONDIEURT.

I N D E X.

- GONDIBERT. iii. 341, 342
Good: how predominant in Nature. ii. 216, 217. What is truly Good.
ii. 225, 237, 238, 239, &c.
Good of the Whole. i. 40. Private Good, what? i. 203. (See Interest, Pleasure.)
Good what? Where found? i. 308, 309, 310, &c. Good and Happiness.
ii. 227. iii. 196, 197, 8, 9, &c. Opinion of Good. ibid.
Goods of Fortune, and Goods of the Mind compar'd. ii. 432, 433, &c.
Goodness, Divine. i. 23. Opinion of Goodness creates Trust. i. 94. ii.
334, iii. 114
Goodness: what, in a sensible Creature? ii. 21
GORGIAS LEONTINUS. i. 74
GOTH, i. 86, 89. Gothick influence in Philosophy and Religion as well as Arts. i. 350, 351. Gothick Government. iii. 150, 151. Gothick Notion. i. 86, 89. Gothick Poetry. i. 217, 218. Gothick Architecture. i. 236
Gothick Conqueror, conquer'd by Spiritual Arms. iii. 90, 91
Gothicism. See Barbarism, Barbarians.
Government absolute. (See Absolute.) Free Government or Constitution.
i. 216. Definition. iii. 311, 312. Origin or Rise of Civil Government: Ridiculous Account. i. 109. (See State of Nature.) Natural Account. i. 110, 111, &c. 236, 237, 238, 239, &c. Civil Government conforming and subordinate. i. 110, 336. Desy'd, insulted, embroil'd. i. 363. iii. 89
Grace. (See Decorum.) The naturally graceful. i. 135. (See Beauty, Numbers.) Grace and Action in Human Bodies. i. 190
Grace. See Titles.
Grammar: Grammatical Rules necessarily applicable to Scripture of whatever kind. iii. 229, 230, &c.
Grandeecs. See Ministers.
Grapes not from Thorns. i. 286
Gratitude. ii. 240, 241
Gratuity. i. 126. See Reward.
Gravity, try'd, prov'd. i. 11, 12. True and False. ibid. Of the Essence of Imposture. i. 11. Convenient Gravity of this sort. iii. 334. (See Grimace, Formality, Solemnity.)
Great Men. See Ministers.
The Great (Great People) their Influence on Wit, and in the literate World.
i. 8, 210, &c. Their Character. ii. 137, 138
GREEK, Fountain of Arts, Science and Politeness. i. 219. iii. 138, &c.
Early Writers of Greece form'd the publick Taste. i. 263, 264. Grecian Religion. iii. 126, 127, 128, 153, 154. Manners. ibid. 152, &c.
 See Athenians.
Greek Language, original Beauty and Refinement. iii. 138, 139, &c.
GREGORIUS the Great. iii. 239, 240
Grimace, religious and zealot-kind. i. 65, 66, 74, 149. See Gravity.
Grimace, from Constraint and Persecution, i. 84
Grottesque-

I N D E X.

Grotſque-Figures. i. 149
 Guardian honeſt, when? i. 125

H.

H A L F-Jeſters. i. 81
 Half-Knave, throw Fool. i. 131, 132
 Half-Thinkers. iii. 300. See Thought.
 Harmony, ſuch by Nature, not by Faſhion or Will. i. 353. Natural Harmony, how advanc'd. i. 238. Harmony, Rules of. i. 140. See Muſick.
 Haunt. See Specter.
 Heart, unſound, hollow. i. 43. A Heart in Lover's Language. i. 137.
Deſcent on the Territories of the Heart. i. 355. Heart merely human. i. 358. Heart after the Pattern of God Almighty. i. 358. Numbers of the Heart. iii. 34. Wiſdom of. i. 277. See Beauty, Character.
 Heart makes the Philoſopher. iii. 161
 Heathen-Charity. See Charity.
 Heathen-Church. See Church.
 Hell. iii. 177, 178. See Devil, Gallows, Jail.
 Heraldry. i. 362, 363
 Herald of Fame. i. 225
 HERCULES. ii. 188
 Judgment of Hercules, the Subject of it. iii. 349, 350. The Principal Figure in the Piece. iii. 358. His different Appearance in the ſeveral Parts of the Diſpute. iii. 350, 351, 359, 360
 Herculean Law. i. 267
 Hereafter: A Queſtion with a Scptick. ii. 236, 237. See Future State.
 Heretick by both. iii. 104. Good-humour'd Man properly no Heretick. iii. 105
 Hermit, never by himſelf. i. 175
 Hero: Philoſophick Hero. i. 194, 198. Hero of the black Tribe. i. 349
 Heroick Prince: a Character and Story. i. 176, &c.
 Heroick Virtue. See Virtue.
 Heroick Sign-Poſt. i. 225
 Heroiſm and Philanthropy. i. 113. Heroiſm in Faith. See Volunteer, Faith.
 HERODOTUS. iii. 247. Citiz. iii. 43
 Hierarchy. i. 86. iii. 48. (See Magi, Prieſt.) Its Power in Perſia, Ethiopia, Egypt. ibid. Its Growth over the Civil Magiſtrate. ibid. Acquiſition of Lands and conſequent Dominion. ibid. Certain Law, Permiſſion, or Indulgence, neceſſarily producing this Effect, and fatal to the Civil Magiſtrate. iii. 44, 45, 78, 79. Establiſhment of the Hierarchy over the Monarchy, or State in the Egyptian, Ethiopian, Babylonian Empires. iii. 48, 49. Parallel Effect in the Roman. iii. 78, 79, 88, 89, 90, 91, &c. Roman-Chriſtian and Catholick Hierarchy: its Growth under the Univerſal Roman Monarchy. vi. 90. And afterwards over the barbarous Nations. iii. 91. Its Prevalency, Policy, Comprehenſiveneſs, Maſtity

I N D E X.

- and Grandeur.* iii. 92, 93, 94. Affected Pretenders, Imitators, and Copies after these Originals. ibid. and 106
History compar'd with Poetry. i. 145
Historian. i. 122, 189. Disinterested. i. 224, 225. See Poet.
Historical Truth. See Truth.
History of Criticks. i. 240, &c.
Mr. HOBBS. i. 88, &c. 94
HOMER. ii. 205, 221. His Character. i. 208. iii. 32, 354. Cited.
 iii. 153. Character of his Works. i. 196, 197, 198. iii. 32, 153.
Father and Prince of Poets. iii. 32. and i. 241. Age when he rose.
 i. 243, &c. Revolution made by him. ibid.
Homeric Characters or Personages. i. 196, 197, 207. iii. 260, 261,
 262. Homer understood how to lye in Perfection. i. 346. iii. 260, 261, 262
Honest in the Dark. i. 125
Honesty, its Value. i. 121. Honesty and Harmony reside together. i. 208.
See Virtue, Integrity.
Honestly the best Policy. i. 152. iii. 204, 205
HONOURS. See Titles.
Point of Honour. ii. 194, 195
Auctions or Sales of Honour. iii. 168, 169, 203, 209
Hope and Fear in Religion. ii. 55, 57, &c. See Future State, Reward and Punishment.
HORACE cited, passim—Passages of Horace explain'd. i. 51. (viz.
Sat. v. ver. 97.) iii. 202. (viz. Epist. vi. lib. 1. bis iii. 249. (viz.
Epist. xx. Sat. 1. lib. 2, &c.) Also his Epistle to Augustus (lib. 2.)
i. 269, 270
Horace, best Genius, and most Gentleman-like of Roman Poets. i. 328. His History, Character. iii. 202, 248, 249, 250. ii. 224
Horse, Hound, Hawk, &c. See Beast.
Hobby-Horse. i. 217
Horseman and Horsemanship. i. 193
Hospitality: what kind of Virtue. ii. 165. Antient, Heathen. iii. 143.
 144. (See Charity, Friendship.) Inhospitable Disposition or Hatred of Foreigners, what Sign? iii. 153. Inhospitality, English. iii. 152, 153
Hot-Cockles. iii. 293
Hound, Horse. See Beast.
Humility, what Virtue, in Religion, and Love. i. 331, 332
Humour: Good-Humour, best Security against Enthusiasm. i. 22, 55. Force of Humour in Religion. iii. 95, 98, 108, &c. Ill-Humour, Cause of Atheism. i. 22
Good-Humour and Imposture, Enemys. i. 52. Good-Humour, Proof of Religion. ibid. Of Wit. 74. A natural Lenitive against Vice. i.
 128. Specifick against Superstition and Enthusiasm. ibid. and 55
Humour and Fancy, ill Rule of Taste. i. 338, 339, 340, 341, &c. iii. 165, 166, 167, &c. Ill Rule of Good and Ill. ibid. and iii. 200, 201
Humours, as in the Body. So in the Mind. i. 14
Hydrophobia. i. 50
Hylomania

I N D E X.

- Hylomania. iii. 65
 Hypocrites. i. 94
 Hypothesis. See System.
 Fantastick Hypothesis. ii. 190. iii. 160
 Hypotheses, Systems, destroy'd, blown up. i. 38
 Religious Hypothesis multiply'd. iii. 47, &c.
- I.
- JAIL. i. 125. iii. 177. See Gallows.
JANUS: Janus-Face of Zealot-Writers. i. 66
 Ideas, simple, complex, adequate, &c. i. 287, 288, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303. (See Metaphysics.) Comparison of mere Ideas and articulate Sounds, equally important. i. 288, 303. Examination of our Ideas not judicick, when? i. 312. True and useful Comparison, Proof, and Ascertainment of Ideas. i. 299, 300, 301, &c.
 Ideal World. iii. 211
 Ideas innate. i. 49, 354. ii. 43, &c. 412. iii. 36, 214, 215, &c. Not innate, of what kind. iii. 164
 Ideas of the World, Pleasure, Riches, &c. what? i. 301. See Opinion, Fancy.
 Identity. ii. 350, 351, 352. iii. 192, 193, &c.
 Idol; Idol-Notions, Idolaters. i. 60, 357
JEPHTHAH. iii. 124
 Jest: true, false. i. 74, 81, 128, 129. See Ridicule.
JEWs, a cloudy People. i. 29, 30, 282. iii. 53, 56, &c. 115, 116. Sullen, bitter, persecuting. ibid. Their Character by God himself. iii. 55. Jewish Understanding. i. 282, 283. Disposition towards the darker Superstitions. iii. 124. Jews, a chosen People. i. 357. iii. 282. Left to Philosophy for Instruction in Virtue. i. 101
 Jewish People, originally dependent on the Egyptians. iii. 51—59, &c. Their Rites, Ceremonys, Learning, Science, Manners, how far deriv'd thence. ibid. How tenacious and bigotted in this respect. ibid. Spirit of Persecution and Religious Massacre, propagated from hence. ibid. and iii. 60, 61, 62, 80, 81, 82, 86, 87, &c. (See Persecution.) Jewish Princes. iii. 116, 124
 Ill, whether really existent in the Universe. ii. 9, 10. Absolute Ill, what? ii. 20. Relative Ill. ibid. & 21. The Appearances of Ill no Argument against the Existence of a perfect sovereign Mind. ii. 363, 364. No real Ill in Things. ii. 364
 Appearance of Ill necessary. ii. 288, 289
 Imitation Pictual. i. 193. See Poet. Works of Imitation, how to be regulated. iii. 389, 390
 Imperium in Imperio. i. 114
 Imposters, speak the best of Human Nature. i. 94. See Goodness.
 Imposture arraign'd. i. 10. Hidden under Formalty. i. 74. Essence of Imposture. i. 11. Imposture fears not a grave Enemy. i. 31. Strangely mix'd with Sincerity, Hypocrisy, Zeal, and Bigotry. ii. 324, 325
 Indian

I N D E X.

- Indian Musick and Painting. i. 242, 340. Indian Princes late Embassadors.
 iii. 339
- Indolence. i. 310, 318, 319. Its dangerous Consequences. ii. 158, 159, 160
- Informers. i. 126
- Ingratitude, a negative Vice. ii. 167
- Inhumanity not compatible with Good-Breeding. ii. 163. Unnatural. ii. 164
- Inquiry concerning Virtue, Deity, &c. See Vol. ii. Treatise I. & i. 297.
Occasion of this Treatise. ii. 5, 6, 7, 8. Its Defence. ii. 263—280
- Inquiry, Freedom of. i. 34
- Inquisition. i. 20, 186. iii. 103
- Inquisitors. i. 65. Self-Inquisitor. i. 186
- Inspiration. i. 7, 45. (See Prophets, Poets.) Inspiration a Divine En- thusiasm. i. 53. Atheistical Inspiration. iii. 64. True and False, alike in their outward Symptoms. i. 53. Inspiration credited, how? iii. 40 Judgment of the inspir'd concerning their own Inspiration. iii. 63, 74, 75, 215. See Poets, Sibyls.
- Instinct, from Nature. ii. 411, 412. See Ideas.
- Intelligent Being: What contributes most to his Happiness. ii. 100, 101
- Interest governs the World, a false Maxim. i. 115, 117, 118 Self-Interest.
 ii. 80. Rightly and wrong taken. i. 281, 282, &c. iii. 302, 304, 305.
Unwisely committed to the care of others. iii. 159. How form'd. i. 296.
Vary'd, steer'd. ibid.
- True Interest either wholly with Honesty or Villany*. i. 131, 172, 173, 174.
Judgment of true Interest. i. 307, 308. iii. 201
- Disinterestedness real, if Virtue and Goodness be such*. i. 98
- JOB. ii. 34, 123
- JONAH, Prophet. iii. 118, 119, 120, &c.
- JOSEPH (Patriarch.) Education, Character. iii. 57, 58
- JOSHUA. i. 356, 357, 358
- JOVE. ii. 47, 48, 203
- Journalists: Journal des Savans de Paris. iii. 18, 20. Histoire des Ouvra- ges des Savans. 18. Nouvelles de la Republique des Lettres. ibid.
Bibliotheque Choisie. ibid. & 20. See Bibliotheque Choisie.
- Irony. i. 71. See Banter, Raillery.
- ISIS. iii. 47
- ISOCRATES. iii. 280
- ITALIANS, Buffoons. i. 72, 120. Italian Wit and Authors. i. 335, 346
Italian Taste, the best in Painting, Musick, &c. i. 338, 340
- Judgment, preliminary Right, i. 12. Previous Judgment. i. 54
- JULIAN (Emperor) i. 25. iii. 86, 87, 88, 89. His Letter to the Bostrens.
 ibid.
- JUPITER, see JOVE.
- Just and Unjust acknowledg'd. ii. 420
- JUSTIN, (Historian.) iii. 54, 57
- JUVENAL, explain'd. i. 103, &c. Cited. i. 70, 106, 126, 253. iii. 23, 24, 42, 50, 178, 274
 K I N D

I N D E X.

K.

- KIND (Species) Union with a Kind. ii. 78. Oppos'd by Self-Interest. ii. 79
- Kings. See Princes, Monarchy, the Great, a Court.
- Knave, natural and civil. i. 109. By what Principle different from the Saint: or how distinguish'd from the honest Man. i. 102, 126, 127, 130, 131, 172, 173
- Knave incapable of Enjoyment. i. 130. Betrays himself, however able. iii. 305
- Knaves in Principle, in Practice. i. 93, 94. Knave, no Quarrel with Religion. ibid. Half-Knave, thorough-Fool. i. 131, 132. ii. 173. Zealot-Knave. i. 132, 133. (See Zeal.) Court-Knaves. iii. 168, 169, 170, 1, 2, 3, &c. Knaves, Friends to Moderation, in what sense. i. 115. Knave young, middle-ag'd, old. iii. 178
- Knavery, mere Diffonance and Disproportion. i. 207, 208. See Dishonnelly.
- Knawith Indulgence, the Consequences. i. 121, 130, 131, 132, 172, 310, 311. iii. 392, 395. Knawith Religion. iii. 125. See Religion.
- Knight-Ernantry. i. 20. See Chivalry, Gallantry.
- Knights-Templar, growing to be an Overmatch for the Magistrate. i. 86. Extirpated. ibid. See Magophony, Hierarchy.
- Knowledge: first Principle, previous. i. 41, &c. 54, 269, 334
- Knowledge of Men and Things, true Philosophy, how learnt. i. 122, 123

L.

- LADYS, fainted, worship'd, drift'd. i. 273, 331, 332. ii. 195. (See Gallantry, Chivalry.) English Ladys seduc'd by Tales and Impostures. i. 347—350. Type or Prophecy of this in our ancient Stage-Poet. ibid. See Superstition, Sex, Women.
- Lampoons. i. 265
- Lands. (See Property, Agrarian) Religious Land Bank. iii. 44, 45, &c.
- Latitude of Thought. iii. 297, 298, &c.
- Latitudinarians. Ibid.
- Laugh half-way. i. 81. Both ways. i. 129. Laugh wrong-turn'd. iii. 296. (See Ridicule.) Men not to be laugh'd out of their Wits. i. 96. Men laugh'd out of, and into Religion. iii. 291. Difference in seeking what to laugh at, and what deserves Laughter. i. 128
- Laugh, mutual, and in turn. i. 149
- Laws, Royal Counsellors in our English Constitution. i. 212. Guardian-Laws. i. 219. Religion by Law establish'd. i. 362. iii. 71, 103, 231, 315, 316, 337, 338. (See Rites, Myteries, Revelation.) Heraldy by Law establish'd. i. 362
- Heracleian Law. i. 267
- Laziness. i. 310. See Indolence.
- Learning: Passion for Learning or Science, rank'd with natural Affection. ii. 104, 105
- Legitimate

I N D E X.

- Legitimate Work or Piece, in Writing. i. 336. iii 2, 26
LEON (St.) iii, 91
Letters. See Epistles.
Leviathan-Hypothesis. i. 88. See Mr. HOBBS. Wolf.
Liberal Arts. See Arts. Liberal Education. ii. 65. Liberal and illiberal Service. ii. 55, 65
Liberty of Criticism. iii. 266, 316. See Criticks.
Liberty civil, philosophical or moral, personated. ii. 252, 253.
Abuse of the Notion of Liberty in Morals and Government. iii. 305—309, &c. Liberty of the Will. i. 178, 179, 180, 184, 185, 186, 187. Liberty or free Disposition to follow the first Motion of the Will, is the greatest Slavery. i. 211. ii. 232
Liberty Philosophical, Moral. ii. 252, &c. 432, &c. iii. 201, 204, 307, 308, 309, &c.
Protestant Liberty. See Protestant.
Liberty: (See Government, Constitution, English, British.) Its Patrons, Well-wishers. i. 8. Consequence of its Rise and Fall. i. 219—222
Liberty in Conversation. i. 75. Falsly censur'd. i. 10. See Wit, Freedom.
Prejudice against Liberty. i. 89. Arts, Sciences, and Virtues, its Dependents. i. 64, 72, 96, 220, 221. See Arts, Science, Virtue.
Life—its Value. i. 121, 124, 302—Living well or good Living, false sense of the Phrase. i. 124. Living fast, false application of the Phrase. i. 315, 316. ii. 126, 127. Life sometimes a Misery. ii. 141.
Over-Love of Life, contrary to the Interest of a Creature. ii. 141, 142, 143
Future Life: The Belief, of what advantage? ii. 60—63
Lineage of Philosophy and Poetry. i. 239, 240, 253, &c. iii. 132, 137, 138, 139, &c.
LYSIAS (Orator.) iii. 280
LIVY (the Historian.) i. 47, 48
Logick, of Modern Schools. i. 286, 287, 334, 350, 351
Looking-glass, vocal. i. 171. Magical Pocket-Looking glasses. i. 195.
Looking-glass to the Age. i. 199, 202, 205. False Looking-glasses. iii. 296
Love. (See Charity.) Love of Friends. ii. 238, 239
Love of Mankind. ii. 241, 242
Love of one's Country. iii. 143—149, &c. Love of Order and Perfection. ii. 212
Love imperfect and narrow, generous and equal. iii. 143, 4 5, 6, &c. (See Affection.) Publick Love. i. 37. (See Publick.) Love, highest, noblest. ii. 211, 212, &c. Divine Love. ii. 244, 245. (See Enthusiasm.
Love, dangerous Sophister. i. 183, 184. Passion of Love in the Sexes. i. 176, &c. Subject the most affecting, in the Passion of Love between the Sexes. ii. 105, 106. Flattery of Love. i. 138. Religious Love between the Sexes. iii. 38. Love cruelly treated by Epicurus. iii. 31, 32
Self-Love. ii. 58. Its Effects in Religion. ii. 58, 59. Silly reasoning about Self-Love, by pretended Wits. i. 90. 118, 119, 120. See Self-Religio:

I N D E X.

- Religion and Love.* i. 331, 332. Galante Love, and religious Charity of a certain kind, compar'd. iii. 115
- Lover, Martyr.* See Martyr.
- Lover solitary.* i. 174. Story of a Heroick Lover. i. 176——179, &c. Lovers Pursuit and Enjoyment, of what kind. i. 309. See Enjoyment.
- LUKE (St.) cited, commented. iii. 245
- LUCRETIVS. i. 52, 118. iii. 32
- LUXURY. i. 310, 315, 319, 320, 321. ii. 147, 148, &c. iii. 199, 200, 304, 305
iii. 246
- LYCURGUS. iii. 246
- Eyes, judiciously compos'd, teach Truth in the best manner.* i. 346. Homer perfect in this Science. ibid. and iii. 260, 261, 262
- Lymphaticks.* i. 50, 51. See Fanaticks, Enthusiasm.
- M.
- MACHINE (in Epick and Dramatick.) i. 359. World a Machine. ii. 337
- Madness: real Madman who?* i. 321——324, &c.
- MAECENAS. i. 220, 270. iii. 21, 249, 250
- Magi of Persia, &c.* i. 85. Their Power. iii. 48. See Hierarchy.
- Magicians. See Magi.
- Magick, moral.* i. 136. Magick of Enthusiasm. iii. 29
- Magistrate, his Duty and becoming Part in Religion.* i. 10, 16, 19. ii. 261. iii. 104, 105, &c. Executioner to the Priest, when? i. 66. iii. 110.
- A Dresser.* i. 83. Dress'd in his turn. ibid. See Government, Hierarchy.
- Civil Magistrat, insulted.* i. 363. iii. 89. Controul'd. iii. 44. Overaw'd. iii. 47. Depos'd sentenc'd. iii. 48, 49
- Magnificence, true and false.* i. 139
- Magophony, Persian.* i. 85, &c. Ethiopian. iii. 49. European and Christian. i. 85, 86
- Mahometifin.* iii. 104. Mahometan Clergy. iii. 235
- Malice, only where Interests are oppos'd.* i. 39, 40. None in the general Mind——nor in mere Nature. ibid.
- Malignity, Passion unnatural.* ii. 165
- Man: a good, an ill.* ii. 21 Formidable, in what sense. ii. 94. Subjeçt to Nature. ii. 302. Why no Wings. ii. 302, 303. Man's Excellency different from that of a Brute. ii. 304, 305. Why Man has not the same Instincts which are in Brutes. ii. 308, 309. Whether sociable by Nature. ii. 311, 312, 313. Whether a Man can be accounted a Wolf to a Man. ii. 320. Absurdity of that Saying. ibid. Man's Dignity and Interest. ii. 425 Different Manners of Men. ii. 429, 430, 431, 432
- Mankind, how corrupt.* ii. 198, 201
- Manners: Petick Manners and Truth.* iii. 260, 261, 2, 3. See Poet, Truth.
- MARSHAM, Chrou. Can. iii. 52, 53, 54, 124
Martyrdom.

I N D E X.

- Martyrdom. i. 26, &c. iii. 40, 41
 Martyrs for Atheism. i. 90. iii. 64—Pro and Con, for any Opinion.
 iii. 49, 41. Amorous, Heroick, Religious, Martyrs. ii. 106. iii. 34 Mask. See Carnival.
 Mafs. i. 26
 Maffacre. See Magophony.
Maffers in Exercifes and Philofophy. i. 191. Maffers in Mechanicks. See Mechanicks. i. 106, 211
Young Maffers of the World. i. 106, 211
Mathematical Demonftration in Morals. See Morals.
Mathematicks. i. 10. Delightful, whence. ii. 104, 105. Necessary.
 i. 289, 290. Modest. ibid.
Matter, Whole and Parts. ii. 368. Not capable of real Simplicity. ii. 351, 352. Not conftitutive of Identity. ibid. Subftance material, immaterial.
 ii. 353, 354
Matter and Thought, how mutually affecting or productive. ii. 296, 297, 369
 MAXIMUS TYRIUS, cited. ii. 295. iii. 32
Mechanicks, Maffers in. i. 235
Mechanick Forms, Beautys. i. 137. See Palaces.
Mechanifm—human. i. 115, 294. Divine. ii. 336, 337
 MEDEA. iii. 313
Meditation Rural-Philofophical. ii. 344, 345, &c.
Meditations publifh'd. i. 164. Meditation impofing, conceited, pedantick.
 i. 164, 165, 343
Meditation in the praife of a Deity. ii. 344, 345, 346. Upon the Works of Nature. ii. 366—374. Upon the Elements. ii. 376—380.
Upon the Variety of the Seafons and Climates. ii. 383—391
Melancholy, a pertinacious and religious Complexion. iii. 67 Melancholy in Religion, Love. i. 13. Power of Melancholy in Religion.
 iii. 65. Devout Melancholy. i. 22, 32, 44. iii. 67, 68. Treatifes of Melancholy. iii. 30. See Religion, Enthufiafm.
Memoirs. i. 163. Memoir-Writing. i. 200, 224, 346. See Miscellany.
Memory, τὸ Ἐμνημόνεον. i. 143
 MELANDER. i. 246. iii. 238
Mental Enjoyment, whence. ii. 101, 117—126
Mercenarienefs. i. 126. See Reward.
Merit in believing. See Belief.
 MESSIAS. iii. 78. See Monarchy.
Metaphor (or Metaphorick Style or Manner). i. 243, 244, &c. iii. 140
Metaphyficks. i. 289, 299, 310. ii. 354. iii. 193, 194
Metaphyficks, neceffary Knowledge of nothing knowable or known. iii. 210, 211
Metaphyficians, their Character. i. 291
Metaphyficical Articles of Belief. i. 306, 307
 MILO. ii. 304
 MILTON. i. 276, 358, 359
 Mimes

I N D E X.

- Mimes. i. 193. iii. 285. See Imitation, Mimickery.
- Mimickery. i. 196. Mimographer. ibid
- Mind, free. i. 130. ———— a Kingdom. iii. 205. Beauty of the Mind.
i. 137. Value of a Mind. ii. 440. iii. 168, 205. Its inward Proportion.
ii. 83
- Mind: particular Minds prove an Universal one. ii. 355, 356, 357, 358.
Universal Mind, how prov'd. ii. 290, 291
- Minister of State. i. 37, 192. Ministers of State concern'd for their Character and Memory. i. 225. Conduct necessary to preserve them. i. 225, 226, 227, &c. Claim of the People over them. i. 227. Dangerous Conceit of Ministers, and Great Men. i. 229, 230
- Ministers MALCENAS'S. i. 215, 216
Good Minister, how to be valu'd and judg'd. i. 23, 24
- Ministry: good Ministry in England. iii. 148. The new, the old. iii.
208. Ill and slavish Ministry, of what consequence. iii. 148, 149
- Miracles, scriptural and traditional. i. 6. Modern. i. 44. iii. 70. Christian, Moorish, Pagan. i. 345, 347, 348, 349. Past, present. ii. 331.
The Danger of believing new Miracles. ii. 328, 329, 330. Whether Miracles can witness for God or Men. ii. 331, 332, 333. Mere Miracles insufficient Proof of Divinity, or Revelation. ii. 333, 334. iii. 114.
Merry Miracle. iii. 123
- Mirror. See Looking-glass.
- Misanthropy: what kind of Passion. ii. 165. Sometimes, in a manner, national. ii. 166. iii. 153
- Miscellanarian Authors, their Policy and Art. iii. 288, 289
- MISCELLANYS. Vol. iii. p. 1, 2, 3, &c.
- Miscellaneous Memoir, Essay-Writing, Style and Manner. ibid. and iii.
95, 96, 97, 225, 226. See Essay, Memoir.
- Miscellaneous Collections, annual iii. 274
- Mode: Modes of Religion. i. 84
- Model: current Models of Religion. i. 84. Models for Poetry and Writing.
i. 206. See Exemplar.
- Moderation Philosophical. iii. 37. When in fashion with the Zealots of every Party. iii. 110, 111. Moderation disclaim'd. iii. 342
- Moderation in a Writer. i. 166
- Monarch: Grand Monarch now: and of old in Greece. i. 223
- Monarcy. See Hierarchy.
- Monarchy universal. i. 216, 217, 220, 221, 222. iii. 23 (See Barbarians, Tyranny.) Absolute Monarchy, destructive of Arts, Manhood, Reason, Sense. i. 219, 220, 221, 237, 238, &c. iii. 23, 77, &c.
World groaning under the Roman Monarchy. iii. 77, 78. Hopes of a Divine Deliverer or Messiah from hence. iii. 77, 78. See Emperor, Roman.
- Monarchs. ii. 137
- Monosyllables in files or strings. iii. 265. Clash or clattering Rencontre of them in our Language. ibid.

Monster :

I N D E X.

- Musician-Legislators. i. 237, 238
 Mystery makes any Opinion become considerable. i. 91. Gives rise to Partys, Sects. ibid.
 Mysterys by Law establish'd. i. 359, 360. Religious Mysterys. i. 361
 Mystery debated. iii. 10, 11
 Sacred Mysterys inviolable with our Author, and, as such, unnam'd by him.
 iii. 70, 71, 315
 Mysterys the most absurd, how introduc'd into the Church. iii. 333, 334
 Mystical Love. ii. 211, 243
 Mysticks. ibid. Consequences of their indiscreet Zeal. ii. 271
 Mysticks. i. 175. See Quietists.
 Mythology. i. 359. Mythological or Fabulous Style of our Blessed Saviour.
 iii. 122, 123

N.

- NASTINESS. See Cleanliness.
 National Church. i. 17. See Church.
 National Opinion. i. 9
 Natural Affection, confess'd. i. 92. See Affection.
 The Natural and Unnatural in Things. iii. 213, 214, 215, 216, &c.
 Natural Ideas. See Ideas, Instinct.
 Nature, its Energy. ii. 359, 360. Nature in Man. ii. 300. In Brutes.
 ibid.
 Nature's admirable Distribution. ii. 306, 307
 State of Nature, imaginary, fantastical. i. 109. ii. 310—319. See Society.
 Nature, Divinity with Epicurus. iii. 64. See Epicurus.
 Power of Nature in moral Actions and Behaviour. i. 92. ii. 128. Na-taram expellas Furca. iii. 216. Nature will not be mock'd. i. 354.
 Has a strong Party within ourselves. ibid. Makes reprisals on her Antagonists. ibid. Prerogative of Nature. ibid.
 NERO. i. 25, 105. iii. 23
 Nobility: Polish-English. iii. 150. Young Noblemen. i. 103, 104, 5, 6. Young Noblemen, English. iii. 168, 169, 172, 173, 174, 216, 217, 218
 Nose: a Nose (Discernment or Sense) in Morals, Life, &c. i. 125. (See Sense, Taste.) Noses counted. i. 148 Novels, sweet natural Pieces, highly in vogue. ii. 194. iii. 254. See Gallantry, Chivalry.
 Numbers and Proportion. i. 139, 356. Numbers of Life. i. 141. See Proportion, Beauty.
 Nympholepti. i. 50. See Fanaticks.

O.

- OECONOMY of the Animal Races. ii. 92, 93, 94, 131, 132, &c.
 300, 361, 2, 3, 4, &c. 318, 319, 320. iii. 220, 221, 222, &c.
 See Society.

Olympicks.

I N D E X.

- Olympicks, antient, modern. i. 269. Olympick Games, and Congress of Greece. iii. 138
- Omnipotence, what? i. 39, 40. ii. 10, 11, 57, 71, &c. 203, 359, 360, 364. What not. i. 107. ii. 14
- Opinion (see Doctrine, Hypothesis) National, or by Inheritance. i. 9. ii. 103. Governour, and Govern'd. i. 185. Ground of Passion. i. 294, &c. Principal of Conducl. i. 307, 308. Opinion all in all. ii. 435, 437, &c. iii. 186, 187, 196, 197, 8, 9, &c. Freedom in examining, our own Opinions, as well as the Opinions of others. i. 60, 61. Corrupt Opinion, Cause of Wrong. ii. 32, 33. Opinion and Fashion suppos'd measure of Virtue and Vice. i. 80, 352, 353. ii. 417, 418. Life regulated by Opinion. ii. 435, 436, 437
- Oracle. i. 126. Divine Oracles Guardianship. i. 360. Heathen and Christian Oracles. ii. 330, 331. iii. 232, 233, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, &c.
- Oration. See Rhetorick, Declamation, Preaching.
- Orator. i. 161. Orators. i. 268
- Order: Principal of Order Univesal. ii. 362. Love of Order. ii. 212. Study and Contemplation of it, a natural Joy, Inclination and Affection in Man. ii. 105
- Order and Providence. ii. 276
- Order in Writing. See Style.
- Ornament independent, to be cautiously employ'd in the Action of Hercules. iii. 384. The Emblematick and Historical not to be confounded. iii. 384, 385. An Objection concerning it answer'd. iii. 385. False Ornaments to be avoided. iii. 390
- Orthodoxy: casual, Fortunate. iii. 104, &c. Orthodox Muse. i. 359
- Orthodox, Divine, or Churchman. iii. 10, 11
- Orthodoxy, of the Author. iii. 70, 71, 315
- OSIRIS. iii. 47.
- OVIB, cited. iii. 144

P.

- PACE. See Amble.
- Pageant of State. i. 204. Court-Pageant. iii. 185
- Pain and Pleasure mix'd. ii. 234, 235
- Paint. See Fucus.
- Painter of History, to fix his Date. iii. 353. Not at liberty to mingle Actions of different Dates. ibid. Test of his Judgment. iii. 357. Not to make his Action Theatrical, but according to Nature. iii. 368. The same Qualifications necessary in him as in a Poet. iii. 387
- Painters: All Painters compar'd with like Poets. i. 225, 226. Painter put to his shift. i. 204, 205
- Painters: Raphael. i. 338. iii. 230. Carache. i. 338
- Painters after the Life. iii. 291. Face-Painters. i. 144, 145. Painting and Painters. i. 112, 3, 4, 5, 6. Master-Painter. i. 197, 206, 227. Battel-Painter. i. 202. See Artifs. Statuary.
- Painting. False Taste in Painting. i. 356. True Taste how gain'd. i. 338, 339

I N D E X.

339. Dignity, Severity, Austerity of the Art. i. 340, 341, 342.
Style in Painting. ii. 186. Simplicity and Unity of Style and Colouring.
 i. 143, 144, 341, 342. Unity and Truth of Design. The 'Ευσίωπιος.
ibid. and 354. Greatness. i. 144. Ancient Masters. i. 144, 340.
 341, 342. False Taste and Corruption of the Art, whence. ibid. Grotesque Painting. iii. 6. Imposture in Painting. iii. 230. Pretended Heavenly Style and Divine Hand disprov'd. ibid.
Painting of History, the Regulation of it. ibid. 349
 Palaces and their Ornaments. i. 139. iii. 173, 184, 185, 186. See Beauty.
 PALESTINE, the Country: its Superstitions. iii. 124. See Syria, Jew.
 PAN. i. 15, 16. Panick Fear. ibid. Panick Rage or popular Fury. ibid.
Religious Panick. ibid. and iii. 66, 69. Panick Fear for the Church.
 iii. 83, 84, 85, &c. Panick Zeal. ibid. & 69. i. 43, 44
 Panegyrics the worst of Satires. i. 226. Panegyrics, English. i. 266, &c. Panegyrick Games. i. 269 Herculean Law, or Club-Method in Panegyrick. i. 267. Panegyrics modern. ibid. 274
 Parables, double-meaning to amuse. ibid. 63
 PARACELSUS. ibid. 287
 Parasites. i. 35. See Sycophants.
 PARIS, Judgment of, how distinguish'd from that of Hercules. ibid. 359
 Parody. i. 198, 246. See Comedy.
 Parterie. See Palace.
 Passion: Genealogy of the Passions. i. 116, 295. Study of the Passions. i.
 295, 297. iii. 31. Belle Passion. i. 5. Heroick Passion of the De-vot. i. 19. O Economy of the Passions. ii. 92, 93, 94, &c. See O Economy.
 Passion too strong or too weak. ibid. 91
Human and weak Passions deify'd. i. 38. ii. 256. iii. 306, 307
 Passion, how the Change of it may be express'd in a Subject. ibid. 355, 356
 Patch-work. ibid. 5
 Patent: Letters-Patent. ibid. 338
 Patentees for Authorship. i. 335. For Religion. ibid. 338 Patria: Non ille, &c. i. 123. Dulce & Decorum. i. 102. The word wanting in our Language. ibid. 149 Patriot. i. 101, 102. Bought and sold. iii. 170, &c. Patriots of the Soil.
ibid. 150
 Patrons, modern. ibid. 229, 268, 304
 PAUL (St.) his Character. i. 30. iii. 74, 75, 83, 84, &c. Style. iii. 85,
 &c. and 337. Cited. i. 26, 102, 281. iii. 238, 245
St. Paul allows to the Heathen their own Prophets. iii. 238. Cites their Prophets with Honour. ibid.
 Pedagogue. i. 72, 73. See Tutor, Pedant.
 Pedant baited. ibid. 111
 Pedant and Pupil. ibid. 64, 122, 123
 Pedant. See Pedagogue, Zealot, Scholastic, University.

Pedantry

I N D E X.

- Pedantry a Millstone. i. 67. Pedantry in Conversation. i. 70 Pedantry oppos'd to true Knowledge. i. 122, 123
- Pencil, Sacred, or Heaven-guided. iii. 230. See Painting.
- Penmen, Gladiatorial. iii. 12
- People, naturally good Judges of the Poet. i. 278
- Perfection, of Workmanship. i. 332, 337
- Peripatetick Philosophy, Genius. i. 256. Author de Mundo. ii. 214. iii. 263, 264
- Perfection. ii. 35. iii. 115. In Arcadia. i. 21. Unknown to the polite Heathen-World. ii. 166. iii. 154, 155. How begun. i. 25. iii. 60, 86, 87, &c. See Ægypt, Jews.
- Romish Perfection, of any other the most tolerable, and of best Grace and Countenance. iii. 93, 94, 103, 106
- Perfection of Features, Airs, Complexions, Meins. i. 84
- PERSIAN Empire and Hierarchy. iii. 48. See Hierarchy.
- PERSIUS. i. 162, 170, 171, 189, 315, 330. iii. 158, 312, 313
- Perpective, the Rules of it revers'd in Sculpture. iii. 380
- Persuasion, Goddeſs. i. 237, 238, 259, &c. Mother of Musick, Poetry and other Arts. ibid. Sister to Liberty. ibid. Men persuade themselves into whatever Opinions. iii. 310
- PETRONIUS, cited. i. 192
- Petulance: wanton Mischievousness unnatural. ii. 164
- Phænomena in Scripture. i. 282. Moral Phænomena. ibid.
- Phallico. i. 250. See Farce.
- Phenix-Señ. i. 27
- PHILIP. i. 249
- Philologists. i. 241, 246. ii. 295
- Philosophers, savage. i. 90, 94, 350, 351, 352. See Clown.
Moral Philosophers of a modern sort, more ignorant and corrupt than the mere Vulgar. i. 132, 352. iii. 204, 205. Run a Tale-gathering. i. 350
- Philosophers, their Original and Rise. i. 240. Posterior in Birth to Poets, Musicians, Criticks, Sophists. ibid. iii. 136, 137. Philosophers, themselves, Criticks of a double kind. i. 240, &c. Philosophers, antient Schools dissolv'd. iii. 79
- Philosophers and Bear-Garden. iii. 9, 11, 12, &c.
- Philosophy-modern. i. 122, 123, 124. iii. 308.—Antient. i. 18, 122, 123.—Home-spun. i. 43, 364. Masterſhip in Life and Manners. iii. 159. Its State and Liberty in the antient World. i. 18. Philosophical Speculations innocent. i. 96. See Hypothesis, Doctrine.
- Philosophy, where confin'd now-a-days. i. 333. ii. 184. Its Study incumbent on every Man. i. 322, 323, &c. ii. 438—442. Philosophy speculative and practical. i. 292, &c. Vain, or solid. i. 297, &c. Guide to Virtue in all Religions. i. 101, 102.—Balance against Superſtition. i. 18. Philosophy Judge of Religion. i. 297, 298.—Of her-self and of every thing besides. ibid. Majesty of Philosophy. i. 298, 299. Philosophy appeal'd to, by all. i. 285. Standard or Measure of Truth,

I N D E X.

- Trust, Friendship and Merit in Men.* ibid. &c. Genuine and false Fruits.
 i. 286, 287. Unhappy Mixture or Conjunction of Philosophy with Religion. iii. 61, 76, 77 Monstrous Issue and Product of this Union.
 iii. 79, 80, 81, 82, 86, &c.
- Dry Philosophy.* iii. 191. Vocal Philosophy. i. 287. Ideal Philosophy.
 See Idea.
- Lineage of Philosophy and Poetry.* (See Lineage.) Philosophy of the Woods. ii. 428
- Physician.* iii. 181
- Physicians in the Body-Political.* i. 14, 16
- Physiologists:* See Metaphysicians.
- Piece (Work, Treatise) legitimate, illegitimate.* i. 336. iii. 2
- Pilate (Pontius.)* iii. 242
- Planets: see Moon. Planetary System.* ii. 19, 370, 371, &c.
- Plate, emboss'd with Satyrs, Fauns, &c, proper to accompany the Figure of Pleasure.* iii. 386
- PLATO.* i. 54. iii. 77, 247, 280. Cited. i. 53, 54
- Platonists, latter sort.* i. 18
- Plays (Theatrical) how frequented.* i. 265. See Comedy, Tragedy, Theatre. Plays (vulgar) see Foot-ball, Hot-cockles.
- Pleasant Sensations.* i. 123, 124, 315
- Pleasure: whether our Good.* i. 308. ii. 226, 227, 228. iii. 200, &c.
All Pleasure not to be reckon'd as Good. ii. 229, 230. Enjoyments of Reason, not really comprehended in the Notion of Pleasure. ii. 232, 233. Pleasure no Rule of Good. i. 309, 339, 340. Pleasures of the Mind greater than these of the Body. ii. 99, 100. Sensual Pleasure, who the properest Judge of it. ii. 102, 103. Sensual Pleasures dependent on social and natural Affection. ii. 126, 127, 128, 129. Disjunctive, inconstant, and insupportable without it. ii. 129, 130. Unnatural Pleasure in general: its Effects. ii. 168, 169. Pleasure (Luxury) ii. 147, 148. See Luxury.
- Understanding in Pleasure.* i. 140. Rule and Order in Pleasure. ibid.
Men of Pleasure, forc'd to acknowledge Virtue. i. 140 See Poets.
- Pleasure, solicites Hercules in opposition to Virtue.* iii. 350. Is first heard.
 iii. 352. Her Figure to be drawn silent. iii. 369. Her posture and Ornament. iii. 370, 371
- PLINY cited.* i. 144. iii. 280
- Plum: Cant-word among rich Knaves.* i. 130
- PLUTARCH.* i. 334. Cited. i. 41, 54. iii. 126, 127, 128, 280
- Pneumatophobia.* iii. 64
- Poem Heroick, Epick.* (See Homer.) i. 356, &c. iii. 259, &c. Not to be Model'd on Holy Writ. i. 356, &c.
- Poet: Character of a Poet and Poetry from Starbo.* i. 208, 252. Poet, second Maker. i. 207. Poet, Herald of Fame. i. 225. Ill Poets worse than ill Painters. i. 225, 226
- Poets preferable to most Philosophers.* i. 122. iii. 307, 308.—More instructive than Hysserians. i. 316: Morality of Poets, i. 137. iii. 308, 309.

I N D E X.

309. Poets acknowledge Virtue. i. 136, 137. Strongest Party on Virtue's side. i. 316, 317
- Poets, Enthusiasts.* i. 4, &c. iii. 66, 232. Friends to Revelation. i. 4, &c. French Poets. i. 218. Modern Poets or poetical Writers affected, and false in their Draughts or Imitations. i. 204. iii. 289, &c. Conceited, combin'd. iii. 273, &c. Injudicious. i. 207. Impotent. ibid. English Poets, of a preceding Age. i. 275, 276. Of the present. iii. 276, &c.
- Audience forms the Poet.* i. 264. Poet, how far of necessity a Philosopher, and true to Virtue and Morals. i. 278. iii. 282
- Divine or Orthodox Poets.* i. 7, 359. iii. 118, 231—236, &c. Orthodox Mock-Poets. iii. 240, 241. Poets Fanaticks. i. 51
- Poets inspir'd.* i. 7, 51. iii. 66, 228, 229, &c. 238
- Poet.* See Author.
- Poetess, English.* ii. 235
- Poetical Enthusiasm,* i. 21. Poetical Genius. i. 161. Poetical Imitation. i. 193, &c. Poetical Truth. See Truth.
- Poetick Science.* i. 141—146
- Poetry: (See Musics.) Lineage of Poetry and Philosophy.* (See Lineage.) Sacred Wit and Poetry. iii. 118. Indifferent Poetry, detestable. iii. 283. Art of Poetry (an English Poem.) iii. 281
- Poetry Epick or Dramatick, incompatible with orthodox Divinity.* i. 356, 357, 358, &c.
- Point, Gingle or Pun.* i. 335
- Points of Wit.* iii. 5, 261
- Point of Honour.* ii. 194, 195. See Gallantry, Ducl.
- Poison to Reason.* i. 91
- Policy, British, and Dutch: Turkish and French.* i. 80
- Politeness, owing to Liberty.* i. 64, 72, 96. (See Liberty.) Flux and Reflux of Politeness. i. 271, 272
- Politicians.* i. 188, 189
- Politicks, part of Morals.* ii. 184, 185
- Polytheist: Definition.* ii. 11
- Pope (Clement XI.)* iii. 241. See Gregorius, Leon.
- Popery.* See Rome, Church, Priest, Mats.
- Post-way of Writers.* See Writers, Correctness.
- Power, Balance of.* i. 94, 95
- Praise of the Deity.* i. 41, &c. Qualifications for such Praise. ibid. Value of Praise or Glory from the Ignorant. ibid. Value of forc'd Praise or Applause. ibid. True Praise how learnt. ibid.
- Preaching.* i. 70, 73, 74, 134, 166. iii. 97, 98, 287. Elegant and gross. iii. 112, 113. Fashionable and unfashionable. ibid. Solemn, melancholy. i. 134. Variouly humour'd, alternate, high and low. iii. 130. See Declaration, Pulpit.
- Pre-conception.* ii. 307, 412. See Anticipation.
- Prefaces, Dedications, &c.* i. 200, 231, 304. iii. 27. Preface become a word to signify Excuse. i. 329, 330

I N D E X.

- Prelate. i. 6. See Bishop.
 Pre-conception. See Pre-conception.
 Prefs: Printing-Prefs. i. 305. See Printer.
 Priests, consecrated by the Magistrate. i. 362. iii. 337. Their Faction, Sedition, and Engagement of Mankind in their Quarrels. iii. 51, 59, 60, 80, 86, 87, 88, 89, 342. Their Love of Blood. i. 28. Propagation and Increase of the Priesthood: Manner and Consequence. iii. 44—49, &c. Model of the Egyptian and Asiatick Priesthoods; and Difference from the European, or that of Greece or Rome. iii. 43, 49. See Hierarchy.
 Prince: see Absolute. Story of an Heroick Prince. i. 176, 177, 178, 179, &c.
 Princes: use the plural Style, whence. i. 210, 211, 212. Prince-Authors. i. 213, 214
 Princely: see Royal.
 Principle: one universally active Principle. ii. 364, 365
 Printer. iii. 16. See Bookfeller, Amanuensis.
 Printing, free. i. 305, 306
 PRODICUS. ii. 253
 PROMETHEUS, poetical Solution of the Phænomenon of ILL. ii. 192, 201, 202
 Pœt a Prometheus. i. 207
 Proof. See Tryal, Criterion, Test.
 Prophet, the name allow'd to Heathens. iii. 238
 Prophets, passive Organs. i. 28. Modern Prophets. i. 46, &c. Compar'd with antient. ibid.
 Prophecy catching. i. 45.——The evil as well as the good Spirit. ibid. iii. 116
 Prophecy or Prophet-errant, Processional, saltant. iii. 117. Naked Prophecy. ibid.
 Property, Dominion founded in. iii. 49
 Proportion, and Symmetry founded in Nature; not in Opinion or Fancy. i. 353. See Symmetry. Architecture.
 Protestant Authors. iii. 18
 Protestant Liberty. iii. 235, 236, 319, 330, 331, 2, 3, 4, 5
 Publick. i. 37. See Constitution.
 Publick Assemblies. See Assemblies.
 Pulpit. i. 31. iii. 255, 265, 287. See Preaching.
 Punishments and Rewards, of what use in the State. i. 126. ii. 63, 64.
 In Familys. ii. 65. In Religion. ii. 65, 66
 Puns: see Univerſity, Point.
 Pupil: see Royal, Pedant, Tutor.
 Puppets, in Dialogue. iii. 292. See Dialogue.
 Puppet-show. i. 28, 29
 PYRRHO, PYRRHONIST. ii. 355. iii. 194, 212. See Sceptick.
 PYRRHUS. i. 325, 326
 PYTHAGORAS. iii. 77, 127, 203
 Pythagorean

I N D E X.

Pythagorean Sect. i. 18
 Pythian-God. i. 126.—Prophets: see Sibyl,

Q.

QUEEN Elizabeth. iii. 150
 Quibble. See Pun, Point.
 Quietists. iii. 38, 92

R.

RAILLERY, seeb Use of it. i. 128. Defensive Raillery. i. 62.
Opposition to Banter. i. 63. iii. 225. Gross sort and refin'd. i. 63,
 65. iii. 225. (See Ridicule.) Socratick Raillery. i. 194, 195, 198
Raillery affected by grave Doctors. i. 65. iii. 291. Grim Raillery. ibid.
 (See Burlesque.) Spirit of Raillery why prevalent in certain Conversations.
 i. 95. Why Carry'd into the Extreme. i. 72. Nothing proof against Raillery but what is honest and just. i. 74
Rake a better Character than that of certain grave and thoughtful Gentlemen.
 iii. 302
Reader courteous, uncourteous. i. 303, 304
Reading, wrong Choice and Manner. i. 341, 342, 343, &c. Multiplicity of Reading. i. 342, 343. Talk-reading. ibid. Swifeling. i. 344.
Polite Reading and Converse, chief Qualifications in a Character. i. 364.
Gothick and barbarous Reading. i. 344, 345, 346, &c.
Realist in Morality. ii. 267, 268
Reason, its Nourishment, Health. i. 69, &c. Its Antidote Poison. i. 91.
Reason Correctrix of the Fancies, &c. i. 322, 323, &c. Intendant, Mis- treß, House-keeper. ibid. Reason quitted: for what reason? When? How?
 iii. 299, &c. Reason confin'd: what effect? i. 71, 77
Reasoning: Habit of Reasoning alone can make a Reasoner. i. 69, 71, 77
Records, Recorders, Compilers, Registers in sacred Matters. i. 360. iii. 231
 ————238, &c. Rul'd by Law. ibid.
Rehearfal (Comedy). i. 259. iii. 277, 281
Religion, Virtue, how ally'd, founded, deriv'd, maintain'd. See Treatise IV. viz. The INQUIRY, first of Vol. ii. Religion: a publick Leading, or National Church. i. 17. Religion by Law establish'd. i. 362. iii. 71.
 (See Law.) Differences in Religion. i. 79. (See Modes, Models.)
Religious Antipathy. i. 18. ii. 96. iii. 40, 60, 80, 257. Religious Passion. iii. 35, 36. Differet Aspects of Religion, according to the Views or Aspects of Divinity. iii. 39. Power of Fancy or Imagination in Reli- gion. iii. 68. Religion consider'd as a Passion. ii. 88, 89. Its Influ- ence. ii. 51. Religion antient-Grecian. iii. 126, 127, 128. Roman,
Egyptian, Syrian. iii. 41, 42. Where first it grew unsociable. ii. 387, 388. Religion cruel Enemy to Virtue, by what means. ii. 256. Religion liberal, illiberal. ii. 272, 273. Knavish Religion. i. 126, 127, 132, 133. iii. 125, &c. True Foundation of Religion. ii. 269, 270. Reli- gion betray'd. ii. 279. Over-laid. i. 97. Exhilaration of Religion,
 iii.

I N D E X.

- iii. 95, 123. Different Faces or Representations of Religion, with what design. iii. 130, 131. Uniformity in Religion. See Uniformity.
- Relish, false, fatal to Painting and the other Arts. iii. 390
- Resignation, devout, false. ii. 59
- Resolution: see Will.
- Retirement, agreeable, necessary. ii. 223, 224
- Revelation judg'd by Morals. i. 298. What previous and antecedent. i. 39-
ii. 333, 334. See Authority.
- Revolution, the late happy one. i. 216. iii. 151
Revolution in the World and Nature. ii. 20, 214, 215, 367, 380, 381.
In our selves. i. 284, 285. ii. 236, 350. See Self.
- Rewards and Punishments: of what use in the State. ii. 63, 64. In Familys.
ii. 65. In Religion. ii. 65, 66, 273
Future Rewards and Punishments: wrong enforcement. i. 97, 98. ii. 69.
Virtue for Reward, not worth rewarding. ibid.
- Reward most deserv'd, when unsought. i. 100. No Goodness or Virtue in nature, if no Motive besides Reward. i. 98. A Knave not the less such, when Reward and Punishment alone make him honest in outward Behaviour. i. 125, 126, 127, 171, 172, 173. Consciousness, only Reward of Friendship. i. 100. See Mercenaries, Disinterestedness.
- Rhetoricians. iii. 140
- Rhetorick: see Declamation, Preaching.
- Rhetorick, in what part of a Discourse its greatest Energy shou'd be employ'd. iii. 353
- Rhythmus: false and true. i. 217, 218. iii. 263, 264
- Ridicule, its Rule, Measure, Test. i. 11, 12. (See Test.) Appeal to Ridicule. i. 61. Affection of it by Pedants. i. 65. See Banter.
- Ridicule ridiculous, when half-way, lame, or leaning to one side. i. 81. Injudicious and imposing, when far strain'd, and beyond its size. i. 83, 84, 85. Nonsensical, when rais'd from Contraries. i. 129
Nothing ridiculous but what is deform'd. i. 128. Virtue not capable of being Ridicul'd. ibid. & 129
- Right and Wrong. ii. 33, 31. In Nature, not from Opinion, Will, or Law. ii. 35. See Opinion, Virtue.
- Rites or Rituals by Law establish'd. i. 360
- Rites, Ceremonys, Habits, Processions, Pomp, their use and effect in Religion. iii. 91, 92
iii. 276
- ROGER, Sir Roger. iii. 22, 23
- Roman Eloquence corrupted. iii. 22, 23
- Roman Monarchy. See Monarchy.
- Roman Empire, Rise and Fall. i. 219—222
- Roman Emperors. iii. 41, 78, 90, 242. (See Cæsars.) Roman Worths. i. 267, 268
- Romance: see Novel.
- Romans old, rais'd from Barbarity by Greece. i. 223, 269, 270, 272.
Their gradual Refinement. i. 251. Growth of Heathen Religion under the Romans. iii. 41
- ROME

I N D E X.

ROME old. i. 219, 221. iii. 231. Rome modern. i. 338. iii. 91, 93, 235. See or Court of Rome. iii. 241, 242
Royal Preceptor. i. 214. See Prince.
Royal Pupils. i. 106, 211, 212
Rule. (See Law.) Rule of Dispatch. i. 267
Rufficks. i. 190

S.

SACRIFICE human. ii. 35. Familiar to the Inhabitants of the Paleſtine. iii. 124. (See Abraham, Jephtha.) Sacrifice of Forms, Natures. See Subordination.
Sadducee. iii. 77
Saint—on what terms? iii. 127. Female Saints. iii. 38. Saint-Prote-trices. i. 273
Saint-Errantry. i. 20
SALOMON Britiſh. i. 211
Salvation: ſee Saving.
Saracen's Head. i. 362
Satirs, Roman: their Origin. i. 258, 259. See Atellan, Felcennin.
Satir, Engliſh. i. 266. Spirit of Satir. iii. 109
Satirick and Comick Genius, Style. i. 258, 259, &c.
Satirifts, true to Virtue. i. 141. iii. 23. See Poet.
Savage: ſee Goth.
Savages. i. 90, 94
Savagenefs, Inroad whence. i. 96. See Barbarians.
Saving—of Souls. i. 19.—of Complexions. i. 85
SAUL. i. 45. iii. 116, 117
Scandal. i. 265
Scene, of the Story of Hercules, to be laid in the Country. iii. 376. To have nothing in it to call the Eye off from the Subject. iii. 377
Sceptical Converſation. i. 68, 69, 78, 79, &c.
Scepticism, Support to Reaſon, ibid. See Reaſon.
Scepticism, fashionable fort. ii. 206. Defence of Scepticism. iii. 71—76. Partial Scepticism cauſe of Vice and Folly. i. 81. (See Thinking.)
Scepticiſm, Remedy againſt the Dogmatical Spirit. i. 95. Sceptical Wit, Apology. i. 96
Scepticiſm of a Reverend Divine. iii. 68
Scepticks, the Advantages of their Philoſophy. ii. 206, 207
Sceptick perſonated. iii. 295. Modern Scepticks dogmatize. ii. 230, 231. Real Sceptick. ibid. & 236, 237. Chriſtian-Sceptick. iii. 72. See Academy, Pyrho.
Scholar and Gentleman. i. 333, &c. Scholar, ill-read. i. 342. True Scholar, or Man well-read, reads few Authors. i. 342, 343
Scolatiſtick. i. 67. (See Style.) Scolatiſtick Brood. iii. 80. Scolatiſtick Wea-pons. iii. 296

School:

I N D E X.

- School: inferior Schools of Arts and Exercises, teach Truth and Nature better than some higher. i. 333, 334, 335
- Sciences in general. i. 289, 290. Mock-Science. i. 287. Science of Articulation. ibid. Science: see Art.
- Scripture, Judgment of. i. 146, 147. — Criticism. iii. 72, 73. Scripture Sacred and Profane. iii. 231 — 236, &c. Sacred History, Characters, Scripture, subject to human Criticism, Philosophy, and Rules of Art. i. 147. ii. 268, 269, 333. iii. 229 — 235, &c. Scripture interpolated, suppress'd, controverted, manag'd. iii. 320, 321, &c. 330, 331, &c. See Fathers of the Church.) Variety of Readings, controverted Passages, Books, Copies, Catalogues. iii. 322, 323, 326, 327
Scripture, fragil, volatil. iii. 234
- SCYTHIAN: see Goth, Anachasis.
- Sea: Sea to drink. iii. 207, 208
- Secular: see Arm.
- Sedition: see Faction.
- Self: A man when himself; when not himself. i. 324, 325. (See Revolution, Identity.) What makes a Man himself, ii. 253, 254. (Self-Love: see Love.) True Self-Love depends on Knowledge of Self. i. 121, 282, &c. Self-Knowledge. i. 170. iii. 189, 192, 193, &c.
- Selfishness. i. 115, 117, 118, &c. ii. 23, 291. Destructive of Self-Enjoyment. i. 315. iii. 302. Improv'd by certain Philosophers. i. 124, &c. Folly of the Endeavour. ii. 128
- Self-Inspection. i. 196. Acknowledgment of a better Self. i. 281. Self-Revrence: i. 171, 172, 173. Self-Abasement. i. 331, 332. iii. 125, 6, 7, 8. See Sycophants, Interest.
- SENECA, his Character, Genius, Style. iii. 22, 23, 24, 25
- Sensations: see Pleasure, Pain.
- Sense impair'd. ii. 32. Sense in Morals, Life. i. 132. iii. 204, 205. See Talte, Note.
- Common Sense, various Signification.* i. 78, 79, &c. Common Sense, honest Sense. i. 132. iii. 204, 205
- Sense, equivocal, in Painting, to be avoided in the Story of Hercules. iii. 370
- Sensus Communis interpreted. i. 103, 104, &c.
- Sermon, Law of. ii. 282. See Preaching.
- Sexes: see Love, Women.
- Fair-Sex, seduc'd by Tales, Impositions.* i. 347, 348, 349. Inclin'd to monstrous Loves, according to our antient Poet. ibid. (See Superstition, Ladies.) Won by appearance of Submission and Tenderness. iii. 115. Exposition of the Modesty of the Sex in barbarous Nations. i. 273, 274. Better Conduct of the more polite. ibid. Prerogatives of the Fair-Sex. ii. 194. Writings. ii. 191, 195. iii. 254. Fa'te and Humour. ii. 271, 273. iii. 166, 256
i. 87
- SENTUS EMPIRICUS cited. i. 87
- Shepherds: see Arcadia.
- SIBYL. i. 46. iii. 232. Sibylline Scripture. iii. 227, 232, 233, 234
- Sight, single, simple. τὸ ἑστέρησις. i. 143
Silence, i. 143

I N D E X.

- Silence, to be distinctly characteriz'd in the Figure of Hercules, during the Contention. iii. 361
- Simplicity: see Style.
- Sinner against Good-Breeding. i. 166. Against Grammar. ibid.
- Sins. i. 166. iii. 177
- Slavery: Court-Slavery. i. 139. ii. 116, 117. iii. 168——173, &c. 208, 209. Slavery of Vice. iii. 307, &c. 311. Slavish Principles and Spirit. iii. 148, 168, 251, 252, 306, 310, 311, 312, 313
- Smithfield. i. 28
- Social Animals. iii. 220, 221
- Social Enjoyment: see Enjoyment.
- Social Affection: see Affection.
- Society (see Tribe, Government) Early State and Progress of Society. i. 236. Natural Growth of a Society, or National Community. i. 110, 111, Principal of Society, natural. i. 107, 108, 109, 110, &c. Prov'd from Sedition, War. i. 112, 113. From the greatest Opposers of this Principle. i. 89, 90, 92. From its force in ill, as well as in good Passions. i. 16. Society in Nature; not from Art or Compact. i. 109. (See Nature.) Religious Orders, or Societys. i. 114
- SOCRATES. i. 31. 254. iii. 214, 241. See Raillery. Chartæ Socraticæ. i. 192, &c. 205, 206
- Socraticks: their Characters. i. 254, 255, &c.
- Soil, Climate, Region. iii. 146——149, &c. Patriots of the Soil. iii. 150
- Solemnity: Follys and Amusements become solemn. i. 81. See Gravity, Imposture.
- Solilojuy, see Treatise of, viz. Vol. i. p. 153.
- Solitude, &c. i. 174. ii. 223, 224, 225
- SOLOX. iii. 246
- SOPHOCLES. i. 244
- Sophists once honourable, and of highest Dignity. i. 240. Sophists Language-Masters. iii. 140. First Teachers of Philosophy. iii. 137. Sophistry. i. 74. See Imposture.
- Sot: Sottishness. i. 309, 310
- Soul: two Souls in Man. i. 184, 185
- Sounds articulate. i. 288, 303
- Space, Vacuum. i. 301. Space, Plenitude, Substance, Mode, Matter, Immateriality. See Metaphylicks.
- Species: Interest of a Species. ii. 16. A whole Species, subservient to some other. ii. 18. Species of Fair, i. 130, 111. (See Fair, Beauty, Decorum.) Moral Species or Appearances, overbearing all other. ii. 100. iii. 33, &c.
- Specters. i. 60. iii. 299
- SPENCER, de Legibus Heb. iii. 55, 56
- Spider. ii. 18
- Spirits: Judgment of others. i. 54.——of our own. ibid. Fear of Spirits, in an old sense. See Pneumatophobia. Animal

I N D E X.

- Animal Spirits confin'd.* i. 71
- Spleen. i. 20. Objected to Criticks and Satirists. iii. 108, 109
- Stage of the World. ii. 184
- Stage, English. i. 271, 275, 276. iii. 255, 256, 289, 290. See Drama.
- Stage allow'd to instruct as well as the Pulpit. i. 361. iii. 255
- Standard of Manners, Breeding, Gentility. iii. 179, &c. Standard of Wit, English. i. 265. iii. 272—276, &c. Standard of moral Rectitude.
i. 107, 298, 355. iii. 303, 304
i. 227
- Statuary, Lyfippus.
- Statuary and Statuaries. See Painters.
- Statuary, with other Arts and Letters, destroy'd by antient Bishops of Rome and Greece. iii. 239, 240, 241
- Statute against Criticism. iii. 269, 278, 279
- Statute of Mortmain and Repeal among the Antients. iii. 45, 49, 50, 79.
See Hierarchy.
- Statutes. See Laws.
- Storrs (Old-Wives.) i. 6. Told up and down. i. 37
- Storks. iii. 80
- STRABO cited. i. 208, 252. iii. 153
- Styles and Manners of writing, the several kinds. i. 242, 243, 244, &c.
255—258. Didactic, Preceptive Style. i. 25. iii. 285. Scho- lastick, Pedantick. i. 256. &c. iii. 141. Metaphorick. i. 242, 243.
iii. 140, 261, 262, 337. Methodick. i. 256—259. Simple.
ibid. and iii. 21, 22, 141, &c. Sublime. i. 256, 257, 8, 9, &c.
276. iii. 285. See Sublime, Comick, Tragick, Farce, Bombatt.
- Heavenly Style in Painting.* iii. 220. See Painting, Painter. Style of our blessed Saviour. iii. 122, 123
- English Style in Prose and Verse.* iii. 264, 265, 6, 7. 276, 277, 8, 9, &c. Gouty Joins, Darning-Work, &c. iii. 264, 265. Discord, Dissonance. ibid. See Monosyllables.
- Subjects, Multiplication of them in a Piece perplexes the Ordonnance of a Work.
iii. 383
- Sublime. iii. 140
- Sublime in speaking. i. 8, 335. False and True. i. 241, 242, &c. (See Bombatt.) Sublime of Characters. i. 336. Of Actions. iii. 34.
Sublime in Things. See Beauty, Admiration.
- Subordination necessary in Nature. ii. 214, 215, 216
What requir'd to make it perfect. iii. 383
- Succession: Church-Succession. i. 360. iii. 338
- Succession of Wit and Humour. i. 253, &c. See Lineage and Genealogy.
- Superstition. ii. 166. (See Enthusiasm, Priest, Miracle, Magi, ÆCÿPTI, Hierarchy, Tales.) Difference between Superstition and Enthusiasm.
iii. 39. Anti-superstitious Passion, or Counter-Enthusiasm. i. 88, &c.
iii. 64, 65
- Superstition, Fear. i. 295. iii. 65. Superstition the most enslaving and worst of Vices. iii. 305
- Female Superstition.* i. 348, 349. iii. 48. See Lady.

Picture

I N D E X.

- Picture or Character of Superstition.* iii. 125, 126. 127, 128
Superstition destructive of Moral Rectitude. ii. 46—50. The Superstitious are willing Atheists. i. 126, 128. Unable to believe as they desire. ibid.
Quantity of Superstition answers to the number of religious Dealers. iii. 46, &c.
Supineness, proper for the Figure of Pleasure. iii. 371
Surgeons, spiritual. iii. 95, 106
Surgery in Politicks and Religion. i. 16, 17. iii. 106. Inward Surgery. i. 156, &c.
SWEDEN. See DENMARK.
Sycophants in Religion. i. 35. iii. 125—128. See Beggars, Flattery, Symbol. See Test, Creed, Watch-word.
Symmetry. i. 353. iii. 263. Real. iii. 168, 180. See Beauty, Decorum.
Synods. i. 360, &c.
SYRIA: its Religion. iii. 41, 42. See Palestine, Jews, Ægypt.
System: a Fool by Method and System. i. 290. See Hypothesis.
Systems impos'd by Authority. i. 96
System of the World. ii. 287. Particular Systems, and their single Parts united in one System. ii. 19, &c. 286

T.

- TABLATURE, specifically distinguish'd. iii. 347, 348. The Design of it shou'd be immediately apparent. iii. 378
TACIUS cited. iii. 53, 54, 253
Tail: Works or Pieces, without Head or Tail. See Works.
A Tale: its Use, upon occasion. ii. 202, 203
Tales: Love of Tales and monstrous Storys; its Affinity with the Passion of Superstition. i. 348, 349. Tremendous Tale-tellers. ibid.
Talkers, i. 167
TARTAR. See Goth.
Tartar-Notion. i. 86
Taste: Explanation of a right Taste in Manners, Morals, Government. iii. 163—167, &c. In Wit and Ingenuity, how rais'd and improv'd. i. 239, &c. 250, &c. A Taste in Morals, Life. i. 355. iii. 176—179, &c. (See Sense, Note.) Moral Taste or Sense, how acquir'd. ii. 401
Taste in inward Beauty and Characters, founded in Nature. i. 336. iii. 303
True Taste or Judgment in Life how gain'd. i. 338, 339. Lies in our own Power. iii. 186
Virtuoso-Taste. i. 135
Ruin of Taste from Multiplicity of Reading. i. 342 343, 344, &c. Taste barbariz'd. i. 344
Reformation of Taste, great Work. i. 351
Good Taste in the polite World. iii. 154, 155, 156
TAYLOR, Bishop, cited. i. 99, 100. iii. 40, 41, 318—324, 326, 327
H h 2
Temper

I N D E X.

- Temper, the truly divine. i. 37. Best or worst in Man. ii. 96. What makes a good Temper. ii. 114, 115, 117. The fittest Temper for Judgment. i. 12, 32, 33
- Temperance: how valuable. ii. 248, 249, 250. Set in opposition to Avarice and Ambition. ii. 251, 252
- TERENCE. i. 334. iii. 184, 263
- Terra Incognita. i. 344. iii. 210
- Test: Religious Tests, Problems, &c. i. 60, 61. See Symbol, Creed.
- Test of Ridicule. i. 11, 30, 31, 61. (See Criterion.) Test of Gravity. i. 74
- Testimony, human. i. 45, 148. ii. 331. Divine. ii. 333, 334
- Theater. See Stage-Play.
- Theism: how it tends to promote Virtue. ii. 71, 72. Compar'd in that respect with Atheism. ii. 72, 73, 74. Theism to what oppos'd. ii. 209. Faith of Theism. ii. 358
- Theist: the Belief of a perfect Theist. ii. 11. Theists, nominal, real. ii. 267, 268, &c.
- Theogony, Theology, Heathen and Christian. i. 359, 360, &c. See Divinity.
- Theology. i. 359
- Thinking: Free-Thinking. iii. 297, &c. Free-Thinkers. ibid. Half-Thinkers, a sorry Species. iii. 300. Dishonesty a Half-Thought. iii. 297, &c. Under-thinking, or Short-thinking; its Nature, Cause and Consequences. iii. 301, 302, 303, &c. See Scepticism.
- Thorns: Grapes not from Thorns. i. 286
- Thought: whether able to produce Matter ii. 296, 297
- THUCYDIDES: iii. 247
- TIBERIUS. i. 105
- TILLOTSON (Archbishop) cited. iii. 329, 330, 331, 2, 3, 4
- Time, Points of; the Judgment of Hercules capable of being divided into three. iii. 350. The proper Circumstances of each. iii. 351. Objections against a fourth. ibid.
- Time, a future may be express'd by enigmatical Devices. iii. 353
- Tire-men. i. 84
- Title of a Work, last determin'd. iii. 26, 27
- Titles. i. 203, 204
- Toilette, a General's. iii. 186
- Toleration, (See Persecution, Liberty) when and on what account oppos'd. iii. 110, 111. When admir'd and recommended. ibid. See Charity.
- Top (Child's Top) i. 187. Works without Top or Bottom. See Works.
- Tragedy, Genius of. i. 218, 219. (See Euripides.) Prior to Comedy. i. 244, 245, &c. iii. 140, 141
- Tragedy, modern: Love and Honour. i. 276. (See Play, Theater.)
- English Tragedy. iii. 61, 62. Moral and Virtue of Tragedy. i. 317, 318. iii. 309
- Tragi-Comedy. iii. 7
- Tragick Aspect of certain Divines. i. 66, 74
- TRAJAN

I N D E X.

- TRAJAN. i. 228
- Traveller, or Travel-Writer in form. i. 346, 347. History of certain travelling Gentlemen. iii. 99, 100, 101, &c.
- Treachery: Negative Vice. ii. 167
- Treatise. See Piece.
- Tribe: Formation of a Clan or Tribe. i. 110, 111. Of federate Tribes, mixt Colonys, &c. ibid. and 236, 237, 238, &c.
- Trustee. See Guardian.
- Truth bears all Lights. i. 11, 30, 31, 61. — Ridicule, a Light, or Criterion to Truth. i. 61. Truth injur'd by over-much Discovery. i. 62. Face of Truth suffers by Masks. i. 84, 85
- Truth (See Beauty) powerful. i. 4. Principal even in Fable and Fiction. ibid. Poetick Truth. i. 142, 3, 4, 5, 6, 193, 4, 5, 6, &c. 336, 337, 354, 355. iii. 180, 181, 2, 3, 4, 5, &c. 259, 260, 261, 2, 3, 282. Plastick or Graphical Truth. i. 146. iii. 181. Historical, Critical, Moral, Philosophical and Religious Truth. ibid. and iii. 181, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. (See Revelation, History.) Magna & prevalebit. i. 148
- Truth of Work. i. 261, 262, &c. Truth of Actions. ibid. Verum atque Decens. iii. 162. Strength of Perception no sure Ground of Truth. iii. 68
- Truth, Historical, to give way to Poetick or Probable in Painting. iii. 372, 3, 5
- Truth, Poetick, presupposes Prognostication. iii. 354
- Tryal. See Proof, Criterion, Test.
- TURKS. i. 26. Turkish Policy destructive of Letters. i. 226. iii. 235
- Turn. See Vicissitude.
- Tutor. See Pedagogue.
- Tutor and Pupil. i. 211. The Age not to be tutor'd. i. 67
- Tyranny. i. 107. Worship'd. i. 219. See Absolute, Arbitrary, Force
- Tyro's in Philosophy. iii. 37

U

- UNDERMINING or sapping Method in Wit and Philosophy. iii. 134
- Understanding and Eyes fitted to so much Light, and no more. i. 62. Plot of Mankind against their own Understanding. iii. 101, 102, &c.
- Uniformity in Religion, hopeful Project. i. 19. How practicable. iii. 89, 90, 103, 104, 106, 318, 319, 343
- Unity in the Universe. ii. 347
- Universe. ii. 212. iii. 224
- University-Wit. i. 64. See Pedant.
- University-Learning. ii. 286, 298. 334, 335, 336. University-Chair. ii. 258. iii. 287
- Modern Universities not very fortunate in the Education of Youth.* i. 333, 334, 335
- Urbanity. i. 72
- VANITY.

I N D E X.

V.

- VANITY. i. 206
VARRO. iii. 234, 280
VENUS: the Venus, Venuſium, or Grace in Things. i. 138, 337. See
Decorum. Every one a VENUS. i. 138, 139
Vice: Artifice of Vice. i. 174. Vice in Opinion. ii. 34, 35. Causes of Vice.
 ii. 40. Moſt eſſential Parts of Vice. ii. 97, 98
Vice. See Slavery.
Viciſſitude: Law of Diſcourſe and Converſation. i. 70, 76
View. See Sight.
VIRGIL. i. 46, 47. ii. 223, 343. iii. 233
Virtue, Honeſty, and Juſtice in Nature; not from Will or Law. i. 109, 353.
Nothing to do with Faſhion or Vogue. ibid. and ii. 35. Independent of Opinion, and above the World. i. 262. Virtue, the Truth and Symmetry of Manners. See Symmetry, Muſick, Harmony, Proportion.
Beauty of Virtue. i. 140
Virtue, Faſhion and Name only in the Senſe of ſome fashionable Moralists. i.
 80, 92, 124, &c. 352.—Leſs a Sufferer by being conteſted than betray'd.
 i. 96, 97. Over-laid by its Nurſes. ibid. Under-prop'd. ibid. For- feited. ii. 34. Trial of Virtue. ii. 36, 37. Degrees of Virtue. ii. 38, 39. Causes of Virtue. ii. 40. Virtue degraded and deſac'd. ii. 254, 255.
See Religion.
Virtue made mercenary. i. 97. Heroick Virtue. i. 101
Virtue and Morals demonſtrated. See in Vol. II. Treatiſe IV. and in Vol.
 III. pag. 194, 195, 6, 7, 8, &c.
Virtue incapable of being ridicul'd. i. 128, 129. See Jeſt, Raillery, Ridicule.
Virtue, her Figure in the Picce. iii. 364. To be drawn ſtanding. iii. 362.
How habited. iii. 363. Her proper Attitude. iii. 364. Her Palace not to be inſerted. iii. 377
Virtuoſi. iii. 156, &c. 182. ii. 183, 394. Mock-Virtuoſo, or Pedant of the kind. i. 341. iii. 156, 157
Virtuoſi and Philoſophers compar'd. iii. 156, 157, &c.
Virtuoſo-Lovers. i. 137, 185, 186. ii. 183, 394
Virtuoſo-Paſſion. iii. 184
Virtuoſo-Taſte. See Taſte.
Virtuoſoſhip, a ſtep towards Virtue. i. 333. iii. 161. Science of Virtuoſo, and that of Virtue, almoſt the ſame. i. 338
Viſionarys: See Fanaticks.
VITRUVIUS. iii. 181
Volunteer in Faith. i. 6. In Morals. i. 194
VOSSIUS (Is.) de Viribus Rhythmi. iii. 263

W.

- WAR: Paſſion of Heroick Spirits, why? i. 112, 113.
England, Seat of War, whence fear'd. iii. 148, 149
Watch-maker. i. 293
 Watch-

I N D E X.

- Watch-word in Divinity. iii. 60
 Whole. A Whole and Parts. i. 143, 207. ii. 284. iii. 259. The WHOLE, a System compleat. ii. 286, 287. iii. 348
 Will, Freedom of. i. 185. Resolution and Will, a Nose of Wax. i. 185.
 Top or Foot-ball. i. 187. Will insur'd, ascertain'd. ibid. Readiness to obey the first Motion of Will, is Impotence and Slavery. ii. 231
 Will and Power no Rule of Good, or Just. i. 107, 124. See Arbitrary.
 Will (Testament) Power and Practice of the Priesthood, in making Peoples Wills.
 iii. 79, 88
 Wisdom, in permitting Folly. i. 13, 14. Wisdom as well as Charity begins at home. i. 189
 Wise-men of Greece. i. 89
 Wit: mere, or sheer Wit. iii. 2, 3. Mannerly Wit can hurt no honest Cause.
 i. 96. Orthodox Wit. iii. 291. Lay-Wit. ibid. Bottom of Wit
 enlarg'd. iii. 4. Lineage of Wit. See Lineage.
 Separate Provinces of Wit and Wisdom. iii. 6. Generation and Succession of our National and Modern Wit. iii. 269, &c.
 Freedom of Wit, a Cure to false Wit. i. 19, 64. Liberty of Wit. i. 69.
 See Liberty, Freedom.
 Liberty of Wit and Trade parallel. i. 69. False Wit, how prov'd. i. 74.
 Men frighted, not laugh'd out of their Wits. i. 96
 Wit and Humour. See Treatise II. viz. Vol. I. pag. 59, &c. and iii.
 97, 98, &c.
 Wits or Poets, Offspring of. iii. 274. Wits by Patent. ibid. Stratagem of affected Wits. iii. 300
 Witches. i. 148
 Wolf: Silly Comparison of Man and Wolves. i. 88, 93, 118. ii. 320
 Women. (See Sex, Lady.)
 Women Spectators, Judges of Combats, Duels, Amphitheatrical Spectacles, Masculine Games. i. 272, 273, 274. ii. 195. Judges of the State, and Poetical Performance. i. 271, 272, 3, 4, 5, 6. Flattery of their Taste by Poets. i. 271, 276. iii. 259, 260
 Silly Women won by Preachers. i. 348, 349. Forfake courteous Knights for black Enchanters. ibid. Follow the Hero of a black Tribe. ibid.
 Women who live by Prostitution. ii. 128
 Wonder, Wonderment. i. 144, 5, 6, 7, &c. ii. 324, 325, 326, &c.
 See Admiration.
 Work. (See Piece.) Truth of Work. i. 261, &c.
 Works without Head or Tail, Beginning or End. i. 145, 146. iii. 8, 25.
 What contributes to the Perfection of a Work. ii. 186
 Workman. See Artisan.
 World. iii. 33. See Universe.
 Worthip, vitious. ii. 35
 Worth and Baseness acknowledg'd. ii. 420, 421
 Wrestler. i. 193
 Writer. See Author.
 Antient Writer de Mundo. iii. 263, 264
 174

I N D E X.

First Writer, an able Traveller, or Horseman. iii. 26. Modern Writers: their Foundation, Polity, State, Myslery. iii. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, &c. 272, 3, 4, 5, &c. See first of modern Writers. iii. 26. Post-way. ibid.
 Writings: See Memoir, Essay, Miscellany.
 Writing: Fashionable Model of Writing. iii. 25. See Correctness, In-correctness, Critick, Penmen.
 Wrong: Right and Wrong, what. ii. 31, 32, 33, 34. See Right, Virtue.

X.

XENOCRATES. i. 252, 253
XENOPHON. i. 334. iii. 248. His Commentaries. i. 224. His Genius, Character, Style. i. 254, 255. iii. 248

Z.

ZEAL and Knavery. i. 132, 133. ii. 325. iii. 125. Imprudent Zeal. ii. 68
 Zeal, Compound of Superstition and Enthusiasm. iii. 39. Offensive and De-fensive. iii. 82, 83, 86, &c. See Bigotry, Persecution.
Amorous Zeal. iii. 38
 Zealots, bear no Raillery. i. 60. Pretend to railly others. i. 61. Character of Modern Zealots. iii. 218, 219
 Zealot-Writers, thir Grimace. i. 65, 66. ——— Picture. ibid. Affection of Pleasantry and Honour. ibid. and iii. 291
Character of a Zealot Author. i. 67. Anti-Zealots. i. 91. iii. 64, 65
 Zealous Charity for the Conversion of our Neighbour, how far suspicious. iii. 107, 108, 110, 111

The End of the TABLE.

E R R A T A.

V O L. I.

In the TITLE, read, THE SEVENTH EDITION.

- Page. 192. l. 3. in the Notes for gris read quis
274. l. 11. do. for simulant read simulans

V O L. III.

- Page. 18. l. 15. for THE read THF
30. l. 22. for magsttick read majestick
37. l. — R. omitted in the Running Title
43. l. 15. in the Notes, for nonnulli read nonnullis
Do. l. 18. in the Notes for conjuncta read conjunctas
48. l. 1. in the Notes, for cis read eis
49. l. 8. in the Notes, for Ergamentes read Ergamenes
52. l. 4. in the Notes, for emmorati read commorati
54. l. 17. in the Notes, for vedere read videre
55. l. 14. in the Notes, for Deos read Deus
69. l. 2. in the Notes, for Essentia read Essentie
222. l. 1. in the Text, for distinct read distin^{ct}
234. l. 1. in the Notes, for apellati read appellati
239. l. 13. in the Notes, for frnt read frnt
241. l. 14. in the Notes, for faut read fans
259. l. 7. in the Notes, for fi read fit
313. l. 1. in the Notes, for Hucine read Hucine
381. l. 26. in the Text, for ostendis read ostendis

